

Chapter 134

Once they returned to the apartment, Lindsay scrolled through her phone.

"A-List Actor Justin Called a Cheating Scumbag and Beaten by His Own Sister" and "Justin's Emotional Performance" dominated the top two trending spots.

She clicked on the first one.

The video showed Jenny calling Justin a scumbag and beating him up, capturing the entire scene, including Jenny's comments about their mother.

The comments were filled with praise for Jenny, calling her cool and applauding her actions. The consensus was that Justin's reputation as a scumbag was now undeniable, given his own sister's accusations.

Lindsay held the phone up to Jenny. "You're trending."

"The Ford family might come to drag you back after hearing what you said."

Since Lindsay had dated Justin and was close to Jenny, she was well-acquainted with the Ford family dynamics.

Currently, Justin's father was the head of the Ford family. Being the third son, he had ousted his two older brothers to take control of the Ford Corporation. Though the family branches appeared harmonious, there was underlying resentment from the other two.

Unable to challenge Justin's father directly, they often targeted Jenny to create trouble for their branch.

Previously, Jenny had made headlines for street racing with a group of wealthy heirs. When the Ford family found out, they taunted her parents, leading to Jenny being locked in her room for several days as punishment. Now, by publicly criticizing her mother, she had made the situation even worse.

Jenny glanced at the phone and then flopped onto the couch.

"Let them be," she said, rolling her eyes. "At most, they'll lock me up and starve me for a few days. They never come up with anything new."

Lindsay reassured her, "Don't worry, you'll stay with me, and I won't let them take you away."

Jenny smiled. "Alright, I'll stick with you then."

With a serious expression, she looked at Lindsay and asked, "Linds, did you really break up with Justin? Is what they're saying online true?"

Lindsay nodded. "Yes, I really broke up with him. Most of what they're saying online is true. Justin explained that he was only nice to Olivia because an elder told him to do so. But it takes two to tango. He chose to hide things from me and repeatedly met up with Olivia in private.

"And whenever there was a conflict between Olivia and me, he always sided with her. So, I felt such a man wasn't worth it. That's why we broke up."

Jenny knew Lindsay used to have deep feelings for her brother. For her to make such a decisive break showed just how badly Justin had behaved.

"Alright, I support your decision to break up with him. From the moment he chose someone else over you, he stopped being worthy of your affection."

Even though Justin was her brother, Jenny stood by what was right.

Lindsay's eyes softened with warmth. "I knew you would still be on my side."

Jenny reached out and pinched Lindsay's cheek. "Of course."

She spoke honestly, "If Justin hadn't been such a jerk, I might have tried to persuade you to reconcile and helped you both make up. But after all the crap he pulled? Honestly, Linds, I think you made the right call dumping him."

Lindsay laughed. "You were pretty awesome today too."

Jenny smirked proudly. "Of course. Since he dared to mess with you, he deserved the beating."

Lindsay asked, "How long are you planning to stay this time?"

Jenny replied, "I don't plan on leaving this time."

Lindsay was taken aback and looked at her. "Is Joey coming back?"

Jenny's eyes dimmed. "No, he probably won't be back for a while."

