Third Person

“Who was behind the kidnapping?” James asked one of the rogues. He was pissed that he had to do the interrogation since all he wanted was to rip their throats for taking Camilla. “Get the two others,” he told the guard after hearing nothing from the rogue. It was even smirking at him, which pissed him even more.

“You won’t get anything from us,” the rogue said after the guard came back with the other two. Before he could say anything, Rapha came in.

“You still didn’t get anything?” he asked.

“Yeah, why do we still need to interrogate them? Can we just kill them and attack the cabin?” he asked angrily.

“You know that the king and prince didn’t want that. As much as possible, they wanted to give everyone a chance to live.” Rapha replied, “And the princess is worried about us going in there knowing nothing.” he added.

“I don’t understand why they had to show compassion to these rascals when they did nothing but trouble to the palace and the entire kingdom.” James replied before he looked at the rogue he was interrogating. “If Calvin was here, I’m sure that they would all be dead by now. He won’t let these wretched rogues step on our territory.”

“Let me handle them,” Rapha said afterwards,

“Are you sure? You know that the Prince wanted to interrogate them and not to bury them.” James replied,

“I am an old beast, I am more patient than you.”

“Yeah, right. Like I believe that,” James said before he stepped aside to make way for him.

“Have you talked to this one?”

“Yes and didn’t get anything. He doesn’t talk at all.”

“OK.” Rapha said before he ripped the rogue’s throat. The other two were shocked and were now in fear. They never thought that he would kill him just like that. “How about those two?” Rapha asked again,

“No, I just called them here.” James replied and smiled internally when he saw the rogues trembling in fear.

“I see,” Rapha replied.

“If you want to know something, you have to ask nicely.” he added and looked at the rogues again and smiled.

“Can you tell me if Camilla was still in the cabin?” the two rogues nodded their heads. “What are you going to do to her?”

“We don’t know, that guy over there just wants us to guard her there.” one of the rogues answered,

“Why would you follow him? Is he your leader?”

“He threatened me with my human mate. He said he’d kill her if I didn’t do everything he told me.” the rogue answered, “but he talked to someone else who I think was his boss.”

“Why would you say that?”

“Because he often said that to us. That if our boss finds out that we did what we had been told properly, he will reward us greatly.”

“Where is this boss that you are talking about?” Rapha asked, curiously. He didn’t want to believe in everything he was telling him, but he was not ignoring the possibility that it was all true.

“Maybe in the palace,” the other said,

“Why would he be here?” James asked angrily.

“Because he is a Lycan.” the two replied, “You don’t know anything yet?” they asked in unison again and Rapha and James looked at each other.

“Have you seen him?” Rapha asked.

“No, but that guy over there always tells us that we will be living in the palace once we succeed. That our boss sees and knows everything the king was doing.” the other rogue replied, “The Lycan has contracted a lot of rogues and promised everything, even having the rank once he becomes royal.”

“Guard!” Rapha called out, “Bring them to the secret cell. Make sure that nothing happens to them and no one in the palace should know that they are here.” he continued,

“Yes, my Lord,” the guard replied,

“Dispose this body and, just like those two, no one needs to know about them.” Rapha added and left with James. He thought that it was essential for Freya to remember who her parents had a talk with when she was young. He had a feeling that the rogues referring to was the same as the one they faced before.

Having been able to have some information that could support the rogues’ testimonies, he was sure that they were telling the truth. “Do you think that the Lycan they were referring to is the same as the Lycan that the Howlers Pack Alp ha and Luna had a talk to before?” James asked and he nodded. “Me too. So we need to talk to the “Yes, and we need to do it now while we rescue Camilla. I didn’t want to think that something might happen to her since we caught 3 of the rogues that were supposed to be guarding her. I am worried that whoever that Lycan was, will find out that we had already found where she had been taken and transfer to a different location, or worse, kill her.” Rapha replied anxiously.

Meanwhile, Camilla was in the cabin and started to worry about her life. She tried to hurt herself when she was conscious on the way to leave some of her blood. She was thinking that if someone passed through that way, they would be able to smell her scent and start looking for her. When they get into the cabin, she pretends to be unconscious so she will be able to hear anything or get some information if possible, then hope that she will be able to make it alive.

She was worried about Alec, whom she knew was very worried and furious by that time. She can't do anything about it but promises herself to keep herself alive as long as she can until help arrives. That's what Freya always tells her. So, even if she could fight, she would not try to do it since she knew that she was outnumbered and they were rogues who killed for fun. She didn't want to take the risk of provoking them and ended up being beaten up by them. All she did was relax and rest. Stay alert at all times and keep her senses sharp as much as possible. She had to survive, that's what she was telling herself to keep mentally fine.

'I'm sorry, Alec. I know that you are worried right now, but I am holding on. Please come for me...' she told herself.

"Until when is she going to sleep?" the rogue asks the other.

"The bastard Milano gave her very strong sleeping pills," the other said. "What do you think the boss is going to do to her? I mean, she's worthless since she doesn't have a beast." he added.

"We are not in the position to question or ask him. If you want to be alive and get what he promised us, just do your job properly," the first rogue replied. Camilla was just listening and had a little understanding of what was going on. But she wanted to know who their boss was.

"Why are the three idiots not here yet?"

"That's what I'm thinking too. They were supposed to be here last night."

"Do you think something happened to them?"

"No, we are hidden deep in the woods. No one knew about this place since the roads on the way here were closed. That's why the boss chose to bring her here."

“The potion that masked that omega’s scent was really strong. Imagine. he never had any problem with taking her out of the palace without anyone knowing.”

“He took the chance that the Princess she was assisting was with the Prince visiting a pack who happened to be facing kidnappings of the pups of high ranking officials of every pack.”

“Something like that happened recently. Who do you think is the one behind this? Is it the boss too?”

“He wouldn’t take such a risk, he was aiming to become royal and would not do something that would jeopardize his plan.”

Camilla was just listening and couldn’t believe what she had just heard. She started to think about what could possibly be the reason for taking her when she didn’t think that she would be of help in making whoever the boss is become royal. She stilled for a moment and her eyes widened after thinking that her uncle was a royal attack and defense advisor. She realizes that whoever that boss is, he was planning to use her to make her uncle Rapha support him.

Now that it was clear to her, she started to worry about everyone, since she knew that their enemy lived in the palace and that they had been feeding him information about their plan. She started to plan on what she needed to do to escape. She stayed calm and called out to her mate in her mind, hoping he would be able to hear her.

“What’s that!” both rogues exclaimed in panic.

Chapter 62 (a)

Third Person

“We have to save her first!” Matteo exclaimed after he heard everything from Rapha. His dad was still in a meeting with the royal advisors so he mind linked him with their plan for rescuing Camilla. He also told him not to tell anyone about what they were about to do and explained to him the reason. The king decided to prolong their meeting to give them time after knowing that one of the advisors might be behind the kidnapping.

“Alec, I want you to keep your calm. Camilla might be in danger, but as long as you feel no pain at all, it is safe to say that she’s still safe. And we didn’t want her to harm her, so we had to be discreet about our rescue. So, if you plan to go on a rampage once we get to that cabin, please stay here.” Matteo told him,

“I am a warrior and was supposed to be the future gamma of the Midnight Pack. I am well aware of the risk and I do love my mate and want to go berserk, but her safety is most important for me as well. I know what I need to do in times like this,” he replied.

“I will be here to stop him just in case, his highness.” Clay said. Matteo nodd ed before he looked at Freya. He didn’t want to bring her with them, but he knew that she would never agree to that, so he had no

“Make sure to take care of yourself, baby.” he told her and she chuckled.

“That goes without saying,” she replied, and he sighed in relief. Although he knew that she could fight, he couldn’t help but worry about her. He was worried that their enemy would take this as a chance to take her from him and that’s what he was trying to prevent from happening.

“We’re ready, Matteo,” James said. I looked at everyone and nodded, a signal that they were going to leave. They took a few trusted warriors and headed for the outskirts of the palace. They were careful as they didn’t want to alarm anyone around the cabin as they passed the passage that James and Rapha noticed that helped them in finding Camilla’s location.

