

Paragon 821

Chapter 821 - 821: Addicted To The Star Juice [18+]

Kissing filled the fortress as Klaus and Queen Lunara fiercely kissed.

One of Klaus's hands was on her neck, holding her in place, while the other kneaded her butt, bringing out a few quiet moans.

The Paragon didn't want to hesitate any longer. He had clearly sensed something when he first met the queen, and as they grew closer, he started to sense even more intimately now.

Now, however, it was different.

It was clear the queen had a connection to him, which was felt in the pentagon-shaped gem inside his seventh core. The feeling of deep love, like no one else had felt, was shared by her and Lulu.

However, now, the feeling of protection was added to the love. It felt like the lady he was kissing would do everything in her power to protect him.

This feeling ignited during the tribulation, when Mars cracked, and he asked Veylor to take her away.

The feeling he got from her at that moment was the unwillingness and the need to protect. It felt like she had done that before, perhaps many times, so the feeling was rather profound.

This touched Klaus deeply in his heart, so he decided to take their relationship to the next level right after the tribulation.

Unbeknownst to Klaus, while his feelings were growing stronger, the same was happening to the queen, who only wanted to do what she was doing now.

She wanted to hold the brat and kiss him. Now, she was getting just that, and that alone was enough to fill her heart with joy.

They broke the kiss, and Klaus used his thumb to wipe the saliva from her lips, looking at her seductively as he licked his thumb.

Her body shuddered as she watched this seductive display. Her heart was filled with great joy, something she couldn't understand but was definitely following, thanks to her heart and mind finally aligning.

"I didn't know you could kiss like that, my queen," Klaus said in a teasing tone, causing the queen to blush and plant her face in his chest.

"You don't have to be embarrassed. I enjoyed it and would love to keep enjoying it." Klaus extended his hand, and a rather big bed fell onto the perfectly iced floor.

This display made the queen turn and look at him with an expression that screamed, 'Really? You take a king-size bed with you wherever you go.'

"You never know when or where a queen will be craving your touch," Klaus said, gently pushing her onto the bed. He moved closer and joined her, locking lips again.

After kissing for a while, Klaus pulled back from her lips and started kissing her neck, then slowly moved to her chest area, which was still covered in her leather armor.

"Let me go first." To Klaus's surprise, the queen unbuttoned his shirt and removed it, turning him onto his back like the queen she was.

She was displaying her stance as a Queen, and Klaus could only watch.

The brat lay on the bed as the queen moved and started kissing his face. He wanted to say something, but instead, he was waiting to see the extent she would go.

His answer came the next second as he felt her left hand gliding toward his dick.

This made him wonder if the same queen was the one doing that, but again, before he could wonder more, her hand gripped his semi-hard dick through his trousers.

This allowed the queen to measure what was hidden in his pants and decide what to do with it.

The queen brushed Klaus's dick for a few moments before moving her hand away and started kissing down his body.

She kissed past his abs, spending more time there, making sure Klaus felt her affection before going down his belly.

When she reached his waist, she paused and looked at Klaus. The two locked eyes, and for a moment, it felt like they had done this hundreds of times.

"We can't do it now, but I can make you feel good. Would that be enough?" she asked, flustered.

However, to Klaus, it sounded more like an obedient wife who wanted to ensure her husband was satisfied after facing the heavens in a grave battle of life and death.

This strangely made Klaus emotional, and without even knowing it, a tear fell from his eyes. Queen Lunara smiled when she saw that.

But she didn't say anything. She focused on her job and removed Klaus's clothes, revealing the large paragon rod.

She gulped, not expecting that thickness.

Klaus's manly scent assaulted her nose as she removed his pants. A feeling of lust immediately appeared in her eyes as she took hold of the still semi-hard dick.

Her other hand took hold of his balls and started massaging them. This quickly got Klaus's dick up, and without wasting her own time, she started kissing the lengthy rod, focusing on the veins popping on it.

Klaus started moaning as the queen worked on him. Slowly, she took his rod into her mouth and started sucking it.

He moved with fluid grace, sending the dick down her throat and back. Her hand was also kneading his balls, so Klaus couldn't hold back his moan.

'Damn, she is good,' Klaus said to himself as he lay at the mercy of the queen who was changing his perception of her.

The quiet, innocent queen of the Moonborns was now giving him a blowjob and doing it with great dedication.

This went on for close to an hour.

"I am coming, my queen," Klaus muttered, feeling his load rushing out. The queen, who also felt it, pulled her head back but kept a few inches of the dick in her mouth.

The infamous star juice exploded out, painting her mouth with some going down her throat. However, despite the milky juice filling her mouth, the lady didn't immediately swallow it.

She waited for more to come, and when the last drop came, she pulled her head back and locked eyes with Klaus, savoring the juice in her mouth for a few seconds before swallowing it.

"Damn, woman, you succubus or something?" Klaus couldn't help but ask.

In response, the queen smiled, swallowed the still-hard dick again, and started sucking it once more. Klaus could only lie down and let her have her time.

Five cums later, she still wasn't satisfied.

"My stamina can handle hundreds of women at the same time, so go for it, have your fill," Klaus said to her, making the queen smile and continue to suck him.

Unbeknownst to them, the Star Monarch Blood inside her core started getting absorbed rapidly as she swallowed more of Klaus's load.

They didn't know that, but the signs would show soon enough.

But until then, the mother of his twin wives was going down on him, and the only thing he could think of was putting the mother and her daughters on all fours and giving it to them.

Hours passed, and just like that, a day went by. However, three hours into the next day, the addicted queen, who couldn't have enough of Klaus's star juice, pulled back.

"Klaus, I think my bloodline is awakening."

Without even waiting for Klaus's answer, a wave of infernal energy gushed out from her body, blasting the fortress into chunks.

The clouds also formed, not for tribulation but as a signal of her bloodline awakening.

Chapter 822 - 822: Ancient Bloodline Awakening

Millions of years ago, a promise was made that even the passing of time couldn't swallow.

This promise was made between a young man whose existence was unwelcome and a human who wasn't meant to even cross paths with him.

Yet they met, and it was destiny that took hold of that.

This young man was a hated existence. From the moment he was born, everybody despised him. Even his father and siblings wanted nothing to do with him.

The only person who loved him unconditionally was his mother, who, despite his nature, never once looked at him with disapproving eyes.

She was his world, and he was her world. This relationship made this young man grow up despite the hate coming from all directions. He became a capable warrior in the apocalyptic world.

And despite all this hate, whenever there was danger, he never backed down. He fought against odds so horrifying that many would have died without him.

But even after all that, he was never loved. And despite his mother's love keeping him going, it reached a point where that wasn't enough.

