*g good sleep, I searched for Freya beside me but she wasn't there. I looked at the part where she was supposed to be sleeping and found it really empty. Oh, right. I just slept t his morning after we made love. A smile curved onto my lips because I remembered wh at she told me before I got into my slumber. I got up from bed and went to the bathroom. Everything was dry so I thoug ht it was already noon, time for lunch and Freya would be back from training soon.

I rushed to my bath and got myself ready for the day. I had to talk to dad, Mr. and Mrs. Collins will be there too because I told them that they would be called to King's office that noon. It would be good if Freya was there also. Oh, I could still smell her on me and I liked it. I went out of the bathroom after I was done and got dressed before I walked out of our bedroom and went to see dad.

"Camila, where's Freya?" I asked when I saw her coming out of dad's office.

"She's inside his highness," she replied and I nodded, so I got in after I knocked and wa s permitted to enter. Freya was sitting on the couch with her parents.

“You haven’t cleaned yourself yet,” I said when I sat beside her and gave her a kiss. “Dad, let her freshen up first.”

“That’s what we have been telling her, son.” he replied, so I looked at her and she was smiling.

“Go, baby. You are important in this conversation, so we won’t leave you behind,” I said, and she stood up. I shook my head before I mind linked the kitchen to prepare us for our dinner. “Let’s have our lunch here, dad.” I said and he nodded.

“I already mind linked Calvin, James and Rapha. They will be here soon.” he said. I looked at Freya’s parents and greeted them. They are now my parents too, so I had to show respect to them even if it had to be the other way around. “What made you wake up this late?” the king asked.

“I just got to sleep this morning. I watched my mate in her sleep.” I replied.

“Is she dreaming?” Rica asked.

“Does it happen at your home too?” I asked,

“The whole time she was with us, at least once a year she had nightmares. But I don’t think that’s the case.”

“What do you mean?” dad asked this time.

“We think that it was one of her memories. It haunts her so she won’t forget?” Lucas replied,

“I think it was one of her memories too. The moment she woke up, she also forgot about it but the feeling was still there.” I told them,

“Maybe she was trying to forget them herself.” It was dad, so we looked at him. “It may be too painful for her. That’s why she tries to forget about it, but the incident keeps on reminding her and tries to let her know about her past.”

“She shouldn’t try to forget it so we will be able to know the truth behind the slaughter in her entire pack “I looked at Lucas, curiously “She’s the daughter of the Alpha and Luna of the Howlers Pack” she added I was thinking that it was her scent that I had smelled from

“She had the same scent that I smelled before, dad. No, let me change that, it was her. I ’m sure of it now.” I informed them before someone knocked and got in. Dad motioned them to get it down,

“Now, Matteo, what is this about the scent?” Dad asked again,

“She’s the woman I smelled years ago.” I told them,

“Who?” Calvin asked, as James and Rapha had a confused look on their faces as well.

“Freya, she’s the mate that I scented from 9 years ago.” I repeated.

“How can it be possible? How could she be here at that time?” he asked again, “She’s from the Howlers Pack.” I answered, and then I told them what my mate told me when I saw her outside the receiving room last night.

“If she was indeed a child at that time, then she would not have been allowed to get in here. But why did no one tell us about them visiting?” Rapha said,

“So I won’t be able to find my mate.” I told them and they were all silent. “Let’s not inform Freya about this yet, I am worried that she will try to regain her memory. I saw her have that dream every night and you don’t know what she looks like. It breaks my heart that I didn’t sleep at all so I could look out for her when she started to have that dream” I added.

“Are you sure about that, son?” Dad asked and I nodded. It would be better this way I am sure that she will force herself to remember so we will be able to find out who her parents had a talk with when they visited the pack would find out about her and do something to harm her.” I told them and they all nodded . “I want us to focus on finding out the one behind the slaughter of the Howlers Pack, and the one that the Alpha and Luna had a talk with, here in the palace.”

“It would be easier if the princess would remember everything, she would be able to tell us what we needed to know to get the result as soon as possible.” James replied. “But I understand that it was hard for her and for you, so all we needed to do was to protect her while she was in the process of remembering her past,” he added.

“By the way, you still haven’t smelled her, right?” I asked and they all shook their heads, so I sighed in relief.

“Why?” Rica asked,

“If the one who saw them here before remembered her scent, then that may cause her harm. It’s a good thing that I was the only one who could smell her at the moment.” I answered, “Train Clay and Alec, I want them to look after Freya.” I told my friends.

“Are you sure about that?” Calvin asked,

“I am confident that—” I was about to answer but we heard a knock and Freya emerged, smiling. I smiled at her and motioned her to sit beside me,

“What are you discussing?” she asked,

“I was telling Calvin and James to start training Clay and Alec. I want them to look after you,”

“Are you sure about that?” she asked with a creased forehead and Calvin laughed,

“Is there something funny?” I asked and saw dad and Rapha staring at me, while James was grinning

“You are super jealous over a little thing and you know Clay was, you know, but you still want him to train and protect me?” It was Freya. She looked really confused.

“I am confident that you only want me, baby.” I replied and she rolled her eyes at me, which made everyone laugh.

“Why do I have a feeling that something was going on and I was not allowed to know?” she asked after. Is there anything that I can hide from her?
