110 CHAPTER 110

"I thought it weird back then but if you actually think about it all makes sense now" he pressed on, dragging my mind back to the fact that I had been drugged. 1

"I mean no disrespect Luna but you should think about it, ordinary wolves rarely ever pass out especially from being drugged but someone with powers such as yours passed out so easily. You didn't even sense the danger in the drink. It can only mean one thing" he paused as if wanting me to arrive at the conclusion myself.

"The triplets are draining me, aren't they?" I didn't want to admit but with the facts laid out so thickly before me, I couldn't dodge it anymore.

"Thats the only way, your power is sustaining them, that's what made you vulnerable to such petty tricks'"

"How do you know i was drugged" suspicion flickered through my mind

"While Eros went on a rampage, some of us did our assignments" he shrugged casually

"Okay." words suddenly dried up in my mouths, while he did have a point i knew very much what it meant to be a child chosen by destiny, living not for yourself but for the heavy weight placed on your shoulders, it all felt too much and it wasn't a life i wanted for them.

My hands wrapped around my stomach, I was going to protect them for as long as I could.

They were going to grow up exceedingly happy and with minimal worries. So what if they were destined to be the most powerful beings in Goth? As far as I was concerned they would forever remain my babies, and i didnt give two shits what anyone thought.

Anyone that wanted to take them would have to go through me first, with that i steeled my resolve, "I would love to be alone Sage" I said, eyes locked on his, daring him to challenge me.

"I understand if you need time to process all this Luna," he said stiffly, eyes locked on mine, the tension in the room rose, I clenched my fists,, they could burn in hell with whatever fake prophecy they had, if fate needed someone to do its dirty work so badly, it could either do it itself or be my guest and choose someone else.

Knock.

Good. Eros was back.

The door strained open, followed by a cheerful voice which cut through the tension, "Aell— oh hey, Sage. Ummm why do I feel like I'm interrupting something here"

"No, Sage here was just leaving" I gritted out

His shoulders sagged, he lowered his eyes in submission, then with a bow, "Of course Luna. But please think of all I've said, you won't regret it." he turned and walked out the door without bothering to glance back.

"Okay, Spill what was all that weird energy about" Brianne asked hands folded beneath her breast

"What energy?"

"Stop playing dumb. It felt like I just stepped into a cold war front, you should have seen the chills that formed on my back just from stepping into the room. Something is abnormal" She insisted.

"Wow. And that is just how little she cares about me, haven't seen me in days and she couldn't even be bothered to fake concern for her lost and found friend" My eyes turned misty, coupled with the myriad of emotions i was feeling it wasn't difficult to burst into a well calculated tears.

"Huh. No no no, I came because I was so worried, I'm sorry please don't cry, Aella." she panicked looking lost,

I bawled even harder, finally giving way to my emotions, losing control of the tears, "I'm so sorry, please you're scaring me now. Please stop crying, I'll do anything" She looked like she was going into tears anytime, her face flustered, eyes wide with confusion.

A smile made its way to my lips, seeing her all flustered and lost was quite adorable, "Hug" i opened my arms, she dove right in. I melted into her, streaks of tears still strolling down my eyes.

A while later i pulled out of the hug, "Feeling better" she asked

"Yeah," I nodded feeling refreshed. Okay, that was unexpected,

"Good, you had me scared for a minute"

A teasing smile made its way to my lips, "who would have thought that you didn't know how to deal with a crying wolf"

"You try handling a crying pregnant wolf. And in my defence I freaked out. Who just starts bawling out of nowhere" she sounded aggrieved.

I shrugged, "Not my fault. Hormones"

"Tell me about it she grumbled"

"Where is Eros?" I finally asked.

She scrunched her face, "Had to force him to freshen up and at least look presentable after Sage kicked him out. Kay is with him now."

"Oh," my face fell

"And here she is complaining about me not missing her, when it's so obvious that all she want is her mate": Brianne scoffed,

"Sorry, I missed you. All of you, I just—"

"I understand," she cut me off, her face suddenly turning remorseful.

"I'm so sorry, Aels, I wasn't there when you needed me the most. I deserved to be the punished" She suddenly went on her knees head lowered

"Brianne, don't be ridiculous, stand"

She ignored, like she didn't hear, "Punish me Luna" she said adamantly

"I don't blame you, there's no way you could have known. Stand up Brianne, " my voice turned stern "its not a request Brianne, Stand."

She stood stiffly, head still bowed

"Look at me" she raised her head slowly, her eyes wet and filled with guilt.

"Feeling bad cant change what happened besides am i not fine now? Nothing happened right?"

Her jaw tightened, "If I had done my job properly, you wouldn't even be here taking IV drips, Alpha won't need to be pressured into taking a shower after what feels like forever. I should have listened to my instinct and floored that little twat back then" she looked regretful.

"Right, my special guest—Karen. Tell me I saved her and she's still alive?"