‘There are rogues.’ Matteo mind linked them, so they halted. Freya tried to enhance her senses and feel the presence of everyone around them, trying to find out how many rogues they were dealing with.

“There are 8 of them around the cabin and 2 inside.’ She mind linked Matteo and he relayed the information to the others. The warriors started to go into their positions ready to take down everyone outside the cabin.

There’s a possibility that they are Lycans too, so make sure not to let- down your guard.’ Matteo warned his warriors.

‘Yes, his highness!’ they all replied.

‘Rapha, let’s go.’ he said and with that, the warriors emerged from their hiding spot and jumped at each and everyone who were guarding the cabin, and Matteo wasn’t wrong, since they were all Lycans who had their scents masked. Before Matteo could say anything, Alec ran to the cabin with Clay and Freya behind him. He sighed and ran after them in worry that they would be in danger as well.

Meanwhile, the rogues that had been with Camilla the whole time were in panic after they heard a howling. They looked at the door, “You stay and watch her.” one of the rogues said before he went out.

stayed where she was hoping that it was Alec and the others who had come to rescue her. She prayed to their moon goddess to guide them as they fought their enemies. She wanted to get away from those rogues who had captured her and was planning on using her against her uncle and the palace. She wanted to get away from them so she could be with her mate, whom she missed the most.

“It looks like your mate has arrived bitch!” said the rogue that had been left with her before he walked towards her and grabbed her by her hair. Because it was painful, she couldn’t help but yelp and struggle to get

“Let me go!” she shouted.

“Do you actually think that I didn’t know that you had been awake for a while now? I can hear your heartbeat, that’s why I can tell.” he said angrily. Camilla thought that he was a wimp since he was just following orders from the other one and now that he was arrogant, she had a feeling that he was going to use her er to escape as well.

(Chapter 62 (b))

As he was still grabbing her by her hair, he walked to the door while he still had his hand on her hair. “Let me go!!” Camilla continued shouting, hoping that someone would hear her. But they were in the underground part of the cabin and the rogue was certain that no one would hear her unless they found the passage going down.

The rogue looked at where the stairs were before he went in the opposite direction. There was a way out on the other side which they intended to use once something like this happened. They continued walking but Camilla was smart enough to scratch her skin on the wall to give Alec and whoever she thought was coming for her. Her scent had started to come back, so the rogue had no idea what she was doing. She continued yelling and shouting to divert the rogue’s attention and would never notice what she was doing.

Outside the cabin, the rogue Lycans were being defeated by the palace warriors as Alec and the others continued getting into the cabin. They were welcomed by a single Lycan rogue and, without thinking, Alec jumped at him. He was sure that his friends would come to his rescue when necessary. Clay took the rogue from him and had him go and find Camilla.

“I am going after him.” Freya said and Clay nodded as he fought. Not a little longer, Matteo and Rapha came. He took the rogue from Clay and immediately subdued him.

Where are Alec and Freya?” Matteo asked worriedly,

“They went that way looking for Camilla,” Clay replied, and they both ran on the way to where Alec and Freya went.

“How come this cabin seems so big on the inside?” Clay asked.

“It is elevated. The opening was the only part we could see from the outside. This cabin was built almost at the edge of a hill,” Matteo answered. He could smell his mate so they just followed their scent.

Alec and Freya found the room where Camilla was but they were too late. They looked around but couldn’t see any door and were about to go back when Freya stopped Alec.

“Wait, I can smell her here.” Freya said and tried to follow the scent and slow their movement. They walked carefully just in case there were traps in there.

“What’s going on?” Matteo asked as they caught up with them. Freya didn’t answer and concentrated.

“Here,” she said and sniffed as she continued walking as the others followed until they reached a dead end. “This is not right, it was Camilla’s scent, I knew it. It was on the wall so I was sure that she had left it for us,” she murmured and continued thinking as she felt the wall. “The wall, try to find a door or something on the wall.” she said, and everyone rushed to look for a possible passage.

“In here!” Alec exclaimed and tried to push something. Matteo and the others help him. But Freya accidentally touches a button like a rock and the door opens.

“Her scent is stronger here,” she exclaimed, and they all agreed.

“Clay, go back and tell Rapha and James to meet us on the other side.”

“Yes, his highness,” he replied, and started to go back outside. Hoping that they will find Camilla sooner.

As Alec, Freya and Matteo go in, Camilla’s scent has become more evident. They were sure that they were near her and would catch up to her and whoever it was who had her.

Alec ran as fast as she could because he could already feel and smell his mate. He sighed in relief that he was certain that Camilla was not hurt at all. Matteo and Freya ran too, and didn't want him to be alone.

Without a warning, Freya suddenly shifted, which made Matteo do so. He was sure that she had sensed something for her to do. She passed

let

Alec and jumped, catching a Lycan by his neck who was forced to go of Camilla he was holding by her hair.

After seeing that, Matteo jumped at the rogue as well and took charge, while Alec went after Camilla. "You're here." Camilla said, crying.

"Of course, I love you so much that I didn't want anything to happen to you," Alec replied. He looked at his mate thoroughly, checking whether she was hurt or anything.

"I am fine. They haven't managed to hurt me yet."

"Thank goddess," Alec replied, and looked at Matteo who was fighting the rogue and Freya who was now walking towards them, fully clothed, smiling and feeling relieved. She thought that it was such a good thing that everyone was O K.

Freya

Camilla was so strong that she managed to get over the incident really quickly. I know because I can see how her face lights up as she sits beside her mate. I couldn't believe that something like that happened and never thought that we would find her alive and well. Thanks to the moon goddess for her guidance and care. Alec holds her hand and never wants to let it go. We are now in the king's office with everyone and we decided not to let the advisors or councils know about what happened. Rapha and Matteo didn't kill the last two rogues th ey fought with, since they wanted to know more about the mastermind of the kidnapping.

“Are you alright, dear?” King Marco asked Camilla. She nodded her head, smiling.

“Yes, his highness. Thank you for asking.”

“It must be traumatizing for you. I hope that they have never done enough damage for you to be broken inside and out.” he replied,

“They didn’t do anything to me, I pretended to be unconscious the whole time and they were planning on using me to get to my uncle.” she told him.

“What do you mean?”

“His highness, they were planning to force Uncle Rapha to join them. Since I am his only family, they thought that if they kept me hostage, they would be able to make him agree.”

10:20

ey must be dreaming,” Rapha said, “Don’t take it to heart, my dear. You know that I love you like a child. But you also know that our family has been loyal and very supportive of the royals and the palace. I always think of ways to get you without agreeing to them,” he added.

“I know that. But I still try to make an escape plan, since I know that it will be very difficult for you. I didn’t want you to suffer for making such a decision because of me,” she replied,

“How did whoever it was who took you manage to get you?” I asked curiously. “Was Eunice there?” I added.

“I don’t know either. All I can remember was, I told Alec that I was going to get your laundry to bring them to the omegas. After that, nothing.”

“If Eunice’s scent was there, we can say that her father, Ronaldo, was involved in this as well.” It was Matteo. Then he looked at me, “Do you think he was the one that your parents met when you came here before?" he added,

"I don't think so. I would know if it was really him. But he has a beard." I replied, then everyone looked at me and then at each other. "Is there something wrong with what I said?"

"What do you mean he has a beard?" Matteo asked,

"He has a beard. I remember that the one mom and dad had a talk with was a man without a beard."

"Ronaldo has no beard." King Marco said,

"I have seen him a few times and I never saw him without it." I replied,

"He had no beard, he hates it so he always shaves it." Matteo said, "That's according to Eunice." he added, so I creased my forehead at

1. h. That's before I met you, baby."

I don't understand why I see Ronaldo differently, then it hits me. "Alec, Clay, have you seen Ronaldo?" I asked and they both nodded. "And?"

"He has a beard," they both answered.

"Are you three under some spell or what?" Rapha asked and we looked at each other. "You're under a spell?"

"Wait, in order for anyone to recognize him, he cast a spell on them?" Camilla asked,

"It's the other way around, I think," the king replied, and we looked at him. "I think he cast it to himself that whosoever sees him will see him differently. I mean if you don't live in the palace. You will be seeing him like how Freya and the others saw him."