The thought of ending it all came to his mind. However, when he was at that junction, he met a lady who brought so much joy and love to his life.

The willingness to live on was again ignited, and for many more years, he lived a happy life. His hated existence was still there, but he found happiness amidst all the hatred.

However, despite his harmless and peaceful existence, the heavens frowned upon his nature, so they placed their gaze on him. And in that hopeless struggle, when everything came crashing down, a promise was made.

At that moment, despite thousands of years passing, this promise was now being fulfilled.

Klaus stood up, now clad in his armor, as he gazed up, watching the cloud of flame forming in the sky.

Queen Lunara was hovering a couple of meters off the ground, radiating an intense infernal energy.

[Birth of the Flame Tribulation, this lady is awakening one of the ancient bloodlines,] the senior said, causing Klaus to ask a follow-up question.

"What is an ancient bloodline?"

[They are bloodlines that came with the universe. They are as old as the universe, and the best part is that the heavens don't control them.

Since the emergence of the universe, the heavens have tried many times to acquire these bloodlines; however, as something as old as the universe, they were just playing themselves.

They are extremely powerful, and I have to say that I never expected this lady to be an awakening one. Those who have ever awakened such bloodlines already have powerful bloodlines and extremely good karma.

However, as someone associated with a paragon, you can see where my shock is coming from.]

"I guess she must have done something in her past life that even the universe was impressed by. However, this calls for concern. Would the heavens retaliate knowing she is linked to me?" Klaus asked.

[They wouldn't dare. The heavens are not omnipotent, brat. They are also regulated. It's just that they have more supreme authority over the Daos and laws, so they can impose on you and me. However, when it comes to the ancient bloodline, they can't touch that.]

Klaus smiled, watching as the flaming clouds pulled Queen Lunara in and incinerated her body. He was shocked at first, but after a couple of minutes, the heavens split open, and an elegant flaming scythe flew out.

That was when a hand caught it from the flaming clouds. Klaus focused his attention on the hand, which soon became whole.

Then Queen Lunara descended, now looking even more mesmerizing.

She possessed long, flowing red hair, the color of smoldering embers. Looking at how it fell behind her as she flew down made Klaus gulp a few times.

Her face was gorgeous, with sharp features that radiated both strength and elegance. Her crimson eyes shone with the intensity of a flame, glowing softly.

She possessed an athletic physique and was clad in form-fitting, flame-resistant armor that appeared to be made from a combination of molten metals and hardened firestone.

"She is elegant," Klaus muttered.

After flying down and being a few meters from Klaus, she smiled and then swung her scythe. Instantly, Klaus found himself surrounded by a flame domain where everything was on fire.

"I can only hold it for two hours, so get down to it. This is the only gift I have for you for now," Queen Lunara said, causing Klaus to wonder what she meant.

However, before he could figure out what was happening, the red flame started getting absorbed by the two dragon tattoos on his arms. Immediately, his strength began rising, meaning the dragons were becoming stronger.

"What is happening?" Klaus asked.

"This is my bloodline flame. It's called Genesis flame. It has the power of creation and destruction. The one I am sharing with you is the genesis of creation. Of course, I have limited flame essence, so I can hold it for only two hours.

But that will be enough to attain what I wanted."

"And that is?"

"To give True spirits to the dragons."

[How is that even possible?] The senior asked the same thing Klaus wanted to ask. However, watching the smile on Lunara's face, he knew she would tell him after the process was over.

"How are you feeling?" Klaus instead chose to indulge in other things.

"I am as powerful as ever. My bloodline has awakened, and while I don't understand it yet, I know I am at the peak of the Void stage.

But judging by your bloodline power running through my body, I am confident I can handle the Chaos stage experts, at least to some level.

However, with my bloodline power and the fact that I have awakened some powerful weapons, I think I am now at the stage to help you defend Earth." She smiled, looking hungrily at Klaus.

Her plan to get back to Earth before sleeping with him went awry. She had undergone rebirth using the flames of Genesis, and as such, she wanted to give everything to her man now, including her yin essence.

Chapter 823 - 823: Nirvana and Fury

Inside Klaus's soul sea, he stood 1 km away from two large eggs, one red and the other white. He was using his consciousness to observe the transformation of his dragons.

At his current level of elemental cultivation, his flame elements were at the Transformation stage. However, as he continued to absorb the genesis flame from Lunara, he could sense this level rising toward the Immunity stage.

This meant that if he succeeded and was able to get two dragons with spirits in them, the chances of him having two talking dragons that could evolve on their own were very high.

This would do so much for Klaus that he had no idea of.

An hour and a half went by, and as he approached the two-hour mark, he could tell Lunara was getting exhausted, yet she persisted.

"You can stop now, Lunara," Klaus said, but she just smiled at him.

"I like it when you call me Lunara. Don't add the 'queen' to it from now on."

"Too bad, I kinda like the queen. Makes me feel like I have a queen," Klaus said, watching her continue to push through despite the apparent fatigue setting in.

"You can stop, Lunara. I don't want you to get hurt." Klaus was worried; however, his worry was cut short when a sudden burst came from his soul sea, flooding the entire space with dense infernal energy.

One was of rebirth and the other of fury, showing that his two flames, the Chaotic Nirvana Flame and Soul Fury Flames, had transcended and formed spirits.

When the explosion calmed down, Klaus was drawn to two adorable baby dragons. One was pure orange, and the other was pure white.

They were so elegant and beautiful that Klaus, who was watching them with one part of his hive mind, wanted to approach them. However, he stopped when a sudden burst of energy came out of their bodies, and they vanished.

On the outside, they appeared in the air, cuddling into a ball of cuteness. Orange and white flames were circulating around their bodies.

"You did it, Lunara." Klaus was suddenly assaulted with a wave of happiness, almost jumping up and down, watching the two dragon babies in the air.

"Congratulations, Klaus," Lunara said before falling from the air, exhausted. Klaus was quick to catch her, and then, with a gentle stomp on the ground, a fortress formed around them.

"Rest for now, Lunara. I will make it up to you when you wake up," Klaus said before vanishing back to watch over the dragons.

Inside the forest, Lunara smiled, and before falling asleep, she muttered a few words and a name, "It's good to see you smile, Magnus."

A red key made of flames appeared on her forehead for a few seconds before vanishing. On Klaus's back, a flame key appeared in the 7th star tattoo, radiating for a few seconds before it dimmed.

A promise was made millions of years ago, and it has been fulfilled today.

However, while the enemy keeps scheming and plotting, destiny is weaving its threads this time to ensure that the tragedy that nearly befell this universe millions of years ago never happens again.

