

Chapter 108

Elric, feeling a twinge of jealousy, asked Lindsay, "Were you and Justin a couple? Did you two have a fight?"

Lindsay nodded. "We did date before, but I broke up with him before coming here."

She emphasized, "I mentioned on the first day that I had cut ties with him, and I wasn't joking— I was serious."

Elric's mood suddenly brightened, shifting from gloomy to cheerful. "So, you two have already broken up. No wonder both of you don't seem like a couple."

He added bluntly, "I never thought you two were a good match."

Fearing Lindsay might misunderstand, he clarified, "He doesn't deserve you."

Charles agreed, "That's right."

Despite the public arguing that Lindsay was clinging to Justin and didn't deserve him, Charles, like Elric, believed that Justin didn't deserve Lindsay.

Relationships shouldn't be judged by someone's fame or status.

Justin had spent a lot of time during the live broadcast subtly and overtly helping and protecting Olivia, which made him seem insincere.

Seeing Elric's earnest expression and Charles' approval, Lindsay's eyes sparkled with a smile. "Thank you both."

Having people choose to support her and stand by her side made her genuinely happy.

Charles said, "You two carry on with cooking. I'll head out."

He had come in to remind Lindsay to be prepared and think of a way to respond.

Seeing her confidence reassured him.

As Charles left, and before the cameraman returned, Elric leaned closer to Lindsay and said, "If you need any help, just ask."

He promised, "I will definitely help you sort it out."

Lindsay smiled and said, "Thanks for your offer. I can handle this on my own."

Seeing Elric's disappointed expression, like an abandoned puppy, she added, "But if I need help, I'll reach out to you."

Elric's face lit up with a bright smile. "Deal."

He emphasized, "Don't go to anyone else, just come to me."

Lindsay couldn't help but laugh. "Alright!"

Elric thought for a moment and said, "You should call your manager and inform them about this. They need to be ready for any PR issues."

Although their personal phones had been handed in, the production team didn't stop them from using the provided phones to contact the outside world when necessary.

Given their profession, they needed to handle tricky situations promptly.

Lindsay shook her head. "I don't have a manager anymore. My previous manager was Oliver, Alex's second brother. Before coming here, I cut ties with the Harper family and left Harper Entertainment."

Elric hadn't known much about Lindsay before, so he was unaware of her situation with her manager.

Hearing this, he frowned. "If your manager was Oliver, he definitely wouldn't help you now. That guy would only help Olivia."

Lindsay gave him a reassuring look. "I don't need his help. In fact, I should thank him for stirring up all this trouble."

It would only make her counterattack more effective, right?

"Don't worry, they can't bring me down."

She added meaningfully, "Let the public opinion continue to ferment. After the show ends, I'll give them a real surprise."

Seeing Lindsay's confidence, Elric stopped worrying.

He blinked and said, "Alright, I'll be waiting to see how you turn the tables on them."

There was one more thing he didn't mention: he would be her loyal supporter.

If she didn't manage to take down those who bullied and slandered her, he would step in.

He would prove it with his actions.