"That's possible, I remember Eunice told me that her mother was a witch." Matteo said again, which annoyed me, so I couldn't help but growl at him. "Baby, I was just sharing the information." he said and held my hand. I saw Camilla laughing with Alec so I rolled my eyes at them.

“Since Ronaldo is our number one culprit, we have to be careful because he has a lot of police people who support him. He may have taken Camilla because he was certain that he would never get Rapha on his side.” King Marco said,

Lycan Prince Matteo by Lovella Chapter 63b

Chapter 63 (b)

“Is it possible that he was in connivance with uncle?” Matteo asked,

“I don’t know, but I hope not. If that is the case, then it was possible that he had already sold the palace to him and he already had the upper hand, since he probably knew everything.” King Marco replied, and I agreed with him.

‘Frey, are you going to be alright?’ Pi asked,

‘Of course, don’t worry about me. We will be able to get them sooner or later.’ I replied confidently. One thing I am sure of is that I know that she’s with me no matter what and that I am stronger than I think. Matteo alone can motivate me. What if there were a lot of them who believed in me? Matteo’s uncle might be strong, but together, we are stronger.

“Since we have some idea about our enemy, I would like everyone to be prepared.” King Marco said, “Matteo and Freya will go back to the Crimson Pack and help them. Calvin called and reported that the training had started and he saw potential in them. The report about the mail every pack received from an unknown palace official has been investigated now and I am going to include Ronaldo as one of the suspects as well,” he added.

“When do you want us to go back there?” Matteo asked.

“You can go there the day after tomorrow. Bring Alec and Clay with you.” the king replied, “You won’t be staying long in there, so make sure to give them the support and help they need. We will provide a warrior for every pack that will be our representative. They can tell them whatever they want to tell us and those warriors will report to the

1. ce. I am going to assign Rapha to that.” he continued.

“Yes, his highness.” Rapha replied,

“As for the princess, you need to take care of yourself and be cautious all the time. They took Camilla from inside the palace so it wasn’t impossible to get you either.”

“I understand.”

“Alec, Clay and James will be coming with you wherever you go, even if Matteo is around. I didn’t want to give our enemies any chances or a hole in our defense. Make sure that every warrior and fighter were fit to fight all the time. And last but not the least, Matteo, you will be visiting from one region to another or one pack after the other with Freya and her guards. As much as possible, we will try to make your schedule different every day so we can prevent our enemies from making a concrete plan on how they can take you down.”

“Yes, his highness.” we all replied,

“Camilla, dear,” he said and looked at her, “I didn’t want to risk you here either, so you will be coming with them. Since I am sure that your mate will be more proactive if you’re together.”

“Thank you, his highness.” Camilla replied, smiling.

“When all of you are busy, our enemies will wonder about what we are doing. I am free to do anything since I don’t have to think about my niece getting in any danger.” Rapha said,

“This will wrap up our meeting, make sure that you are all ready when you leave.” King Marco said, “And Matteo, I am going to call you for your next assignment.” he added.

We all stood up and went to our respective duties. As the Luna and Fcess, I have to look into the palace schools. Since I am going to be away for a long time, I guess, I will have to make sure that their needs will be properly taken care of.

“Good morning, her highness!” The pups greeted me. I smiled when I saw them looking so happy and carefree. It was really nice to be at their age. They never think about what is going on or what is to come.

"I think they are excited to see their princess." Camilla said and I smiled at her because I agreed with her. I often hear them talking about how much they wanted me to visit the school all the time.

"How are my pups?" I asked when they were all seated.

"Great!!!" they said all together.

"Did you listen to your teachers?" I asked,

"Yes, her highness!!" they answered happily.

"That's very good." I replied, "Now, your teachers and I are going to have a meeting and I want all of you to behave. Can I count on you with that?"

"Yes, her highness."

They are very enthusiastic and I am happy about that. I asked Clay to talk to the faculty for our meeting because I wanted to prepare for their needs before we leave tomorrow. I just wanted to see these pups so I will get inspired and motivated. Now, I have to go to my meeting.

WARNING MATURE CONTENT!!

Freya

We went back to the Crimson pack and Calvin was surprised to see us. We told him what happened and he was shocked. He didn't know that Camilla had been kidnapped and we didn't inform him about it since he was busy doing the task that Matteo had asked him to do. We informed him about King Marco's plan and he agreed to it as well. He thought that it would be better if we were on the move so our enemies would never have any idea about what we are doing. We keep our communication in the palace and have to contact them from time to time.

While the pack was glad to see us come back as promised, they were also happy that we told them how they could have a meeting with the king or send him their request. They welcomed us just like before and gave us our rooms to rest. "How is everything at school?" Matteo asked. He knew that I had been very busy yesterday until early this morning

"Fine. I asked the school principals and dean to talk to the training and education advisor about their emergency needs while I'm away. I talked to Jenny and Calix, they were the ones who were assigned to training and educational needs and I told them to assist the school since I am away." I replied, he smiled and I could see that he was very proud of me and, at the same time, worried.

"Please hold on, baby. Everything is going to be alright." he said,

"I know, and I am not worried at all, so please relax. Don't think too much about me, since I know that we are on the good side. The moon goddess will never let her children suffer at the hands of her own children." I said, "I know that she will lead and guide us to the solution to everything." I added,

"With everything that happens, I missed you so much. We didn't have much time together and every time we thought we had it, we were called somewhere else."

"At least we are together. That's the best part of it." I replied and he smiled before he kissed me. I missed him so much as well and I was worried about him too. But Pi keeps on telling me to trust him and King. That they will be able to do what they need to do, so we have to be ready and support them.

"King said that he had already gone through a war with Pi. So I know that we will be able to get through this because he is confident." Matteo said, "I know that it was such arrogance for him, but I believe it. Everything he said, I believed them. Why? Because he is with me and you are with us. Together we are stronger," Matteo said.

"Yes, and I believe him and you too. I know that we will be able to pass through this and we will be able to give the entire kingdom the peaceful life they deserve."

He kissed me again and I responded eagerly. I want him to know that I needed and wanted him now. He didn't fail me as he started to wrap his arms around me and mine in his. A little later he was undressing me and I was letting him. Our lips never parted as he did that and now it was my turn, I grabbed the hem of his shirt and pulled it up. He raised his arms and jerked his shirt off of his body.

"Baby, I want you so much." he murmured. Then he lifted me up and carried me to the wall. He had my back in there while we kissed endlessly. I held his face with both my hands and he was holding me my hips. My legs were wrapped around his waist and even if he still had his pants on, I could still feel his hardness poking at my puy.

I grind myself at him and I felt his lips curve into a thin smile. We stopped kissing and he said, "You are so impatient, baby."

"It's because I wanted you so much too." I replied and kissed him again. I'm already wet for him and his hand that started to travel in between my legs is not helping. It made me want him more, especially when I reached my womanhood and let his finger play on my cl*t. "Ohh, Matt... Fu me already." I said and I didn't ask twice because he gave me what I wanted. He thrust himself deep and hard so I had to hold onto his broad shoulders as he held me on both legs. We use the wall as leverage so I won't fall as he continues thrusting harder and deeper.

Chapter 64 (b)

We were panting after we cummed but I think he was not done yet. He carried me to the bed and had me lay down with him on top. He's still inside me and I don't think that he had any plan on pulling his di out, so I expect more from him. He raised my right leg sideways and so did my upper body. He could see my face and I could still see his face in that position. Then he thrust himself again and again and, oh goddess, it felt really good. He hit my g-spot and the ecstasy was a little more erotic.

After that, he put down my legs and got the other one and did the same thing on the other side. “Ohh h.. Matt... Do it faster...” I couldn’t help but plead because it was really feeling different.

“Ohhh.. Baby, you’re only mine... Mine... Mine...” he said, and we both reached our climax. We were lying down on the bed panting.

“I guess bending over is a thing of the past,” I said, laughing.

“I’m glad you liked it. I just tried everything that will satisfy you. I love you, baby.”

“And I love you too, Matteo,” I replied.