On the outside, Klaus stood calmly, watching the two dragon babies for 34 hours until a powerful energy suddenly burst out of their bodies.

Then they turned into two energy beams and flew, entering Klaus's left and right arms. The moment they did, Klaus felt his energy rise rapidly. When it stopped, he felt his flame energy reach a new level.

"I am at the Immunity stage—the first level, which is the Initiate." Klaus laughed, then brushed his arm.

The baby dragons appeared and hovered before him. Klaus observed them for a few seconds and then spoke.

"Can you two talk?" He most definitely wanted to ask that since Lunara said she was upgrading them. However, now that it was done and he asked, the dragon babies remained still, staring at him.

"Maybe they can't speak human language," Klaus muttered, then, as if he knew what to do, he tapped into the universe's enigmatic ability and spoke in a dragon's tone.

(A/N: Of course, I will translate it for you all.)

"Can you two speak?" He asked in Draconic language.

This time, the dragons made a sound...

"Daddy," the white one said.

"Daddy," the orange one followed.

Klaus's body shuddered hearing them talk.

"YES!" He punched the air, neglecting the fact that his strength was now at a different level. This casual punch created a huge sonic boom that sent red sand flying everywhere.

"Sorry, little ones, I was just too excited," Klaus said, watching as the two dragon babies turned and looked at the damage he had caused.

"Daddy," they said.

"Yes... I am daddy. Mommy is asleep now." Klaus didn't fail to instill the idea that they had a mommy, too. Knowing they were babies, he made sure they were aware.

"Mommy." Suddenly, the orange dragon flew toward the fortress where Lunara stood, watching Klaus and the dragon.

"She is heavy," Queen Lunara said, holding the dragon in her arms.

Klaus wasn't shocked by the fact that she was awake. He sensed her waking up a few hours ago.

"How did you know it's a she?" he asked

"She is a she because I am a woman and I can tell. The white one is a he," Lunara said, walking toward Klaus. "Do you have names for them?"

"Of course. She is called Nirvana and he is called Fury," Klaus said with a smile.

"Klaus, those are not names. Give them human or dragon names," Lunara said with a smile. However, the orange dragon baby shook her head.

"Nirvana," she said, causing Klaus to smile.

"Fury," the white one also said.

"Unbelievable." Lunara shook her head. "Congratulations on getting two dragons, Klaus. You have become even more powerful now."

"They are our babies, Lunara, you and I. We made them." Klaus was very happy that he moved toward Lunara and kissed her.

Strangely, the two baby dragons turned their heads away, not wanting to see what their mommy and daddy were doing.

"Go fly around, Mommy and Daddy have some things to talk about," Lunara said. Nirvana and Fury didn't hesitate to fly away.

The moment they were gone, Lunara jumped into Klaus's arms and started kissing him passionately.

Chapter 824 - 824: Mother of Flames [18+]

"Aaaahhh"

Lunara moaned loudly as Klaus went down on her, spreading her legs.

They were back inside the fortress, where Klaus lay her on her back and was working magic inside her nether region.

The queen was moaning so intensely that it would have long since shattered if the fortress hadn't been made using seven different ice elements.

However, it held strong, and holding her waist, Klaus was licking her with great intensity. Lunara also held his head, ensuring Klaus didn't lift it. This only made the situation even more intense.

Minutes later, she climaxed but made sure Klaus didn't move back by wrapping her leg around his neck.

Klaus wanted more of that.

He loved what she was doing, so he let her have fun.

Initially, Queen Lunara wanted to return to Earth first, where she would talk to her two daughters about her feelings for Klaus. She was their mother, and she wanted to clear the idea of sharing the same man first.

Though she already knew how her daughters felt about it.

But as their mother, she only wanted to do it the right way. However, that all changed when she awakened her bloodline.

When her body reformed and she gained her bloodline, she felt the need to devour the brat who, for the past days, had made her worry.

This was why, when she had the chance, she took it. She wouldn't want to miss this opportunity, almost as if, if she did, she would regret it for the rest of her life.

So, throwing the idea of talking to her daughters out the window, she embraced her desires, and now, holding Klaus's head in place, her nether cave was being devoured.

"...Aaah...I never knew I was missing out on this much...pleasure," Lunara said, moaning and panting at the same time. Klaus was kneading both her breasts and butt, so the euphoria was palpable.

"Don't worry...there is more where that came from," Klaus said, brushing his hand across her belly and then, using his thumb, brushing it against her clit, making her moan.

"...You are mine now. You are mine from now onwards, so I will make sure you never stop having this pleasure."

Lunara nodded, then let go of Klaus's head and unwrapped her slender legs from around his neck. Klaus laughed and brushed his hand against a flame tattoo below her belly.

"What is this? It's a flame tattoo," Klaus said, examining the tattoo closely. It was just below her belly button, where the star tattoo usually appeared after he added a lady to his harem.

"It's the tattoo of the Mother of Flames," Lunara answered with a smile. "Just like its name, I am the Mother of Flames."

"What does that even mean?" Klaus asked, still brushing his fingers across the tattoo. It looked profound in a way he couldn't quite wrap his mind around.

Lunara smiled, watching him play with the tattoo. "It grants me supreme authority over all flames. As the Mother of Flames, be it phoenix, dragon, qilin, or anyone who wields the flame element, I have control over their flames. Basically, I am immune to flames."

"Damn," Klaus said, clearly taken aback by such a ridiculous revelation. However, he knew Lunara wouldn't lie to him about something this serious.

"You've become very powerful, then," Klaus said, laughing, genuinely happy. It was the kind of happiness that came from deep within his soul.

"Perfect harmony with the flame element, supreme authority over all flames," Klaus said, his joy evident.

"We must celebrate," he added.

"We can celebrate when we get back. For now, make me your woman," Lunara said. She didn't want to wait until they returned; she needed to become his woman now.

"Then why are we talking?" Klaus lifted her, turned her around, and laid her flat on the bed. His clothes were already off, so he guided his dick close to her entrance and began stroking her.

"I reckon this is a new body, right?" Klaus asked, and she nodded.

"It's a body forged from the eternal flames, so you should savor it," Lunara said. Klaus laughed, then parted her legs, revealing her neatly shaved nether region, which opened its red lips, inviting him to enter.

He obeyed, and like the gentleman he was, he guided his dick inside, moving slowly. Since she had a new body, her virginity was intact, so Klaus moved carefully until he broke through her final barrier.

"Aaaahhh"

He moaned, signifying she had given her first time to the one she wanted to be with. Klaus smiled and then gently helped her get acquainted with his dick.

After ensuring her nether walls had adapted to him, he began thrusting, making sure every part of her body felt the pleasure.

