

Chapter 127

The ringing stopped briefly, then resumed.

Oliver finally answered, "What's wrong?"

Olivia, crying and feeling wronged, said, "Oliver, I'm so upset. Alex is bullying me. He not only doesn't believe me but also scolded me and left me here alone."

Hearing Olivia complain, Oliver's first instinct was usually to comfort her and then call Alex to scold him. But now, he pinched the bridge of his nose, his eyes filled with fatigue. "Why did he scold you? Is it because your relationship with Justin is complicated?"

In a serious tone, he asked, "Olivia, tell me honestly, are you involved with Justin behind everyone's back?"

Olivia expected her second brother to comfort her and call Alex to defend her. Instead, he asked her these three direct questions.

"I'm not! Justin and I are just friends," she insisted, feeling even more aggrieved. "We haven't been secretly seeing each other. Oliver, don't you believe me either?"

Oliver paused for a moment. "The evidence online makes it hard to believe there's nothing between you two."

Olivia shouted through her tears, "There's nothing between us! If you don't believe me, fine. You're all bullying me."

She angrily hung up the phone.

In the past, she had faked being mistreated by Lindsay to gain sympathy and manipulate everyone within the Harper family.

Now, she wasn't faking it.

Having been pampered and spoiled by the Harper family, she had never felt so genuinely wronged. Spoiled by Oliver and the others, she now threw a tantrum, expecting Oliver to call back and comfort her.

But this time, Oliver was also furious.

After the call ended abruptly, he threw his phone to the ground in anger.

Olivia waited several minutes but still didn't receive a call back from Oliver.

Frustrated, she nearly threw her phone in anger.

Alex hadn't come back to find her either.

With no other option, she walked out, tears still streaming down her face.

She saw Justin standing a short distance away, while Alex had returned to the car.

After some thought, she approached Justin. "Justin, I'm sorry. My brother was just impulsive and misunderstood the situation. I'll explain everything to them."

As soon as Olivia got close, Justin stepped aside, putting some distance between them. "It's fine. I didn't take his words to heart."

Justin's reaction hurt Olivia deeply. She felt like she was about to explode from the injustice.

Did Justin see her as some sort of monster?

"Justin, what do we do now? Whatever you decide, I'll fully cooperate," she said, trying to suppress her emotions and show her understanding and support. She knew Justin wasn't like her brothers. To avoid being labeled as the third party in Lindsay's relationship, she had to endure this and appear magnanimous.

Of course, she didn't want to be branded as the one who interfered in Lindsay's relationship. That would ruin her reputation and make it impossible for her to thrive in the entertainment industry and become an A-list celebrity.

This matter required Justin to resolve it

Thinking about it made his head ache even more.

"I don't know either," he admitted.

At that moment, Sharon's car pulled up.

Seeing this, Justin said to Olivia, "I have to go now. If there's anything I need help with to clear things up, I'll contact you."

He then turned and walked towards the car without looking back, leaving Olivia standing there with red, tear-streaked eyes.

Neither of them noticed a girl in the distance taking photos with her phone. She captured images of Justin and Olivia standing together and of Olivia's tearful face.

Watching Justin's car drive away, Olivia felt a surge of frustration.

Justin was clueless and insensitive, and it made her furious, yet she was helpless.

She returned to the car they had originally been in, opened the door, and sat in the back seat. Ignoring Alex, she leaned against the window and sobbed quietly, hoping Alex would soften and comfort her.

The driver, seeing that Justin had left in another car and that the two siblings were now in the vehicle, started the engine and followed behind.