The next morning, we went to the training ground and saw everyone. According to Calvin, everyone was motivated. Especially those that had their young and future warriors kidnapped. They wanted to take them back alive and in one piece. And that’s what we’re going to do. I just hope that King Marco has all the help he needs in the palace to make the investigation quicker. We should not allow another kidnapping incident in any pack. Whoever he was doing, this had done a lot of damage and trauma to the pup’s family and pack leaders. He be stopped.

Camila is always with me as we helped the omega with the pack chores before we went to the training hall to train them and the pups too. James was the one who was assigned to do that, assisted by a female Lycan warrior who would be left behind to continue what we had started. Through her, all their concerns regarding the omegas and the pups will be relayed to the palace.

Calvin and Matteo were training the warriors and fighters of the allied packs. They are assigned to investigate and track the down behind the crime and they will report to Kevin, Calvin’s trusted friend and comrade. He is also one of the palace’s head warriors. Through him, the allied pack would tell him everything they wanted to say or inform the palace about.

“His highness, it appears that the kidnapping happened mostly in this. region.” Alpha Jake said during their meal. “I’m sorry if I had to say this when we were supposed to have a decent meal and enjoy our food,” he added.

“It’s fine, it’s important to discuss important matters. If it will help us with our investigation, the better.” my mate replied, “Because of what you said, we had to think of a reason why they were focused here.” he added.

“This is where you can find the predecessors of the first werewolf.” Calvin said . I looked at him and then at Matteo. “I found out about it during training. I heard them talking about the pups who had been kidnapped. They said that some of them were from the packs who had a family that came from the first werewolf. Even if their family is in the warrior and fighter rank. Coming from the first werewolf family, it could give power to that pup,” he continued.

“Then there’s a possibility that they wanted to have a royal within the wolf, Matteo said Is it possible? Weren’t Lycans made for that? ‘s just a possibility, but we need to be prepared as well We cannot let them succeed since we already know what kind of leaders they could become if that happens.” he added, and we all agreed. There is a process with everything we want to do or achieve.

If you want to have your own pack, you have to submit a proposal to the council indicating all the details of the pack you want to establish How many pack members? Where will you get the funds to support the pack and its members? Whether the Alpha to be is capable of handling a pack. All sorts of things

Wanting to have a kingdom is another story You cannot just put up with one since you’re going to need a lot. And it was chosen by the people. You do not do it just because you want it. Just what does our enemy think?

Chapter 65 (a)

Matteo

I had to inform Dad about what we had discussed. It was alarming to know that my uncle was trying to u se the wolves by building their own kingdom. I know what will happen next. He will surely betray them to become king. And wolves normally have no match for Lycans. If uncle had insisted these thoughts to any wolf with greedy thoughts, he would surely succeed to use that wolf.

“Dad,” I said

when he answered and told him everything. I’m sure that he was furious because he was the most protective of the wolves. It never occurred to him that anyone of our kind will do something like this since we grew up being thought to become their protector and mediator.

“You must do everything to find him. After you left, Rapha assigned someone to go back to the cabin where Camila was held captive. They will search the whole place and before I forget, Rapha has found a new traitor. He already asked someone to follow him and ended up in another cabin on the other side of the palace territory.” Dad said,

“It appears that our enemy was trying to surround us with their hideouts and that is not a good idea.” he added,

“How did Rapha find a traitor?” I asked,

“It was when Freya told us about her being the daughter of the Alpha and Luna of the Howlers Pack. Someone was listening to their conversation when they reached the training hall and continued discussing it. Good thing is, Rapha asked someone to follow Freya all the time and undetected even if she was around us.”

“The one guarding her secretly saw the traitor listening to them?” I asked.

“Yes. He mind linked Rapha so he knew that he gave away some information since Freya was saying something. He didn’t want to alert the traitor so he just let her talk. It was just a relief that all she said was about being cautious and careful.”

“We already found two of their hideouts and we don’t have any idea as to how many there were. Dad, this is really serious. If uncle was really trying to build a royal wolf and betray them later, then he surrounded the palace, I’m certain that he had started and prepared for this a long time ago.” I said, worriedly, “That’s why I want you to focus there. We will try to find out everything we need so if ever your uncle started to make a move there, he wouldn’t be able to take any actions or damages here.” Dad said, “We will make sure that he can’t do what he pleases.”

We ended our call after we came to an agreement. We’re not going to leave the region and will look into the pups. That will be our top priority. I had to tell this to the others and start the investigation the next morning. We can’t waste any more time as uncle’s plan was starting to execute. We must stop him at all costs.

The following day, Freya, Calvin, James and Clay are with me on the

for potential hideouts. Alec and Camila were left in the pack to look after the training. We have a few warriors and there’s more to come in the afternoon as I requested it to dad when we talked.

Freya and Clay are with me while Calvin and James are together. We divided our group into two to make the search more productive. Each group has 5 Lycan warriors and a warrior from Crimson Pack to guide us and tell us about the territory. We are confident that we will be able to find something. Since dad told me that another hideout was found in the outskirts of the palace, that is where we started our search.

We roam around the Crimson Pack territory and we are glad that we didn’t find anything from there. I mind linked Calvin and asked them about what they were doing and it was the same for us. “Is that another pack’s territory?” I asked Noel, the Crimson Pack warrior.

“It’s the neutral territory. It was a small land and next to it is the Red Moon Pack.” he answered.

“It’s the pack where two of their pups were missing, right?” I asked again, “Yes, his highness. They have a family that came from the first werewolf.” he informed us.

“Let’s search in there. Since we will be passing the neutral territory, we will start from there.” I added and told Calvin about it.

‘We will be there,’ he replied. Then we headed for the neutral territory where humans, rogues, different pack members and other species meet.

Chapter 65 (b)

We crossed the border and started walking our senses were heightened and we were about to continue when Freya stopped us. We looked at her and we saw her sniffing, “What is it?” I asked,

“I smelled it,” she said,

“What?” I asked and started to sniff to catch the scent that she smelled but I didn’t get any.

‘Just let her, Pi is from a tracker lineage so their senses are far greater than ours.’ King said, so I did as he told me and waited for my mate to finally get what she caught.

“The scent is familiar to me, I smelled it when we rescued Camila.” She said after and continued sniffing, “Follow me,” she said and so we did. If she smelled it from Camila’s captive, then do we have only one enemy? According to Camila, it appears to her that the one who took her wanted to use her to get Raphaela’s support. The kidnapping was ought to be my uncle’s doing, so why is there a same scent in both places?

“Stop,” Freya said, so we did. She motioned us to keep quiet and I saw her close her eyes just like what she did when we rescued Camila and found out how many rogues were there. “They know we’re here.” she said so there’s no use in hiding. Well we didn’t mask our scent so it was natural for them to feel our presence. “I need to find that scent, it was coming from that cabin.” They do have a lot of cabins for a hunt. This is new information for Dad but the only good news is that we are certain that whoever he was that made all of this commotion is already starting to make a move.

“Fight and kill only when necessary, we need them alive as much as possible for interrogation.” I told the others and we showed up. They were Lycan rogues and even if they already knew that I am their prince because of the aura that was emitting from my body, they never show any respect or acknowledgment. I didn’t know that the number of rogue Lycans were increasing. Just what was happening?

“What are you doing here?” I asked,

“Isn’t it us who had the right to ask you that?” the other one replied, there were 3 of them that we are facing and according to Freya, there is another 3 inside.

“You have no respect for your prince, do you know what punishment awaits you for disrespect?” I asked,

“We have no prince, we only have our King.”

“I am the king’s son, that made me your prince.”

“Our king has no son or family. He will reign after your father, the fake king is dethroned.” the other replied, smirking. “And that is going to happen soon after our King makes him kneel before him.”

288 Vouchers

That is not going to happen. Whoever your king was, he will never see my King kneel before him.” I replied angrily.

“Matteo,” Freya said and held me in my arms. I know that I started to get agitated and that is not helping. I could take them down instantly but I had to know why they were doing this and what their King as they called him promised to them to agree with him.