Klaus took her from behind, sliding his dick in and out of her pussy for half an hour before turning her onto her back.

There, he locked eyes with her to convey his feelings and kept thrusting for two straight hours until he climaxed.

By the time Klaus came, Lunara had climaxed ten times. This demonstrated the intensity of his thrusts. In fact, he made her scream so loudly that her voice was affected.

However, he made her feel incredible, and watching her suck his still hard dick now, he knew the queen had truly become his.

She made him very happy. Even inside his seventh core, the pentagon-shaped gem glowed white when he came inside her. It was as if the gem was happy or had acknowledged their bond.

Klaus watched Lunara suck on his erection for a few minutes before she let go and sat on his belly.

"That was intense," she said.

Klaus smiled, brushing his hand against her thighs. "Now you understand what your daughters have been screaming about."

Lunara blushed.

"No need to blush. You'll be teaming up with them to take care of me soon enough. A mother and her twin daughters working on me—you don't see that every day," Klaus laughed, and Lunara could only bury her face in his chest.

Suddenly, she felt something burning below her belly, causing her to widen her eyes. But she wasn't the only one widening her eyes.

Klaus also saw a series of messages appear before his eyes that made him widen his eyes even more than Lunara.

"...what is happening, Klaus?" Lunara asked when she felt the burning sensation coming from below her belly.

Perhaps Klaus hadn't noticed it, but it was burning longer than it did with his other women. This showed that something else was at play here.

"Give it a few seconds. It's the mark that appears when I add my women to my harem. It will allow you all the benefits when you become my woman."

Lunara nodded, and truthfully, after a few seconds, it stopped, and Klaus felt her linked to him. However, he wasn't even done checking to see what had happened to the tattoo when Lunara widened her eyes.

Klaus immediately sensed what had happened, so he laughed. "Talk to them for a few minutes. I also need to check something out."

Back on Earth, Nari, who was sleeping atop one of the fortresses Klaus had made for his ladies before he left, smiled when she sensed someone new joining the harem.

"My queen, is that you?" she asked with a giggle, which the queen heard and caused her to widen her eyes.

However, when Klaus explained things to her, she seemed to grasp it.

"Just think of what you want to say into the connection, and I will hear," Nari said again, and the queen finally grasped the mechanism of how the connection worked.

Though new changes happened to her due to the sex, she was more shocked about having Nari's voice in her head to check them.

"How are they doing, Queenie and Ohema?" Instinctively, her motherly side worried, so she first asked about her two daughters.

Nari smiled and flew into the air, appearing in the cloud. "They are fine. Big sister Queenie is almost done absorbing the blood. However, she is now inside a blood cocoon.

As for big sister Ohema, she is also inside a cocoon of poison. Of course, I am watching over them, so don't worry, and spend some good time with our man."

Lunara nodded with a blush. It felt like Nari was sitting before her.

"How about the others... I mean my sisters. I can feel them, but I know they are busy." She blushed again, and Nari, back on Earth, laughed.

"They are fine... They have the same settings as Big sister Queenie and Ohema. Lily's fortress is surrounded by sharp, cutting wind blades that even I don't want to get closer to.

Lucy is enclosed in a forest of vines. Her sister Anna is basically causing an ice age here, and damn, Nia is basically living in darkness here.

"Basically, something terrifying is going on here that I wish you were around to witness. However, like I said, spend some time with him. I might call you back to come help me if things turn chaotic."

Lunara nodded, and Nari continued asking many questions about her time with Klaus while also updating her on the current situation of those to whom Klaus had given his blood.

Meanwhile, Klaus was reading some messages that appeared before him. However, the sheer shock in his eyes said it all: What he was reading wasn't something he expected.

He mostly ignored most of the messages that the system showed simply because, for some reason, he felt like the system was bad luck. However, since most of his skills were self-taught and he didn't want to register them, the system was basically useless to him.

However, this time he received something big that he couldn't ignore.

[[You have received the Mother of Flames Blessing]]

[[Your Flame resistance has improved tremendously]]

[[Your Flame Immunity has entered the 'High Stage']]

[[Your Flame resistance has improved tremendously]]

Klaus didn't know what to say about this. However, it didn't stop there; the messages continued another dozen times, then he leveled up again.

[[Your Flame Immunity has entered the 'Super Stage']]

[[Your Flame Immunity has entered the 'Perfect Stage']]

[[Your Flame Immunity has entered the 'Transcendent Stage']]

[[Your Flame Immunity has entered the 'Harmony Stage']]

[[Your Flame Immunity has entered the 'Perfect Harmony Stage']]

Klaus was dumbstruck reading these messages over and over. He just couldn't understand them, and he couldn't even comprehend the bizarreness of the situation.

It was beyond bizarre.

It was like a dream to him.

He lived tens of thousands of years as Fruity, but even in that life, he only reached the Harmony stage—he never reached the Perfect Harmony stage.

However, from just having sex with his new wife, he moved as far as the Perfect Harmony stage, from the initiate stage.

Klaus was so dumbfounded that after Lunara finished speaking with Nari, she started staring at him with a smile playing on her lips.

"You don't have to look so shocked. I have one chance to make either you or one of my sisters immune to the flame element, and I chose you. You are my everything, Klaus. I want to be with you forever, so don't be too shocked."

Klaus looked at her for a few seconds before a smile appeared on his lips.

"Thank you, Lunara. This is indeed unexpected, but thank you," Klaus said, looking genuinely happy.

"So, what now?" she asked.

"I have seven more flame elements to awaken; however, for some reason, something is blocking me. But let's not talk about that now. I should reward you too... with my dick."

He lifted her onto his lap and entered her with his shaft before he started moving her hips as he made love to her again. Her moans filled the air once more.

Hours passed, but Klaus didn't let her go. Then a day passed, and they were still at it. In fact, aside from a few brief pauses to catch their breath, for five days, they continued making love the entire time.

After a week, they became exhausted and fell asleep.

Meanwhile, somewhere on Mars, inside an underground lava pool, Nirvana and Fury were hovering a few inches above the surface of the lava, just as Veylor was doing.

However, instead of baby dragons, they were now humanoid children, about seven years old. Nirvana was a cute female child with orange dragon horns on her forehead. Her hair was also orange and flowed down her back.

Fury was handsome, with white horns and matching white hair. They were cultivating a few meters away from Veylor, who was nearing his awakening.

Chapter 826 - 826: Nyxthar, The Deathknight

After a day of sleep, Klaus and Lunara woke up refreshed from the intense marathon they had been on for an entire week. They had one more round before Klaus created a pool for them to wash in.

Though he had yet to awaken his water element, melting the ice wasn't too hard. So, he created a rather lavish pool for them, despite Mars having no water to speak of.

