

Chapter 126

Especially since he had just seen the video of them being intimate while in the car.

The video showed Olivia and Alex in the courtyard, hugging and even kissing, caught live on a surprise broadcast.

He felt relieved that Lindsay and the Harper brothers didn't have such a close relationship; otherwise, he would have been thoroughly disgusted. It was mostly the Harper brothers who disgusted him.

However, since Olivia wasn't his girlfriend, their sibling intimacy didn't concern him. But now, needing an outlet for his frustration, Justin lashed out after Alex's accusations.

Seething with anger, Alex retorted, "We just have a close sibling relationship. It's your dirty mind that twists it into something else."

Justin scoffed. "I could say the same about you. There's nothing going on between me and Olivia. Believe what you want."

Justin didn't even bother finishing his dinner and called Charles to arrange another car for him. He didn't want to see Olivia and Alex anymore. Besides, if they were seen together at the airport, it would only fuel more rumors.

Charles was a bit taken aback by the call.

After some inquiry, he found that Sharon's car was near the restaurant. He asked Justin if he could ride with Sharon, as there wasn't enough time to arrange a separate car.

Justin, eager to avoid Alex and Olivia, agreed without hesitation. He stood outside the restaurant, waiting for the car.

Meanwhile, Alex and Olivia had fallen into a cold silence.

Olivia continued to cry, and in the past, Alex would have comforted her by now. But this time, he irritably ran a hand through his hair and walked out of the restaurant without comforting her.

Ignoring Justin standing by the roadside, Alex got into the car with a cold expression. Instead of sitting in the back as usual, he took the front passenger seat, signaling his irritation and need for distance.

Seeing Alex leave without a word, abandoning her, Olivia felt even more aggrieved, tears streaming down her face. A sense of crisis welled up within her.

She always knew that Lindsay was very important to Alex.

Previously, she had used manipulative tactics to subtly turn them against Lindsay, making them believe that Lindsay frequently bullied her and wanted to force her out of the Harper family. By leveraging their childhood bond and the many years of shared affection, she managed to get them on her side.

This was the first time Alex had sided against her because of Lindsay.

If she were truly in a relationship with Justin, she could have accepted the consequences.

But she wasn't!

She saw herself as the most innocent and wronged victim, so why was Alex blaming her?

And Justin was a jerk too. He didn't even comfort her; he just left.

Both of them were treating her this way because of Lindsay. It was too much.

Lindsay, Lindsay—why couldn't that woman just leave her alone?

At that moment, Olivia's resentment toward Lindsay grew even deeper.

Why couldn't that woman just disappear? Why did she have to come back and ruin her life?

She felt as if Lindsay's presence was haunting her, never giving her peace.

After a moment of thought, Olivia picked up her phone and called Oliver.

Oliver, already feeling irritable, saw Olivia's call and felt a sudden urge not to answer.

She had hidden her secret interactions with Justin from them, and he was not only her agent but also her doting older brother.

Didn't she trust him at all?

And out of all the men, why did she have to get involved with Lindsay's boyfriend?

This whole situation was difficult for him to accept.

Before the live broadcast, he had specifically called Justin, asking him to take extra care of her.

Who would have thought that they had already been meeting privately and had a complicated relationship? Did they really think he was a fool?

With a heavy sigh, he reluctantly answered the phone.