“You know that what you think will never happen,” she told them. The rogues looked confused and gave each other a glance. “Because I am going to kill you now.” my mate added before she jumped into them and because they were unaware of her capabilities, they were shocked to see her fighting and so were the warriors who were with us. Clay was so fast that he went to her aid and fought with her. I was too stunned to see her swift moves that took down two of them without a sweat.

The other three who were inside the cabin must have heard the fight so they went out and came to rescue the three who were all catching their breaths for their dear life. Since my mate had done more than enough. I took them down and King was so enraged that he missed the first fight. I feel sorry for those whom I fought since they were shredded in to pieces. Clearly, King is a beast.

Chapter 66 (a)

Matteo

“Take a closer look at every part of the cabin,” I said. Calvin and James were with us and they were in the search as well.

“Here.” Freya said, holding a shirt and giving it to me. “Do you know that scent?” she asked. It was very faint and the shirt had probably been there for days. “That scent is stronger than the one in the cabin where we rescued Camila. It means that whoever owns that came there before he came here and left.”

“This shirt is small for a Lycan or wolf rogue.” Calvin said, and I agree.

“I know it must be from one of the pups they took,” my mate answered.

“What do you mean? Does Camila’s kidnapping have to do with the mastermind of the missing pups as well?” James asked, confused. “I thought someone from the palace was behind Camila’s?” he added.

“We had been thinking that since Freya smelled that scent. I’m getting a headache which is not normal for us. But the only plausible reason is that they are connected. Or whoever the traitor was in the palace was being used as well. A pawn.” I replied,

“This is not getting anywhere. When we thought we learned something from the enemy, another incident would happen that would confuse us, just like now.” Calvin said, and I agree with her. Just when we thought we were about t o get into the bottom of everything, an unusual incident would occur as well as another unrelated evidence.

We were all seated in the cabin and we started to talk about what had happened. I need to think and finish this once and for all. "We were just starting our training with the packs but we are already facing a severe problem. I don't think that our enemy will wait for their perfect timing. I had a feeling that they were going to attack any time now." Calvin said,

"I don't know. but I have a feeling that they meant for us to find them. We see their hideouts almost one after the other without many guards," said Freya. "What if that's the case and they see us and know all our movements? It's not far from happening since we're here now. And whose scent I smelled? Why did I also smell it in their hideout near the palace?" she asked continuously.

"What if we were actually acting according to their plan?" she added.

"Then what are we going to do?" Clay asked,

"I think we have to talk to the alphas. They are the only ones we can trust to give us an accurate and more effective solution, since it was their pups who were being taken." James answered.

"But we need to be honest with them. We have to share with them the information we had, otherwise, they won't be able to give better solutions." Calvin agreed. I am the prince and future king. If I can't handle this, how am I going to handle the entire kingdom?

"The fewer the person's involved, the better." I said after minutes of silence. "It is not wise to scare them, they will only panic if they find out that we were suspecting my uncle, whom I know had no idea that I had one." I saw them nodding their heads, so I continued. "This is what I think of doing for the meantime, first we let Alec monitor the training. We, on the other hand, will continue the search for other hideouts and once we are able to discern their actual location, that's when we're going to plan our attack. "The Crimson Pack's warriors are just outside the cabin," Clay said.

"Well, letting Alpha Jake know will not be a problem. He knows the region better than us We just need to tell him to be discreet," I replied Now, let's go and find another hideout Calvin, tell the Crimson Pack warrior's to mark the location on their map ” I added, and he nodded his head before he went out of the cabin. Then they started to go out as well Freya, on the other hand, is very quiet.

“Is there something wrong, baby?” I asked and she looked at me.

“Nothing. I was just thinking that everything seemed off. I wanted to know why there was the same scent here and at the cabin where Camila was held captive”

“We will find out about that. It’s the very reason why we are here.” I replied, “Let’s go and start the search again ” I added before we went out and met the others From this onwards, we have to focus on finding them, especially the one behind this The longer this takes, the more Freya is in danger I am not worried about myself or my reign, it won’t matter to me if I am going to lose her in the end.

“Alright, let’s go.” I said, and we headed for another border

Chapter 66 (b)

We ended the day finding another hideout. This is really serious and letting Alpha Jake know about the situation is really important. I would be able to take his input about the gravity of our current situation and whether I admit it or not, I started to worry. We went back to the pack house and scheduled a morning meeting. I knew that everyone was tired, so I let them rest and called it a day. Tomorrow is another puzzle we need to solve and think about “His highness, if you think that it was your uncle who was behind all the kidnappings, why don’t you know anything until it comes to this?” Alpha Jake asked and I understood his frustration. Maybe he was starting to blame me and my father in his mind, but it doesn’t matter to me now. What’s important is for us to know and find out about what my uncle really wanted.

“I can’t explain it either. Just like you, I was shocked after my father told us about him. All my life I thought he was an only child and I believe that you are too.” I replied. I know that I don’t need to explain my side since I am royal, but I wanted to give him an assurance that I am serious about taking down my uncle. “For now, we have to be extra cautious since I realized that he was around everyone. We can’t let our guard down n, so we had better be prepared when he decides to attack, which I have a feeling will happen sooner.” I added.

“I’m sorry for questioning you, his highness. I didn’t mean to offend you,” he replied,

“None taken and I understand your concern.” I said, “I want to inform you about my plan to attack the possible hideouts of our enemy. The warriors with us marked the 2 places where we found their fortress and based on this they may have 2 more fortresses that we can find around

“Do you have any idea where the other two are?” Alpha Jake asked, to which I nodded. Last night before we went to sleep. Freya and I talked about it and we agreed on a place where we could still find their strongholds. I looked at the warrior who was with us yesterday and he placed the map on the table.

“Here in this place, more than their men may be staying. If we’re lucky, we can catch one of the high-ranking ones in their group, if not their leader.” I answered, pointing to the eastern part of the neutral territory. “Based on our thorough study of the events in the palace as well as here in the entire region, we found out that they are operating from north to west or perhaps north to south. They are avoiding the eastern part, which I think is so that we don’t get the idea that they might actually be fortifying there.” I added.

“And what can we do for the attack to be made?” Alpha Jake asked, which I’m thankful for “But before that I want to give my opinion about something”

“Just say it,” I said.

“Why don’t we let the other alphas know about this? I know and I understand that it’s better if only a few people know about this, but I also know that we are united with those in the surrounding pack so that our common enemy can finally be defeated.”

“I’ve thought about that too, but what I’m avoiding is that the enemy gets a chance to be warned. They may have spies in each pack, which is not impossible since they also entered the palace,” I answered. I know that he wants to speed up the resolution of the issue and believes that that will only happen if they all work together. "Another thing is that we don't have time for another meeting, we need to act as soon as possible." I added.

10:22 D

He nodded while looking at the map before he suddenly stopped. "His highness, this area is already surrounded by woods, wouldn't it be good if we also checked it before we started attacking?" he asked while pointing to the east before reaching the border of the neutral territory where their strongest fortress might be.

"Why?" I asked.

"It's close to the east side and no one would think there are people living there even if the place is livable," he answered.

"Why?" I asked again, confused.

"This place is a secluded place and private property. I, as an alpha, would not even dare to go to that place because I know that someone owns it."

"Do you think that the enemy himself might own that?" asked Freya. She was listening quietly and she must have been interested because of the great possibility of what Alpha Jake said. And I thought for a moment. Yes, it is possible.

Chapter 67 (a)

Freya

Alpha Jake has a point. We can't leave that possibility out of the equation. If there is something the enemy needs is the hideout away from the eyes of any species which they can move freely without hesitations. They need somewhere away from the eyes of the humans as well because we all know how humans' mouths are. They will definitely spread about whatever they found in the woods or anywhere they had been to or see things from.

"Then I am going to check it out with my warriors, let someone from one of yours who knows the place to come with us and lead the way." Matteo said, Alpha Jake nodded his head and thanks to him, we might be able to end everything g sooner. If what he said was true and we apprehended them in one go, then I hope we will end Matteo's uncle's madness in no time.