After they washed up, they decided to explore Mars to see if they could find something valuable. However, their exploration didn't last long when Klaus sensed something coming from his multi-dimensional cube.

"I think one of my subordinates is ready for his tribulation," Klaus said, holding Lunara's hand. She nodded.

"...In that case, let's see to that first before anything else," Lunara said. Klaus retrieved the cube, and the two of them entered. They appeared inside the void region where he had sent Nyxthar.

"Wow, this place is awesome. I can feel my comprehension of the Void rising just by standing here," Lunara said, and Klaus gave a guilty smile.

"...Sorry, I wanted to bring you and the ladies here, but I first wanted to give you my blood before that." Klaus knew that if his ladies were to train here, their chances of comprehending the Void long before reaching the Void stage were very high.

However, he could not bring them just yet due to the training and plans to make them evolve.

Lunara smiled. "Don't worry about it. Your blood is enough to push me to a high level of Void comprehension."

Lunara looked toward a certain direction, and her eyes landed on a tall figure standing with a large scythe-like weapon in his hands.

His appearance was demonic and rather terrifying, and he was radiating an energy that couldn't be denied.

"He is my subordinate, Nyxthar. He is a deathknight, and from the look of things, it seems he is at a high stage in Void comprehension."

Klaus and Lunara vanished and appeared on the Immortal platform Nyxthar stood on. Nyxthar seemed happy to see Klaus, considering he had no idea how to contact him.

Though Klaus promised he would come to get him when he was ready to have his tribulation.

"Are you ready?" Klaus asked, and the deathknight nodded.

"Then let's go. The moment you appear outside, the tribulation will descend. Do your best to pass it, as the rewards will be worth it."

Nyxthar nodded, and then Klaus sent them outside. As he had said, the tribulation clouds started forming when they appeared outside.

"We will be over there. If anything goes wrong, I will step in," Klaus said. He and Lunara moved back, allowing Nyxthar to face the heavens alone.

Naturally, they wouldn't go easy on him, considering his unique nature. As a Forbidden Being, his existence is frowned upon by the heavens.

Deep underground, hovering over the lava pool, Veylor smiled when he sensed the weather change.

"It looks like you will be having fun, Nyxthar. I look forward to sparring with you," he said with a smile, then focused back on his cultivation.

Nirvana and Fury were also deep into their own cultivation.

The tribulation cloud continued to form on the surface. After five minutes, the first level started to appear.

[As expected, it's the Annihilation Tribulation. They most definitely want to annihilate him.]

The senior identified the tribulation instantly when the first level appeared. It was a large mountain featuring thousands of stones that could only be found in space.

Though they were made of tribulation runes, they held the essence of the real materials. They called it the Annihilation Mountain.

Its purpose was to press down on Nyxthar.

It does not have any other attack power besides its sheer weight. However, the closer it got to Nyxthar, the more suppressed his will became until the entire mountain fell on him and crushed him into paste.

But just as the mountain appeared, the scythe in Nyxthar's hand turned red. With a gentle swing, a red arc flashed out and cleaved the mountain in half.

[As expected, this tribulation is as good as done for someone who has attained a High grade in Void Comprehension. The heavens are cooked.]

The senior sighed.

Klaus, however, stared at the second level of the Annihilation Tribulation. This time, a giant sword about 40 meters long and 8 meters wide appeared.

However, Nyxthar used the same attack, and just like that, the sword was cleaved in half, turning into tribulation runes.

"It looks like I was worried for nothing," Klaus said, forming an ice throne. He sat down and made Lunara sit on his lap as they watched the tribulation unfold.

Though his hands were doing something else.

The third level appeared: a large tiger nearly 40 meters in length. Nyxthar was tall, but this Tribulation tiger was colossal. However, even in the face of such terror, he used just a single attack to destroy it.

The trend continued four more times until the tribulation came to an end.

However, the moment it was done, Nyxthar was surrounded by void energy, creating a cocoon around him.

"It looks like your subordinates are much more impressive than I expected," Lunara said, brushing her hands through Klaus's hair.

"They are not normal humans like us. Their lineage is much darker and more impressive. So don't be shocked when you meet the other three, who, without a doubt, will be as impressive as this one."

A day later, Nyxthar finished undergoing his evolution.

As Veylor predicted, his form also changed from the metallic demonic look to a more human form after his bloodline awakened fully. Well, he didn't change; he just took on a more human appearance, allowing him to move among people without scaring them.

Obviously, this was the effect of Klaus's blood amplifying Nyxthar's own. He had become a rather handsome fellow.

This made Klaus notice something about his bloodline.

It seemed to give those he gave it to an appearance that could be easily accepted. Undoubtedly, Nyxthar couldn't blend in with his true form.

So, Nyxthar needed a human form like Veylor, who was an elf.

Thankfully, he became more human than most humans, and like his master, he would undoubtedly make the ladies turn and look when he passed.

However, when it was time for battle, his fierce aura and true form would emerge, which would be dangerous to witness.

"Suddenly, I feel like even a cat is more terrifying than you, Nyxthar," Klaus said to Nyxthar, who smiled before walking toward his master.

When he got close, he went down on his knees. "I am at your service, master."

Chapter 827 - 827: Supreme Void Monarch

The Star Monarch bloodline is one that will make the heavens bleed to the core one day.

Millions of years ago, Efad, the lonely elf banished to the outer reaches of the lone forest, awakened a bloodline that drew all kinds of monsters, beasts, and even the two only Phantom Cats in existence.

The Red Tail Immortal Phantom Cat and Black Tail Immortal Phantom Cat became his first two contracted beasts, and that was when the bloodline, which made every immortal, god, supreme, or celestial grow greedy, began to dominate the world.

First, it picks a normal beast that, provided they share destiny with Efad, will rise the moment the bloodline enters their body, regardless of how weak they are.

It was no exaggeration to say that the three great calamities became his followers.

The three great calamities, which were said to play major roles in ushering the universe into new eras, became his obedient followers, making him one of the most feared individuals during his time.

Now, this bloodline has surfaced again, and this time, instead of just taming a great calamity, it went beyond that and even turned a Forbidden Being taken from the forbidden universe into a human who can be related to.

The jagged, terrifying Death Knight who came from the forbidden universe is now a handsome human man who will undoubtedly be liked and related to by everyone.

The heavens don't want to see this. They hate it when a paragon's family keeps expanding. However, this time, they can't do anything.

Nyxthar not only became human but also underwent some great changes that even terrified Klaus. First, his realm moved from the Ascendent to the Void stage and quickly reached level 7.

However, that was to be expected, considering all those who receive his blood undergo sudden changes, mostly involving their cultivation base.

