

THE DIVORCE PRESCRIPTION

Chapter 576

Declan said coldly, "Take Ewan and leave. I don't want to see either of you again." Then, he turned on his heel and walked away.

Hailey called out, "Declan!"

He paused for a brief second.

Just then, Stella ran up and grabbed Declan's arm. "Declan, why did you come outside?"

She glanced at Hailey and Ewan, then asked, "Declan, do you know them?"

Declan's lips moved imperceptibly, then said indifferently, "No."

Stella smiled brightly. "Then let's go back inside. My dad is here. He was asking about you earlier."

Declan nodded. "Alright."

He walked away with Stella.

Hailey stood frozen, her teary eyes blurring as she watched him disappear with another young woman.

Ewan got up and scoffed. "Hailey, did you see that? This is the man you like. He doesn't care about you at all. He broke your heart. He's a terrible person you should just forget about."

Hailey turned to him. "Declan's a terrible person? And what about you? Are you one?"

Ewan stammered, "I..."

Without waiting for him to finish, Hailey turned and walked away.

Ewan quickly grabbed her arm. "It's late. It's dangerous for a young woman to go home alone. Get in the car. I'll take you home."

Hailey tried to shake him off. "I don't need you to send him home."

However, Ewan didn't listen. He forced her into his car and drove off.

Meanwhile, Declan had returned. He watched as the sports car disappeared from his view, his gaze darkening.

He had said those things on purpose.

From the moment he stepped into this world, he and Hailey were never meant to be.

She was like a delicate rose, like an untainted gem-pure and untouched by the filth of reality.

But he was different.

There

was

even future for them, so it to end things before they

. He had no choice but to steel his heart and push but away.

Stella walked up to him. "Declan, do you like that young woman?" Declan said flatly, "No."

"Liar. You likes

you can see it

eyes. You like her," Stella remarked.

side it. When a t belongs to swm opet

Declan didn't respond. He simply stepped past her, intending to leave.

Stella suddenly said, "Declan, since you broke up with her, why don't we be together? I like you!"

Declan glanced at her. "Don't waste your time on me. I'll never like you."

Then, he walked away.

"Declan!"

Stella stomped her foot in frustration.

She had fallen for him at first sight, and she wasn't planning to give up.

That night, Hailey returned home and cried under her blanket for a long, long time.

Every time she thought about the things knives carving into her hear.net clan had said, it felt I t belongs to net

The next morning, she woke up with a fever.