155 CHAPTER 155

Eros 1

The noisy surroundings quietened immediately, everyone scrambling for safety.

Looking up with a soft chuckle, I scoffed. "Show off, stop scaring my pack, Aragon" I yelled at him

He probably heard me, he began twirling in the sky, showing off his meagre flying skills.

"Aragon? I thought Luna's dragon was named Antares? As in the fiance that almost married her?"

"Dummy." I scoffed and walked off not bothering to reply.

"Come on, answer me, I'm genuinely curious." He chased after me. Realizing he was on our side, the pack members returned back to their activities, some still staring while most were too tense to remain at a place.

"Stop bugging me." I said coldly

"No. That won't do, your kid literally turned me pink, you owe me this." He grumbled.

"She loves you."

"And I love you too, you don't see me painting you pink."

"Ew" I fake retched, "I'm not gay"

"I can teach you the ropes" he wigged his brows suggestively latching onto my arm

"Get off me pest" I tried snatching my hand back.

"Nope. You're stuck with me." He said proudly.

I groaned, "fine, I'll talk, get off me."

"See. That wasn't so hard."

I rolled my eyes, "if only you'd paid attention I won't have to be in this situation right now."

"That's why I'm your beta" he said smugly, "I have Beta privileges"

"That's not a thing," I said bluntly.

"It is now." He shrugged.

"Stop making shit up and enforcing them on me"

"It's all love, Alpha. There's plenty more to pass around."

"Ew. No, hard pass."

"Well..." he trailed off.

"Right. Antares is the human of Aragon. Just like my wolf is Eden and yours is—"

"Xenos" he completed.

"You're not so dumb after all"

"Erossss" he groaned. "But he seems to be mostly a dragon rather than human."

"Yeah the human side is equivalent to our wolf side. He was only able to transform after reaching a certain level of power." I explained.

"Makes more sense now."

"Of course it does, I'm the one explaining."

He scoffed but didn't respond.

Everyone was already waiting as we got to the borders, we went straight to the front lines to see that Eros had landed.

The warriors all looked at him with fascination and reverence, Aella seemed to be discussing something with him. Well they were a two man team.

"Nice of you to finally join the party Alpha" Richard snickered.

I shrugged, "Things happened."

"Yeah right"

"Is everyone here?" My voice boomed, louder now mixed with Eden's

"More or less" Asher replies, "Although the Alpha of the moonlight pack seems to have been missing for a while now."

"Crux" I grunted,

"What did they expect from the coward? He's literally a wimp" Eden scoffed.

"Yeah. In fact Alpha Crux hasn't been seen since the plans began, it seems he has no intention of joining."

"His business. Besides he has nothing to offer, his pack has been burned to the ground by the witch, it's a wonder how he survived."

"He's a kid turned Alpha" Drake spoke up, voice cold.

"Well, that's harsh, especially considering it's your Luna's pack," Savannah said with a smirk tugging at her lips.

"Which is why I didn't raze it to the ground myself." I said matter of factly. "It's a pity the previous Alpha did not find someone better to hand his pack over to."

While my words were harsh, they were true. A fact that everyone here knew all too well. Once upon a time, moonlight and Brightmoon stood at par but with each passing transfer of power they kept falling till they could barely stand against my pack. And now they've been run to the ground by a witch and a child. Well that's that.

"Well, what do you say Alpha, let's kick start this party?" Savannah grinned, her body brimming with energy and excitement, not just her, all the Alpha's were brimming.

I smiled, "Who am I to say no to such a kind invitation? That would be quite ungentlemanly will it not?"

"Mmm, are we doing this or what?" Drake grumbled swinging an axe I just noticed.

"Easy there tiger. First, gather everyone around."

Soon, the once noisy setting was engulfed in a pin drop of silence all waiting for what I had to say. Aella was sitting atop Aragon now, eyes fixed on me too.

I climbed the platform, letting my gaze fall on everyone present, "Warriors of the alliance, we all know why we have gathered today?"

"Yes Alpha" they thundered.

"Good. Then you must realize that this is a battle with things you don't understand, it is not a battle for territory nor a battle between packs, it is a battle between this alliance against witches, rogues and demons enhanced by witch powers and probably some other things. It will not be pretty." I let my words sink in then continued.

"But we will charge ahead, the witch thinks she can destroy us all, she thinks she's stronger. But we will fight to protect, we will fight to serve, not amongst ourselves but together, everyone here is your ally, you will help everyone and anyone you can, you will protect the weak and the fallen, do not be ashamed to gang up two against one if necessary, fight like your lives depend on it, cause it does, we fight to protect our elderly and our children, we fight to protect our homes, because no one has the right to take that from us."

I looked at all their faces and continued, "This is not child's play, if you are afraid then you should drop out no one will stop you, but once you cross those borders there will be no turning back, it's either kill or be killed, there will be no retreat or surrender, you will be leaving with the consciousness that you may never return, never see your family again, but you will be damn well sure that you are protecting them. I will ask this once, does anyone wish to drop?"

Silence. They all looked at me with resolution.

My lips spread into a wide smile, "Good. Are you afraid?"

"No Alpha." They thundered.

"Let us slay the witch that thinks she can threaten our families. Who's with me?"

"Kill the witch, burn their troops" they chorused vigorously.

"Let's move out" I roared.

"Kill the witch,"

"Burn their troops"