Queen Lunara was at level 4, but after she absorbed the Star Monarch blood, she became a level 9 Void stage being.

The only thing left now for her is to comprehend and transform her Law of Self to the next level before she can break through to the Chaos stage.

But the leap in cultivation base is just one of the changes Nyxthar went through.

The second change was his human form. In this form, he is still Nyxthar, a level 7 Void stage being. However, he isn't the Death Knight. In this form, his scythe changes to a sword, making him a swordsman.

However, even in that form, he is terrifying because his class, which is the Void Reaper class, still applies to him, meaning his control over the void doesn't change at all.

In essence, his human form allows him more mobility. The only downside is his strength, which is several times stronger in his Death Knight form.

But aside from that, he is still very powerful, regardless of which form he takes. He can use his skills in both the human and Death Knight forms.

But while having a human form came in handy, he also received a new form that even Klaus was terrified of.

This made him ask the question of how far the Star Monarch's bloodline would go and what this meant for the future. It was to be noted that his blood was given to him when he was a mere Great Sage.

Now, however, he had become a Transcendent, meaning his bloodline had also strengthened.

But even with the weakened form, Nyxthar has awakened a new form that allows him to harness the Void to a rather terrifying level.

There are various stages, ranks, or levels in the comprehension of energies. Basically, one's comprehension of, say, the lightning element, goes through some stage/levels/ranks.

The first four are the easiest to walk on: the Common, Refine, Realm, and Transformation.

However, after this fourth stage, the fifth, Immunity, comes in.

However, not everyone calls it immunity; others may also call it Resistance. This fifth stage is where real comprehension of the energies starts.

In that stage, there are the Initiate, High, Super, Perfect, Transcendent, Harmony, and Perfect Harmony.

Nyxthar has already reached the High stage in both his human and Death Knight forms. This allowed him to handle the tribulation easily.

However, in the new form that he had awakened, his comprehension is at the perfect stage—something that shouldn't have been possible in an unawakened world.

However, the Star Monarch's bloodline allowed him to hold a perfect comprehension of the Void. And now, for three hours every single day, he can use this form.

It is a form called Supreme Void Monarch. Essentially, he is a monarch of the Void in that form.

"Also, master...I have three powerful skills that can only be used in that form. One of these skills allows me to open the Void and morph weapons from it.

The best part is that this weapon is created directly from the Void, so its impact on my reserve Void essence is limited."

Lunara, seated on Klaus's lap, looks back at him, and the two smile.

"Looks like Veylor wasn't exaggerating when he said you are the strongest of them all," Lunara said.

Nyxthar smiled.

"We are all powerful, my Lady; it's just that I am more connected to the Void than they are. However, when it comes to battle, all five of us are currently powerful."

Nyxthar was also shocked to discover that he now had a human form. That wasn't the case for him millions of years ago.

Shit, even millions of years ago, when ever they want to breakthrough, they had to go back to the forbidden universe to do that.

Now, he can do that and even go as far as interacting with beings in this universe.

After checking his human body, he couldn't help but smile, knowing this was a great way for him to blend in with the humans.

"So, what do you plan now?" Klaus asked.

"Unless the master has a mission for me, I want to return to the Void and continue strengthening my understanding. If and when I am needed, I will come out."

"Don't you want to go back to Earth and make some friends?" Klaus was a little taken aback by his dedication to training.

Nyxthar smiled, "I will, but for now, I want to understand a few things before the awakening arrives."

Klaus, who knew Nyxthar was once a powerful cultivator, knew he just wanted to grow stronger faster so he could fulfil his role as a Doom Guard.

He couldn't blame him.

After a few more chats, he sent him back to the Void, and he and Lunara decided to continue their exploration of Mars.

Meanwhile, back on Earth, Queenie had finished absorbing Klaus's blood, and her bloodline started to awaken...

Chapter 828 - 828: Asura Queen's Rebirth

The Legion of the Asura is as impressive as the Asura god.

She was known long before the rise of the Asura god. At first, she was known as Lady Asura, a swordswoman who wielded her sword with great finesse.

All knew her, both in the Asura race and the outside world. Back when the Asura race was accepted and revered for their strength on the battlefield, Lady Asura was among the best sword users in her race and in most worlds.

Eventually, she became the Asura Princess, who, despite her title, was more focused on improving her swordsmanship. She trained constantly, improved her skills, and did more to protect her race.

It was through that she earned the title of Warrior Princess. She was indeed a warrior by all standards when she met the Asura, who back then was just a swordsman, going around challenging every swordsman he could find.

When she met him, many who knew of their battle and witnessed it had thought she changed Blood Sword's destiny. However, to her, that was the day her life changed.

After meeting with Blood Sword, who would later be known as the Asura god, she returned to her race and started to rise through the ranks.

When the Asura god appeared, she stood by his side through thick and thin with him. Their legend is one of blood and iron.

She became the Asura Queen, but despite her change in status, she never stopped wielding her sword until her last breath during the Blood Wars.

It was a great battle that, to this day, has never seen its equal. The battle that redefined what an Asura is and what they are capable of.

The Asura Queen stood at the pinnacle of combat. Though she died and was branded a forbidden existence, to this day, her unyielding determination and undying spirit still beat in every young girl who picks up the sword.

Today, the same existence whose name still echoes in every corner of the universe is being reborn. The sky has turned red, and blood rain is falling from the red clouds.

It was a sign that the one who commanded the battlefield filled with pools of blood was being reborn.

Panic and cries were everywhere, to the point that Nari had to employ KickinIt and her controversial news channel to broadcast her message to the entire world.

"This is Overlord Nari. I would like to tell everyone out there, whether adults or children, not to panic. The sky turning red is nothing to be afraid of.

If anything, we should be celebrating because Overlord Queenie, the leader of the Overlords, is breaking through a bottleneck.

This is a moment we all should celebrate because when she is done, we will not only have a powerful leader protecting us but also a terrifying one who can face all the dangers in the world and ensure our safety.

So relax and wait for the sky to clear."

Nari wanted to end, but remembering dozens of fortresses still stood around, she smiled and added,

"...also, she isn't alone, so expect some unnatural phenomena like this for the next couple of days. Thank you."

With that, the panic all over the world was quenched.

Back at the grounds where Queenie was undergoing her awakening, blood filled the entire place, and at the center, Queenie was encased in a cocoon of blood.

"She is going to be one terrifying warrior when she wakes up," Nari said, standing kilometers away from it.

Klaus ensured every last of the forests he created remained 10 kilometers apart so they wouldn't disturb each other, even when undergoing tribulations.

"Is it normal to undergo this evolution?" KKKickinIt asked, standing beside Nari. She offered to video the occurrence, but Nari said no.