"I didn't want to get ahead of myself but I want you to be ready as well." I told him and the two looked at me confused. "If what you think is correct, I'm sure that our enemy had already planned their escape once they knew they had been found. Your pack and the other one is near them so there's a possibility that they will cross your border." I added,

"With that, I want you to be ready when we go there. Be on guard and spread your patrol guards and make them heightened their senses. We can't let them get a chance to retaliate through your pack or the others."

Matteo said, "Please ask other alphas to do that as well without alarming their pack. It is important that they know nothing to make our plan work."

"Yes, his highness. I will make some arrangements as well for the other pack. We can't let them become the enemy's new hiding spot." he replied.

"Now that it's clear. Tomorrow me and my team will be going there. Since the other pack's warriors were here doing the training, use that as your advantage and stay connected to other packs. Keep your line open for easy communication."

"Yes, his highness." Our little meeting ended and we went to the training ground and watched the warriors doing their routines. I felt proud when I saw how Clay managed to handle them even if he was way younger than him. Camila was watching them as well and I saw how proud she was too. Who wouldn't when you see your mate standing out among the others who were more experienced than him?

Calvin went in front and looked at everyone who were all in military stand positions. They were looking at him waiting for whatever he was about to say. "I see how you grow individually in a short span of time. I already see your future getting stronger. Now, I want to know how much you grow in a group." he said, "With that, I want you to group yourselves into 6 and have a mini tournament. This is for today only and will be spectated by his and her highness." I smiled and looked at Matteo. Since we are already in a war, why not try to relax for a bit?

We got in our seats and waited for the mini tournament to start. I was happy that Calvin thought of something like this. He is indeed a capable beta. I looked at James and found him looking happy too. He must have been waiting for this to happen, he is the type who wanted to see everyone around him improve. The warriors were all excited as well and even if I already knew that they were training together before this, I can't help but wonder who were the ones who were really strong among them.

The warriors and fighters are lined up and they seem excited to test their team work. It's great to know that they are open to that even though they are from a different pack. If only all packs in all regions were like theirs, it would be so nice to live by chance. Why can't everyone be like them? Maybe this is the time to completely change our species. We need to make them understand that everyone has the right to live in peace and quiet. I stared at Matteo and noticed that he was staring at me, which is why I raised my eyebrows at him and waited for whatever he wanted to say.

Chapter 67 (b)

"Why do you seem happy?" he asked, but I had a feeling he already knew the reason. Even though I want others to become like this region, I know that's what he has in mind too. I smiled at him because he would really be a good king of the whole kingdom including with the other species. Even with humans because I know that he is very fair and just. He is not the type of king who will take advantage of his subjects and I, as his queen, will do everything to support him for the good of all

"You already know the reason, why do you need to ask?" I answered.

"I just want to make sure." He said then he held my hand. I am happy that I can feel his emotions and know that he is at peace even though there is danger lurking around us. We know that there is always a threat to us and we also know that as long as we are together and on the right there is nothing anyone who wants to bring us down can do. I can say that even though we are new, our relationship is already strong. And it's thanks to our mate bond and our love for each other that makes us stronger and stronger.

We both looked at the warriors who made a circle to have a space in the middle where their group training would take place. It will be like a royal rumble and will surely think of all the possible ways to win as a team. Each team is of course made up of warriors from different packs. I saw Calvin and James who went to the center and started announcing their teammates and opponents. The best thing about it is that the two of them are there and will be team leaders. It seems that I am also intrigued by which of the teams they were leading will win.

And the match has started and I can say that I am very excited.

Although I had expectations, I made sure to put it to a minimum since I knew it was just training. Calvin's team is all big guys and I see that they have an advantage when it comes to body built. On the other hand, James' team is all trackers. Meaning, good at finding anything or anyone. Who will win? I don't want to push anyone and I can also see the excitement on the faces of the palace warriors when the two fight, even though they are not actually sparring. "Look at the two and they look excited too." Matteo said to which I also nodded.

"Yes, and the way they look at each other, it's like they're telling each other to bring it on boy. They look very hype too. Calvin, because he's the one who was left here to train them when we went back to the palace and James is to test what they have learned from him. I think they still learned a lot from Calvin even though they are used to training together. Their footing is very stable while the speed of the trackers is really unbeatable. Well, compared to the Lycans, they won't win but when combined with sharp thinking, they have a good chance if they maintain their speed. I mean, speed and strength plus critical thinking can lead them to victory.

The tournament went well and I noticed that they wanted more but we already had a winner. I then thought of making this activity regular not only in this region but also in others. It will also be a way to build camaraderie with each other and build alliances between neighboring packs. We thought of letting the winning team lead for their training the next day because of our plan to attack the possible hideout of our enemy. We had a breaktime but they seemed to be very hungry due to the intense fight. I couldn't help but smile, because I already see the future of the entire kingdom after we defeated the enemy and I hope it will happen soon.

“It is going to be soon, baby. I make sure to put an end to my uncle’s madness. No matter where he was hiding. I will find a way to get to him and put him where he should belong “I looked at him and judging by the look on his face, it appears that he sees through me. Heknew exactly what I was thinking and I couldn’t help but admire and love him even more

“And I am going to be here, supporting you all the way ” I replied

Chapter 68 (a)

Third Person

They are relaxing. Just what was wrong with them that they managed to conduct a tournament and enjoyed it? Don’t they feel threatened at all? I think I need to make them feel the threat that was about to come to them. I can’t wait to see the agonizing look on their faces. They took what was rightfully mine, so I will do the same. My title and my mate, the chance of having my own family. He should have been my son and not his. I should have been the one who would pass the throne to MY SON and NOT HIM!

“My Lord,”

“Are you sure about that?”

“Yes, my Lord. They actually had a mini–tournament in the Crimson Pack and were all enjoying themselves. I don’t think they have any idea about us yet.” Calum, my right–hand man said. He reported to me about what was going on with Matteo and his mate. I had to admit that he had been living a good life, trying to follow what his father had taught him. But I am not going to let him do as he pleases. I had to do something about his calmness and give him a little headache.

“Send a few rogues in the pack. Make sure to give them something they will never forget.”

“Yes, my Lord!” he replied and went out. I don’t know how he managed to get that information, because I don’t remember sending a spy in that pack. But ho

However he does, that is up to him. Gathering information is one of his skills and I admire him for being consistent all the time. As for Matteo, I don't know why he suddenly acted that way. According to the report I received, they had found our hideouts around the palace and the pack. They should have been attacking the other one in the east, so why?

I had been planning on taking back what was rightfully mine for years. But I never had a chance to execute it since there was someone who was fighting the palace silently. I wanted to know what that traitor wanted and when I finally knew it, I decided to use him as well. Another greedy advisor was in their way of achieving what they wanted to achieve, so I shouldn't let that chance pass, right?

I don't really care about that traitor, but I am not going to allow him to destroy my palace. It was mine and mine alone. He has no right to covet what's mine. It's mine and mine alone! After Calum takes care of the task I gave him, I am going to send him to the palace and expose that rascal. Just he wait because I was already done using him. Calum is very efficient too, so it was safe to say that what I asked him to do would be considered done.

After a few hours, he came back with his report. "The rogues were in position and were awaiting orders."

"Good, now I want you to set up a plan for Ronaldo."

"Is it time now, my Lord?"

"And make sure that he's going to suffer."

"Yes, my Lord," he replied, and once again left. I have full confidence in him. He is my most loyal follower. After I left the palace, he followed me. He neglected the king's order to never get associated with me. My father, the previous king, betrayed me. I am his first son but he chose to give his title to Marcus, who had done nothing but say yes to him. He deprived me of my rights and my mate. What had happened was still fresh in my memory, as if it just happened yesterday,

Flashback

“Dad, you have to believe me. I would never do such a thing!” I said, but his ears were close to my plea. He accused me of stealing Marcu’s mate. He said that she was his and that I asked a witch to put a spell on her so she would think that we were fated. But it was actually the truth. She’s mine and Marcus was the one who was making up the story. He made my mate believe that she was his. That’s why she was scared of me.

“No more of this nonsense!” dad said. Growing up, I saw how much he favored Marco. I don’t know what I did, but he always hates me and everything that I do. I did everything I could to please him but he pushed me away. Nothing in what I did made him look at me. He only sees Marco and him alone. I sometimes wonder if I was his son.

