Chapter 41: NINA IS OUT OF CONTROL

Nina remembered she hadn't seen the rest of her room, so she walked towards one of the doors and discovered it was the bathroom. Nina doesn't know if she's entering a bathroom or a spa when she enters. Even the aromatic scent inside is the same as what we usually smell in a spa.

The bathroom has a breathtaking view of the ocean. On the other side of the bathroom is the walk-in closet.

Nina was dumbfounded when she saw the variety of clothes. She went crazy and put on different clothes of different styles and changed her makeup and jewelry. Nina was too happy and forgot her predicaments.

Nina took a lot of selfies and uploaded all of them on her WhatsApp to her satisfaction.

After dinner, Nina was in a hurry to check the status of her social media post. Nina was sure her friends must have seen it all and were already envious of her clothes and jewelry.

But never in her mind does she expect that.

"What?! What happened?! Why has my account been banned? This can't be!" Nina yelled like crazy.

"Noooooooo!!!"

Just as Nina was screaming like a mad woman, her phone rang from an unknown number.

"Who is this?" Nina answered anxiously.

"Young lady, why can't you just behave?" Mushu reprimands her in a deep voice.

"It's you! It's you who banned my account!" Nina recognized Mushu's voice.

"If you don't follow my instructions and behave, I will even take your phone. I would have allowed you to stroll anywhere you wanted, but you lost that opportunity. Just enjoy what you have, and don't abuse it. Otherwise, as I have said, you won't be able to take the consequences." Mushu hung up without waiting for her to say anything.

"Ah!" Nina wildly shouted in desperation, ran down to her parents, and told them what had happened.

"You! Didn't they tell us not to tell anyone where we were? And you dare to post in your WhatsApp! Have you gone mad?!" Her father reprimanded Nina as well. Mr. Xu asked his wife to return to their bedroom first, and he would handle their daughter.

"You are siding with them?" Nina tearfully asked.

"Don't you still understand? They have brought us here because our lives are in danger! Would your brother spend so much effort to send us here? For what?" Nina's father scolded her.

"You have learned what happened to Quan Ye, yet you still don't understand our plight. Nina, you are no longer young, yet you only care about playing around. I don't know what to do with you anymore. I have spoiled you too much!" Mr. Xu sighed deeply.

"One day, if you run into trouble and there is no one to help you, only then will you realize what life is all about. You won't stop until you lose everyone who cares about you." Mr. Xu turned around, left his daughter, Nina, without looking at her, and shut the bedroom door.

Nina could only feel bitterness in her heart and ran back to her room, frustrated.

'How could they all do this to me? Who am I to them? What am I to them?' Nina cried until she finally fell asleep.

The following day, Butler James waited for them before breakfast and led everyone to the gazebo, where the staff set up the breakfast table.

The gazebo has a spectacular view of the ocean. During this time, Butler James informs the family of three about the activities arranged for each of them.

"Mr. and Mrs. Xu and Young Miss. Master Chu Yan has arranged different activities for each one of you every day so you may not be bored while you are here and so you may remain healthy." Butler James announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Xu were delighted, but Nina's face contorted.

"Mr. and Mrs. Xu, You will have Tai Chi, Yoga, water aerobics, golf, swimming, massage, and acupuncture. And someone will come to play chess with you, Sir.

For Young Miss, Master Chu Yan said you need to learn how to cook to be proud of when you get married, so there will be a Michelin chef who will train you. Also, you will have piano lessons, painting, flower arrangement, and dance lessons." Butler James finished reading his note.

Mr. and Mrs. Xu were holding hands together. They were ecstatic

"Can you just kill me?" Nina blurted out.

Nina's parents were so shocked by her words. They never imagined their daughter would turn out like this one day. Mr. Xu has doted on her so much that he doesn't know why she won't listen.

"You! You will bring death out of me!" Mr. Xu yelled out at her daughter, holding onto his chest.

"If you don't want to do anything, then don't! Just shut yourself in your room and don't come out! Don't cause any trouble! And shut your mouth as well! No one will think you are mute if you don't speak! And if you make any trouble again, I will punish you myself!" Mr. Xu reprimanded Nina in anger.

"Dad!" Nina wanted to argue but was not given a chance by his father.

"Don't you believe I can punish you just because I have doted on you all these years?" Mr. Xu growled while pointing his finger at Nina.

Nina sobbed and ran back to her bedroom.

"She's getting out of hand! She's too much!" Mr. Xu said, trembling with anger.

"Relax, honey, drink some water." Mrs. Xu comforted her husband.

Nina cried until she felt she no longer had tears to shed, and then she made up her mind to get up from bed.

'I can't stay here! I'm leaving!' Nina ran out of her bedroom and directly headed out of the house. However, Nina never thought she would immediately be stopped by several men in black suits as she stepped out the door.

"Young lady, where do you think you are going?" Asked one of the security in a harsh voice. "I advise you to go back, or you don't know how our master could punish you for being so disobedient."

"Why are you treating us like a prisoner?" Nina angrily shouted at him.

"Have you seen a prisoner living in a castle being served with eighteen servants and fed with good food? You don't know how to appreciate what you have. You will only realize it once you lose it all! Go back!" The security yelled at her so loudly that she went back running in.