However, she was allowed to watch.

"This is something special that only those close to Klaus were privileged to know. I'm sorry, but I can't tell you." The previous Nari wouldn't mind her; however, she was lucky the new Nari is much more considerate.

KKKickinIt smiled and nodded in understanding. She was already familiar with Nari's character. Having been a reporter for ten years, she knew a lot about her.

"Though I can say that when she is done, the Tier 11 monsters and beasts hiding won't have an easy time." Nari smiled beautifully. "The time for humans to reclaim peace and safety from these monsters is already approaching."

Three hours after the strange change in weather and the sudden blood rain, the rain stopped, and the cocoon cracked, releasing a powerful blood energy that spread throughout the entire space, even obliterating all obstacles in its path.

However, before it could disturb her sisters, who were still in seclusion, the space warped, and an invisible wall appeared, stopping it.

Pickle Berry and Klaus's mom appeared and stood on a platform 20 km away. Nari and KKKickinIt flew in their direction.

"Mother," Nari said, and Klaus' mom smiled, brushing her hair.

"She is almost done," Pickle Berry said, smiling. "I never knew I would meet someone from the Asura race in this life." The three ladies beside her turned and looked at her for further explanation, but she just smiled.

Knowing she wouldn't say anything more, they focused on the cracked cocoon, which had sustained yet another crack. Then suddenly, it shattered, throwing blood everywhere.

When the dense blood cleared, A goddess-like beauty sat on a crimson bone throne cross-legged, her red hair falling behind her.

Her eyes were red, and a long red sword was hovering beside her. Everything about her was red. Then suddenly, the bone throne started to rise off the ground.

When it was off the ground by a meter, the blood on the ground turned into a large skull and moved, hovering behind Queenie.

Looking from 20 km away, every last one of the four ladies watching shuddered when the queen turned her gaze in their direction.

"Well, you didn't lie, Overlord Nari; she is indeed terrifying," KKKickinIt said, watching as the throne and skull vanished.

Queen, on her throne, moved, and in an instant, she was in front of the four ladies.

"Sorry for scaring you, ladies," Queenie said with a smile, but the ladies didn't smile. Instead, their bodies shuddered even more.

"Big sister, do something about your eyes. They look like you want to kill us."

Queenie smiled and then closed her eyes. When she opened them again, though they were still red, the effect was gone.

That was the Asura gaze, a chilling sight that all those who stared into it would feel their willpower suppressed and their fear multiplied.

"Sorry, ladies," Queenie said again, smiling...

"I need to leave. See you around." KKKickinIt, staring at her phone, asked to leave. Queenie studied her for a second and then nodded.

After she left in her jet, Klaus' mom turned to Queenie.

"How are you feeling?" she asked.

Chapter 829 - 829: Suspicions

"Nari said Queenie just completed her bloodline awakening," Lunara said, sitting on Klaus's lap as he massaged her ass.

They are still on Mars.

"So they don't want to tell me, huh? Are they worried I'll abandon everything here and rush back?" Klaus shook his head, a smile playing on his lips.

"They know you, Klaus. Knowing they started their awakening will make you want to go and support them. They even asked me not to tell you, but I figured you should know.

And if they need help, don't even think about going. I will do that on your behalf. After all, I can easily teleport there and back."

Klaus just smirked and lifted her into his arms. Then he flew away as they began their exploration. He wanted to understand the topography of Mars, so since he had nothing else to do, he and Lunara started exploring.

Veylor had already told him Nirvana and Fury were with him, so he wasn't really worried. Not that he had to worry...

They are his flame elements that gained intelligence, so he could even leave them on Mars and go back to Earth, and they would be fine.

The only way they would die is if he dies. So basically, he has two children who would die with him. A rather romantic death if you ask me... Lol.

While Klaus and Lunara continued to explore Mars, back on Earth, Queenie, Nari, Pickle Berry, and Klaus's mom were seated under a tree, drinking.

"Why are you all treating me like a baby? I am ten, okay? I should drink the good stuff some," Pickle Berry said, holding her fruit juice in a rather tall glass.

"Kids should drink only fruit juice. When you turn 16, you can have the good stuff," Klaus's mom said, causing the two ladies to laugh.

"I guess I will tell big brother when he returns. You three are bullying me, especially you, mother," Klaus's mom brushed her hair, smiling.

"Don't worry, after eating more cores, you'll become a big lady."

"No, I don't like cores. I just want big brother's blood. That one is more delicious." Though Klaus had yet to give her his blood, she had drunk loads of it in their past life, and that was when his bloodline wasn't even the Star Monarch.

So, she wanted to have a taste of this one, but Klaus told her to grow a little, worried the power behind the blood couldn't be handled by her. Now, she was akin to a Great Sage, so she was qualified to drink it.

"Klaus said he would bring your Mom along when he comes. Maybe she will persuade you to eat some core," Nari said, but Pickle Berry just shook her head.

"I won't eat."

They tried to persuade her for a few minutes, but she was determined not to eat the core. They just let her have her way. Though they knew that if Klaus were to tell her to do it, she would gladly obey.

This showed just how much she liked her brother more than anyone else.

"So, your mother has now become your sister, huh?" Klaus's mom asked, staring at Queenie. Being asked such a question made the Asura Queen blush.

Nari had already told her everything, so she was up-to-date on what was happening in her son's harem. Not that she wouldn't find out when they returned, but getting ahead of it would help her prepare well.

"Mother always had a thing for him, so I guess she couldn't hold herself back anymore and went for what she wanted," Queenie said through her blush.

Nari used her shoulder to push Queenie, making Queenie turn and look at her. "I want to watch when you, big sister Lunara, and big sister Ohema are doing the... You know..."

"Pervert," Queenie said, but she couldn't stop her blush.

Klaus's mom just smiled, knowing this was something the wives of her son should debate. She didn't want to poke her nose into it... for now.

However, while she was smiling at them, something else was running through her mind—something she never expected to feel...

"I am a little concerned about that news lady who left earlier. Don't you ladies think there is something suspicious about how she just left?" she asked, stopping Queenie and Nari from their shameless banter.

"Indeed. I saw her look at her phone and frown. Though it was just a few moments, I caught it. And it was after that that she left. You don't think she is in trouble?" Pickle Berry surprisingly said.

"Unless perhaps she found herself in a situation involving a Void stage being, she will be fine. After all, Klaus said she is even stronger than the Overlords, based on her true aura."

Klaus's mom and Pickle Berry nodded.

"It's weird, now that I think about it, even after becoming a Void stage expert, I couldn't even sense her True form and cultivation.