Chapter 68 (b)

Because of that, I started to rebel against him. I did all that would anger him and it wasn’t hard. It was too late before I realized that what I was doing was all in favor of Marco, my younger brother, who was just waiting for me to do all sorts of things so he could gain the favor of the council. I feel stupid that I let this happen to me. All those times I thought I was smart enough, but I was wrong. I was stupid to let my emotions take over me and made me lose my title.

“I am telling the truth, dad. She’s not Marco’s mate, she’s mine!!” I said angrily. That’s when I lost my faith in him. I knew at that very moment that I could never be a son to him. Rumors about me being an arrogant, unjust and bad prince spread all over the kingdom and I had no way to clear my name.

“If you want to get the throne, you have to fight for it. I can’t just hand over the entire kingdom to someone as reckless as you. I will let you and Marco fight for the crown,” he said.

“I am your first born and the title of being a king is mine by rights!” I shouted, “You can’t just hand it over to him!”

“That’s why you will be fighting for it,” he replied, and went out. I was left in the middle of my room sulking about what had happened. Why do I have to fight for something that was rightfully mine? Being a king is my birthright. I am the first born and I have all the right to reign.

One of the palace warriors came to me and informed me that the battle between me and Marco will take place in two days. I was confused, I was not allowed to leave my room and after dad left that day, I felt like my body was weakening. A day before the battle, Marco came to me,

“Why do you have to fight me when you know that you won’t be able to win? ”

“What do you mean?”

“You’re weak now and there’s no way that the wolfsbane and silver that was added to your meal will not affect your body.” he answered, which made my eyes widen in disbelief. How could he do this to me? I don’t remember doing anything to him that might upset him. I loved him and treated him fairly. I tried to become the best brother anyone could wish for. Mom made me promise to take care of him because he is my younger brother and that’s what I did. So why, why did he have to do that?

“How could you!” I asked angrily. That very moment, all I saw was red.

“I can be a better king than you. I already see the future and you will turn out to be a tyrant king, so I had to stop it. I didn’t want the entire kingdom to suffer because of you.”

grew up being taught that we are the protector of every species. That we are the ones who should maintain the balance of the world so we will be able to live in peace and harmony. How can you say that I am going to become a tyrant king?”

“You won’t understand me now, but in time you will,” he said, then he smirked and came closer. “Now that no one is listening, let me tell you this. Yes, I took everything away from you. Your title and your mate. Oh, did you know how much she begged me when I fu her without knowing that it was me and not you? Potions from witches are very accessible nowadays.”

That angered me. The reason why I lost my mate was because he put a spell on her. I can never forgive him. I jumped at him with the intent of killing him but a warrior came in and stopped me. “I am going to kill you? For what you did to my mate!”

“His highness, please, you have a battle tomorrow,” the warrior said. I don’t care about that anymore He can have the crown, but not my mate I was in so much pain All along the reason for my restlessness and chest pain was because of him Because he banged my mate thinking it was me who was with her How could I let this happen to my mate, to the only woman who was fated to be with me forever?

I lost the challenge and my title was handed over to Marco. I had to control myself after that because he marked my mate as soon as he assumed the throne . I was planning on getting her back and everything that he took from me, but I had no one to back me up. Everyone was siding with my father although they didn’t like Marco, but for the simple reason that he was not the first born. I tried to gather some alliances within the palace but I failed. They believed Marco and after a few more weeks he already had their loyalty. I lay low before I left the palace. I became a rogue and even if I was alone, no one dared to get their hands on me since they felt that I am strong.

Driven by my anger, I tried to gain alliances outside the palace. I managed to get a spy inside and he reported everything to me. I didn’t know that I would be able to get his support though. I didn’t know why he decided to help me as well. But I am thankful that he did, because if not for him, I wouldn’t have been able to discover the most important part of my life, Matteo. He is mine. So I conducted this plot to make sure that I would be able to get to him.

“Thank you for siding with me,” I told Rapha.

“The previous queen gave me this mission. She has endured so much with Marco and this is the only thing I can do for her.” he replied, “Just make sure that what you are doing is for the palace as well and I am going to protect Matteo and his future mate at all costs.” he added.

Lycan Prince Matteo by Lovella Chapter 69b

It had been 8 years. Rapha had been doing his best and even if his on what we had talked about. He was looking after Marco and that's what matters the most.

Now that Matteo is here with his mate. I can do what I need to do and put some sense into him. He should not believe everything Marco had told him.

After two days, Caleb went back to me and reported that Ronaldo had been captured and was in the cell. We don't have a dungeon in my mansion, but I put up a cell where we can put our captives or enemies who were in my way. "How are you, Ronaldo?"

y- you!" he said, shocked. Who wouldn't? No one thought that I would be back like this.

"Why are you so shocked, Ronaldo? Do you actually think that I will just keep quiet forever? After what my father and Marco did to me?" I asked. He got over the shock because he laughed later.

"Are you telling me that you're back just to get the throne back?" he asked, mockingly. But I don't care about that, what I cared about the most is the fact that he was using me to inflict trouble in the palace. He was using my name so everyone would divert their attention to looking for me so he would be able to move freely.

"My cause is more than what you think it is. You are just another greedy fellow who thinks highly of himself and thinks that you will be able to gain more when you become king. Or let's say, when your daughter becomes queen." I replied, which made his eyes widen.

"You think I didn't know anything about what you did and was still doing? I had my eyes on you from the very start. Watching over things, you should be thankful that I was busy with another thing when you attacked the Howler's Pack. If not, you and your daughter would have been put into your place a long time ago."

"What else can you do? You have no power, no allies, not everything? What could you possibly do?" he asked, trying to act brave.

"The fact that I have you here means I am not what you think I am right?" I asked and the smile on his lips was banished. Then I looked at Caleb. Have you found his daughter?"

“Yes my Lord, we got her already and were on their way here.”

“What are you going to do with my daughter?” Ronaldo asked, worriedly. I wanted to laugh at him thinking that woman was really his. She’s not his daughter and neither his mate’s. How good would it be if I were going to say it to their faces together? And after a little while, the group of Lycan rogues came with Eunice.

“What are you going to do to me?” she asked. Why do they always ask the same question every time they are in this situation?

“Oh, you’re right on time.” I said, smiling. “You see, I want to tell you that what you and this man were planning is not going to work. Because I am not going to let it happen. After all these years, you should have realized it by now.” I continued. “Now, for the main event, I want to tell you that Ronaldo is not your father and his mate is not your mother either.”

Both of them were shocked. He didn’t expect to hear that from me, “What are you talking about? She’s my daughter with my mate.”

“If she is, why isn’t she a witch as well?” I asked,

“Because she takes after me.”

“That’s foolish. You know that whatever happens she should have at least a drop of blood since your mate is a pure, blooded witch.” I told him.

“No. it was just because my wife is so fragile that-”

“Stop making excuses. You know that your mate is very strong. She’s the reason why the previous queen died. Because of her greediness. She’s not even your mate, she just made you believe that she is. She used you to kill the previous queen, my mate. Why? Because Marco chose her even after helping him become king.”

“No, that’s not true.

“She made you believe that she was your mate. Just like what she did to my mate and my father. They were both put under her spell because she thought that if Marco became King, he would accept her as his queen. But my little brother has been eyeing my mate, and has been wanting what was mine ever since. He never had a plan on claiming her, because Marco wanted my mate for himself.” I told him.

“No!! That’s not true! I am their daughter and I am going to be a queen!” Eunice shouted, so I looked at her.

“Believe what you want to believe. I couldn’t care less at all. You’re both going to die anyway. “I said before I left them and nodded at Caleb. He knows what to do to them. I could still hear them yelling as I left the cell. I really don’t care about them, but if I let them leave, they will be a threat to Matteo and Freya for ever. I can’t let that happen, right?

“Hello?” I said after I picked up the call.

“Matteo will be coming to you. I managed to stop their attacks on you and will go there to have a word.”

“Thank you very much,” I replied.

