Aella's Pov 1

The northern packs, the same place rumored to house beings we've only heard of as tales, wicked beings of the night.

"You can't be serious" I muttered, memories of the stories we'd been told about them flashed through my brain.

Creatures of the night that could only survive by preying on blood, rumored to be destroyers of every and anything, immortals but could be killed by a wolf's venom. Also a deadly opponent of wolves. This absolutely could not happen.

I can't let it happen

"I'm serious," he huffed, "we need as many hands as we can get, we can't handle the witch on our own, some of the Alpha's didn't trust my words"

"We can convince them"

"While time runs and Ursa gets even closer to achieving her goals? I'd rather take my chances" he insisted

"The northern lands are harsh, inhabited by rogues, Vampires, dwarves, Goblins, gnomes, even the survivors of the Lost Lycan clans might be there."

"I'm aware" he nodded, "but the threat Ursa holds is not something that concerns one race alone, it concerns the whole of Goth and if I'm not wrong, unless they want to see their entire family devoured they would join hands with us."

"It's too dangerous" I muttered, feeling my fear rise, "I'm scared for you" I whispered, I knew he was right. This journey wouldn't be easy, one wrong misstep and I would lose him, "I don't want to lose you" I could feel tears well up in my eyes.

"You won't, Promise"

"I want to come"

"NO!" He exclaimed, "it's too dangerous"

"I can take care of myself"

"I know, but I can't have you taking such risks"

"And you forget that the prophecy is about me, my entire life is a risk" I insisted.

"Which is why you should stay here, take care of the pack, and train with Aragon. I thought you were meant to practice your form, even help Lilith master her powers too"

I narrowed my eyes, okay he got me there, "I'll find away around all these, I'm coming with you"

"Don't be stubborn" he groaned, pinching his forehead.

"You think I'm being stubborn?" I glared at him, "I'm coming with you, the faster you accept that fact, the better for us" I snarled.

"I can't change your mind?" He sighed in resignation.

"No,I..." the world blurred, the last thing I heard was Eros calling my name, his voice sounding all panicky.

"Congratulations Alpha" loud cheers rang around me,

"Shhhh, you're disturbing her, in fact get out, all of you" I heard Eros's voice.

"Don't be a kill joy Alpha, we'll reduce our voice" that sounded like Kay

"Yeah, this is a joyous occasion, let us celebrate" Brianne chirped.

"Celebrate outside or when my mate is awake, for now. Get Out" Eros insisted

"Spoil sport"

"Joy killer"

Feets moved as they murmured, a door opened and closed and soon the room was plunged into silence.

What the hell was going on, my eyes blinked open "ahh" I groaned, a bright light forcing me to shut it instantly

"Baby girl" Eros quickly rushed beside me, "how are you feeling?" He grabbed my hand.

I opened my eyes again, this time the lights were dimmer.

I tried to sit up, a hand pressed me down, "no, lie down. Rest a bit more." His eyes shone brightly.

Weird. "What happened?" My throat was parched, "water" I stretched out my hands.

He quickly got a glass, and ignoring my outstretched arm, he fed me directly, before keeping back the cup after I was done.

"What happened?" Last I remember we were talking before everything went dark.

"You fainted." He smiled,

"I fainted?" I scrunched my face, "weird, that has never happened. How long have I been out?" I wondered.

"Not long, just a few hours" he said, the grin on his face getting wider by the minute.

"Okay, what's going on? You've been acting weird since I got up"

"Weird or happy?"

"Either ways, something is still off, I fainted and you haven't even mentioned what's wrong with me"

"There's nothing wrong with you" he smiled, "everything is perfect, very perfect actually"

"Okay, you're starting to creep me out" I glared at him, "Ava, any idea what might be wrong with Eros? Did he hurt his head while I was out?"

But all that greeted me was silence, she didn't respond. "Ava, Ava," I called,

"Stop talking to me" she snapped and shut me out.

"Drama Queen" I rolled my eyes.

"What's going on?" I could hear excited cheers outside, all clamouring at the door.

"Ahh...those impatient clowns" he slapped his forehead.

"Okay doll, I'm going to need you to close your eyes"

"Why? You're starting to freak me out," I muttered, feeling uneasy.

His lips curled, "Just trust me"

"Alright" I closed my eyes, my heart beat rising from the anticipation.

"Give me your hands" I heard his voice beside me.

"Okayy, that was fast," I could feel him behind me, his body heat warming me up, fast.

He took my hand, placed them on my tummy, "we have an addition to the family"

"Huh?" My eyes flew open, my brain went blank for a moment, "I have a life growing in me?"

The door burst open, figures barged in, I could barely register who or what was going on.

I just sat, dazed and just one question ran through my head.

How the Fuck was I pregnant?