It was like she was just a Great Sage human; however, Klaus said she was an Ascendant sitting at the peak. But that can't be right. I couldn't sense her cultivation base even as a Peak Void Stage being.

Just who is KKKickinIt?" Nari asked.

"Whoever she is, I have a feeling she's someone with a powerful background. However, we aren't aware of any organization or family on Earth that can be that powerful. So, where is she from, or who is she, to be more precise?"

Queenie quickly spread her senses, which can move several miles away. However, she couldn't catch anything.

KKKickinIt left a few minutes ago, so even with her jet, she couldn't have gone too far, and now that she is at the peak of the Void stage, Queenie has the sensing range that could sense her.

But miraculously, she wasn't in her sensing range, which puzzled her.

"Even the plane she was traveling back on is gone. It was like she was never here." They all became puzzled.

The fact that she suddenly left was a sign that something was going on. However, now, they can't figure it out, so they can only wait for her to come back.

"Let's just forget that for now. Klaus will be back in a month or two. Knowing him, he'll be able to figure something out."

Meanwhile, while the four ladies were wondering about so many things, the person in question stood in front of a small mountain in a remote location in the Equatorial Union, the former Africa, before the apocalypse.

After ensuring she was alone, she pressed her hand on the mountain, and like she was never there, her figure vanished, leaving not even an aura.

There wasn't even a sigh that she had been there. Her presence was gone, as if she were away from Earth.

This suggests something profound was at play. But like Queenie said, he will figure something out when Klaus returns.

**

A day passed after Queenie's awakening. A few hours later, the second awakening started. This time, it was Lucy, the Queen of Vine.

This time, instead of blood rain and red skies, a forest of vines appeared, signalling the awakening of the Queen of Vine, who once dominated the universe.

Chapter 830 - 830: Rebirth of The Queen Of Vine (1)

When Fruity, Klaus's 4th incarnation, met the Vine Queen and her sister, the Ice Queen, again, they were only at the Early Immortal stage; however, they could take on even multiple True Immortals.

It was something very overpowered by the standards of immortals.

It was true that paragons could kill immortals while five realms beneath them could; however, for normal people like the Queen of Vine and the Ice Queen to be able to kill two realms above their own was something worth admiring.

Back then, their names were on every hit list, for when it was found out they helped a Paragon hide his family, everyone wanted them dead.

However, they managed to stay alive until the renegade monk found them.

In truth, they managed to stay alive because of two things. The first was the Ice Queen Domain. It was a domain of ice so chilling that even True Immortals couldn't resist.

The second was the Vine Queen Domain.

This domain was the bane of most immortals back in the Renegade era. It was said that those caught within would never see the light of day unless their strength was at the peak of the True Immortal stage or the early King Immortal stage.

Back then, the two sisters traveled billions of light years, evading one trap after another, all to reconnect with their beloved.

Now on Earth, Lucy, the incarnation of the Queen of Vine, was gazing at the cloud that was forming, a clear sign that her tribulation was coming.

"Big brother was right; locking their cultivation base and letting them absorb loads of spiritual energy was the right thing to do," Pickle Berry said, smiling.

The fact that every last one of his ladies and friends had been made to absorb thousands of Tier 10 beast cores shows that Klaus had a foresight nobody could boast of.

Klaus used a formation he learned from Efad, his ninth incarnation, to help his ladies and friends absorb the cores easily.

And thanks to his blood, he took a Void stage expert from level 1 to level 7 and has now taken a Sovereign, who was at the peak, to the Ascendant stage, jumping an entire realm.

Lucy was at the peak of the Sovereign stage when Klaus locked her cultivation base, but thanks to his blood, she had now reached the Ascendant stage and invoked an Ascendant-level tribulation.

"Would she be okay?" Klaus' mom asked, looking worried as she stared at the thick cloud forming.

Queenie and Nari, who were holding her hands on both sides, smiled when they heard her. Pickle Berry sat on her lap.

"She will be fine. Klaus said we should trust her because she is not an ordinary human. So you don't have to worry," Nari assured the worried mother, who wanted to see her daughter-in-law safe.

Thankfully, Nari's words calmed her down.

Lucy stood there watching the cloud when suddenly, her vision darkened. She then appeared in a thick forest. The forest was so dense that she couldn't see the sky, stars, sun, or moon.

Lucy gazed around for a few minutes before she stopped. She turned back, and that was when she met the gaze of a beautiful green-haired woman with green eyes, who had a crown made of leaves on her head.

She looked exactly like Lucy, but much more mature and gorgeous.

"I have been waiting for long," the Queen of Vine said with a smile. She flew down and stopped when she was just a step away from Lucy.

"You are me," Lucy said, no ounce of doubt in her voice.

"Indeed. I am you, and you are me... we are the same," the Queen of Vine responded.

"Why am I here?" Lucy asked.

"To give you this," the Queen of Vine extended her hand, and a golden key appeared. The moment Lucy's eyes landed on it, a smile appeared on her face without her even knowing.

She took the key and pressed it to her forehead. The key dissolved into her forehead.

"Remember, when the time comes and all hope is lost, I will come one last time. But for now, show the heavens that the wife of a paragon is made of."

The queen moved and hugged Lucy. Her vision returned with a powerful blast of energy, raising thick vines from the ground.

A spear appeared in her grip, and, gazing coldly at the sky, a smirk tugged at her lips. Perhaps watching this, the heavens took offense, so they hastened their preparation, causing the clouds to part and a large finger to appear.

The judgment finger appeared and started moving toward Lucy, bringing with it great pressure. However, Lucy stood there nonchalantly.

She merely raised her spear when the finger drew close.

"Vines of Judgment."

The vines that were snaking around her formed into a thick finger, almost mocking the Finger of Judgment.

The Vines of Judgment moved and pierced through the finger of judgment, destroying it in a single move.

The heavens took offense again, and this time, a large sword appeared. It wasn't the judgment sword, but it was colossal and imposing.

Lucy casually spun the spear in her grip and stabbed it into the ground, causing a large vine, even bigger than the sword, to appear.

It snaked through the air and struck the sword, dragging it into the ground. Just like that, Lucy passed the second level, leaving her with only five more to go.

However, looking at her expression, she wasn't worried at all. Even when thousands of humanoids and beasts appeared, she stood at the same spot and merely commanded the vines to do the killing.

There was a reason she was known as the Queen of Vines. The vines listened to her regardless of how powerful they were.

Legend even has it that she once commanded the Devouring Immortal Vine, one of the seven immortal plants.

Her nature was that of a vine whisperer. They listen to her.

So, without even putting much effort into her attacks, she continues to command the vines, and they are doing her bidding.

And this was when she hadn't even awakened her bloodline.