“Do whatever it takes to make him believe. I myself don’t know if I can. That’s why I choose to bring him to you and explain your side. You already know who he really is so you had better do it properly.” Rapha

“Yeah, I will do that.” I replied and hung up. I need to be ready for their arrival.

Chapter 70 (a)

Matteo

We were about to attack the enemy’s hideout but before that, Rapha called and asked me for something impossible. He said someone wanted to talk to me and, if possible, I had to be calm. How the hell am I going to stay calm when I find out that it was my uncle who wanted to have a word with me? This is insane and I don’t know if I am going to do what he said. He also told me not to tell dad about it and decided after I heard what my uncle needed to tell me.

“What if it was a trap?” Calvin asked,

“Will Rapha put you into that kind of situation?” James asked too. I looked at my mate and she was quiet. I wanted to know what she thought so I waited for her reply.

“I would want to believe in Rapha,” she said, which made everyone look at her. “I know I barely know him, but I never feel threatened or scared whenever I am with him. And look at Camila, she’s with us. He would never put her life in danger. We saw how he was and how he looked when we had no idea where she was just recently.” She has a point and I have known Rapha ever since. He has been my mentor and protector. Dad trusted him, so why is he doing that now?

“Uncle Rapha is loyal to her highness, the previous queen.” It was Camila. “I often saw them talking before, as if her highness was asking him for a favor. I always heard him ask if she was sure about her request and uncle would oblige.

“Are you saying that you trust him as well?” I asked and she nodded. She’s not the type who would agree with someone just because they are relatives, or they know each other. She has her own decision about everything that Rapha complains about most of the time

“I thought he was loyal to the King? Why is he asking you to meet your uncle? Shouldn’t he inform King Marco about this and the attack since I think he knew where they were hiding?” James asked again.

“It’s our chance to get him,” he added. And yes, that’s true. Only if Rapha didn’t tell me that I was going to regret it if I was not going to talk to him, so I told them that.

“The decision is yours. Either way, you will have to deal with him no matter what,” Calvin said, smiling.

“I can see that you are curious about what he has to say,” James said, and I nodded. “I would be, too, if I were you. No matter what your decision is, know that I am here.”

“And so am I.” Calvin said, smiling. Then I felt Freya’s hand on mine, so I looked at her.

"I'll go wherever you go."

"Thank you," I told them and that concluded my decision. I am going to have a talk with my uncle tomorrow. I know that it is too risky, and curiosity killed the cat indeed. But what else can I do? I had to know what he had to say.

The whole day I was all by myself. I know that I am physically prepared, but mentally and emotionally, I don't think so. Whether everything my uncle has sense or not, I know that I am going to get confused or angry. That's what I am afraid of. What if he said something that would anger me and, without thinking, I just went on a rampage?

"Hey, you alright?" Freya asked, it was morning, and I don't think I got a good night's sleep last night even if she was beside me. It's not that her presence calms me, it's because I was excited at some point, and I don't understand.

"Yeah, I'm fine." I replied, smiling. I didn't want her to worry so I needed to show her that. Although I am acting like that, my focus was on her. I had to ensure her safety with all this.

"You look like you never get any sleep at all. Tell me, does meeting him bother you so much? Because if it does, we just cannot go." she said.

"No, I'm good. I really am." I replied, "It's just that, I was thinking about what to expect. What could possibly be the things he wanted to talk to me about? Something like that." She turned my head to face her with both her hands and kissed me. It was very light, but I could feel her love and sincerity.

"You have nothing to worry about. You are the prince, the future Lycan King. You have a beast that has been to war before and won. You have me, Calvin, James and the others. Whatever it is that he will tell us, we will help you think about it."

"Thank you," I replied after I heaved a deep sigh.

"You're very much welcome," she replied, smiling before she offered me her hand, so I took it and went out of our bedroom to meet the others.

Everyone was at the front door of the pack house waiting for me and my mate. They all looked ready, which made me feel at ease. I know that I can count on them, especially Calvin and James, who have been with me for as long as I can remember. They never let me down even once and had been fighting together side by side on our missions for a very long time too.

"We're ready when you are," Calvin said as soon as I was closer. I smiled and looked at Alpha Jake,

"Make sure that everyone was in position. I don't know what will happen there but I want your and the other pack's safety." I told him and he nodded.

"Yes, his highness. We will make sure to heathen security and place more patrol guards. The bunkers are ready just in case as well," he replied,

"We will take our leave then," I said and turned around, leading everyone to my uncle's den.

Alpha Jake was right after all. His hideout was the private property that no one dared to enter. I guess he had found himself a good financier to be able to have that wealth. Yes, I think he's rich. He won't be able to pull anything if he isn't.

Lycan Prince Matteo by Lovella Chapter 70b

Chapter 70 (b)

We continue traveling until we reach the border of the neutral territory and the private property. A rogue welcome us and leads the way to the mansion. He was indeed wealthy. It was bigger than a pack house and had a lot of things. According to the map, the entire property is as big as a regular pack. But being actually here, I think it was bigger.

A man was standing by the front door of the mansion. He was looking at us, but I don't think he was planning on killing us. His face was very welcoming, and I felt like something hit me. Why do I never feel threatened? I looked around and saw no one, but I could feel and smell the rogues everywhere.

“Welcome to my humble abode,” he said after we stood face to face with each other, smiling. His heartbeat was normal, and his aura felt warm. I wonder why?

“You asked to meet me, I don’t know what you told him and until now, I couldn’t believe that you made him agree to this.”

“Don’t forget that I made you agree too.” he replied as he led us inside the mansion until we reached the living room. He mentioned us taking our seats and I looking at my mate.

“Keep your eyes to yourself.” I warned him and he chuckled.

“Are you jealous?” he asked,

“We didn’t come here to tell you that, just get to the point. Why are we here?” I asked and he laughed. We looked at each other and maybe they were thinking the same way as I do. He doesn’t look like an enemy to me.

“You are exactly just like your mother.” he commented, which angered

1. me.

“You have no right to say that. You don’t know her.” I said, growling, but Freya calmed me.

“It’s fine princess. Let him be.” he told my mate. He was respectful to my mate ! “I know your mother more than Marco or anyone. I know her because she’s my mate.”

“You’re lying. Liking her doesn’t mean that she has to like you too. We have mates and we have to respect that. You have no right to claim someone else’s mates.”

“I am not claiming to be anyone’s mate. I only have one mate and that is your mother, whom Marco took from me,” he said in a low and calm voice.

“You would have been on a rampage if dad really did that.”

“Yes, I did. But not anymore. I had to move on, but it doesn’t mean I have forgotten everything about her,” he replied, and I saw pain and a bit of regret in his eyes. I started to get confused. Why are we talking about my mother anyway?

“How did you manage to make Rapha agree to this?” I asked impatiently. I want an answer and I want it now.

“He came to me about 8 years ago,” he said, and that made my eyes widen. How could he come to this man? He knew who he was and yet- “Before you jump to a conclusion, let me tell you a story,” he said, and started telling us about his life. We are all quiet, listening to him.

For me it was unbelievable. I know my dad; he is a great man for me and here he was literally telling me how much of an evil Lycan he was. I couldn’t believe it. Calvin and James were growling from time to time in disagreement, but we saw how much pain he was in as he told us about what had happened. Especially on the part when my dad and mom were intimate. If he was really mom’s mate, he must be in so much pain. I looked at my mate because, more than any of us, she suffered because of my infidelity.

She had her head down and I already felt that my uncle had already got her. “I cannot do anything about that. That was your issue you need to settle. But still, that doesn’t give you the right to fight the palace.” I said, then he chuckled before he continued.

I cannot believe that my father did all that to him. After he told us about what my dad did and so did Ronaldo and his mate, I still couldn’t believe it. I don’t even know if I am going to believe it or what to believe anymore. “I know this is too much to take in one go, but I want to say this to you now. Matteo, you are mine,” he said. I looked at him with wide eyes, maybe I am not the only one. Maybe all of us who were there. “You are my son. You can ask Rapha about it, your mother tells that to him, and she made sure to let me know about it as well. It was the same reason why Rapha looked for me.” he added, and then I didn’t seem to hear anything he said.