Will Nina cause too much trouble in the future? Why do I dislike her already?

Chapter 42: CHEF LEON

Butler James saw Nina in the living room, lost in her thoughts. The security had reported to him about Nina's attempt to run away.

"Young Miss, would you like some snacks? The Michelin chef has arrived and has been waiting for you. He has made some snacks while doing so. Why don't you try it so you'll know what you can create in the future." Butler James encouragingly told Nina.

But Nina seemed not to even care about what he said. She just looked at him with a straight face and turned to look away again.

"Young Miss, do you know that Michelin chefs are extremely difficult to hire? Inviting a Three-star Michelin chef would cost several millions of dollars to cook a meal for a day.

However, Master hired a Five Star Michelin Chef to teach you how to cook, and it would take several days. Can you imagine how much money they have paid for him, and you are wasting his time?" Butler James made an effort to explain to Nina.

What Butler James said made Nina turn and look at Butler James. She couldn't believe what she had heard about paying millions of dollars to these so-called Michelin chefs, and she didn't even know what they were.

'A three-star and a five-star? What would make a chef have all these stars? I only hear them with the military generals.' Nina thought.

"Lead the way," Nina monotonously said as she stood up and followed Butler James.

When they reached the dining hall, the Butler said, "First, you should have some snacks. You didn't eat much during breakfast. Wait for a while and have a seat." The Butler left but returned in no time, with servants carrying several snack trays and laying them in front of Nina.

Looking at the snacks made Nina's stomach growl. She was indeed famished. One of the servants also served her warm milk and fresh orange juice.

"Please help yourself, Young Miss." The helper carried one of the trays to Nina for her to pick. Nina took several and placed them on her plate. Just as she did, her parents arrived to join her.

"Nina, we just finished yoga!" Her mother exclaimed happily as she got off from her scooter. "At first, we didn't think we could do it, but the instructor was so good that we could do everything in the end!" Mrs. Xu couldn't hide the excitement from her voice and joined Nina at the dining table, with Mr. Xu following behind.

Nina could see her parents were so happy. She looked down and remained silent while taking a bite of the snack. It was delicious, but why couldn't she seem to swallow it?

"Um, these snacks are delicious!" Mr. Xu mumbled while eating.

"They are prepared by the chef who will teach the Young Miss." Butler James announces.

"That will be best! My daughter will be able to cook delicious meals for her future husband and in-laws. Then no one can look down on her." Mr. Xu said with pride.

Nina didn't say a word, but her heart was troubled.

"Young Miss, after you eat, I will show you the kitchen where the Chef is waiting for you." Butler James asked Nina courteously.

Without a word, Nina stood up, looked at Butler James, and gave him a nod. Butler James took this as his cue to lead her to the kitchen.

Nina didn't expect to see a young foreign man be the Michelin Chef.

"Good Morning, you must be Nina. I'm Chef Leon." He introduced himself with a strong accent.

"Would it be alright to teach you how to cook?" Chef Leon asked Nina with a big smile, showing how handsome he was.

Nina could only purse her lips and nod.

"Perfect! Let us start then!" Chef Leon exclaimed enthusiastically.

He called for his assistant and asked to give Nina an apron, cover her hair, and assist her in washing her hands.

"Have you ever cooked before?" Chef Leon asked her.

Nina shook her head.

"That's alright. Let me show you around the kitchen first and give you an idea of all the equipment and tools and what they are all about," Chef Leon said.

After some time, Chef Leon finished showing each and explaining each item, even showing Nina the types of knives and their uses.

"First, I'll teach you how to cut and slice differently. Chef Leon said he took another type of vegetable and a knife and cut it into other pieces and sizes.

"These are various ways of cutting. This cut is what you call a batonnet, while this is julienne, rough julienne, macedoine, large dice, medium dice, small dice, brunoise, crush, wedges, and split.

There are plenty more, but these are the most basic. So I'd like you to start with these." Chef Leon explains while pointing to all the vegetables sliced on the table and showing them to Nina.

Looking at them, they looked effortless in Nina's eyes and mind. 'How can cutting these vegetables into squares and rectangles be so difficult?' Nina thought mindlessly and snorted.

"Okay," Nina answered flatly.

"Come here. Let us do Julien first. I'll show you how to do it step by step. You follow me." Chef Leon instructed Nina.

Chef Leon gave Nina a piece of red pepper and a knife, and they stood face to face, with the sample of julienne-cut pepper between them.

But Nina did not waste time waiting for Chef Leon as instructed; instead, she directly cut the red pepper the way she wanted to and believed that she could do it in her mind.

Chef Leon could only watch her attack the poor pepper recklessly, and he was not surprised to see Nina's finger bleeding the next minute. His assistants were dumbfounded but came running with the first aid kit.

"Young Miss! Let us wash your finger first so I can apply some ointment immediately!" Chef Leon's assistant said anxiously.

When Chef Leon's assistant was already applying the medicine to Nina's wound, she said to Nina, "Young Miss, How could you not listen to Chef Leon? Do you know how precious his time is? He never takes a student.

If not for your brother, Chef Leon would never take you, who knows nothing about the kitchen. If Chef Leo chose to be a mentor, he would have chosen someone with knowledge but turned everyone down." The assistant said bitterly.
