

Chapter 153

Lindsay and Jenny were cooking in their apartment.

When Lindsay saw an unfamiliar number calling, she knew it was from Albert.

She answered, "Hello!"

Albert spoke up, "Miss Summer, it's me."

Lindsay asked, "Mr. Watson, have you found the answer?"

Albert, hearing Lindsay's unsurprised tone, was even more convinced of her abilities.

"Did you predict everything that happened tonight, Miss Summer?"

Lindsay replied honestly, "Not exactly. I just saw from your face that you're low in luck when it comes to love. And you have troublemakers around you. Those troublemakers are colluding to harm you. I also calculated that tonight would be the best time for you to solve your doubts and get answers. That's why I suggested it."

She didn't have divine sight; it was impossible for her to predict every detail of what happened to Albert tonight.

However, she could roughly calculate some of his personal matters, like Albert being betrayed by his wife, who colluded with others against him.

But since Albert cared about his reputation and they would become colleagues in the future, there was no need to be too specific.

Albert sighed in relief.

Being manipulated like this, with his own wife turning against him on someone else's orders, was deeply humiliating. He dreaded the idea of his future boss discovering it.

He asked, "Miss Summer, are you really planning to take revenge on the Harper brothers and poach talents from Harper Entertainment?"

He wanted to confirm once more to strengthen his resolve.

Lindsay replied, "Absolutely, otherwise, why would I bother poaching your team? The Harper brothers are proud and can't tolerate others who aren't recruited by them. Your team was originally much stronger than the new operations team but was schemed into being sidelined. I want to bring you over so our studio can thrive further.

"People will say those brothers couldn't tell a diamond from a rhinestone, while I have the eye to spot true talent. This will not only boost my studio's strength but also deliver a serious blow to the Harper brothers, wouldn't you agree?

"In the future, we can make Harper Entertainment fall behind when competing for offers. Doesn't it feel great to keep hitting them where it hurts? Moreover, it will make the shareholders of the Harper Group dissatisfied with Edmund, thinking he lacks ability.

"If he can't manage an entertainment company well, how can he handle the vast Harper Group in the future?"

She then asked, "So, Mr. Watson, are you ready to join my studio and take on the Harper brothers together?"

After hearing Lindsay's words, Albert knew she was serious; she had thought this through so thoroughly.

This wasn't just about delivering a blow to the Harper brothers; she wanted to knock Edmund off his position as the heir to the Harper Group.

He had to admit, her words struck a chord with him.

He really wanted to humiliate the Harper brothers and Robert, making them realize what kind of trash they were holding onto and what kind of gem they had lost.

At this moment, he felt a sense of camaraderie with Lindsay.

"Alright, as long as Miss Summer is determined to follow through with what you said, I'll bring my team and join you."

Lindsay smiled. "Welcome, Mr. Watson, and your team. No, I need to change the way I address you. From now on, I should call you, our director."

Albert replied, "Then I should call you, my boss."

They exchanged a few pleasantries.

Albert added, "But there's a problem. They've always wanted the information and resources I have. If I take the team and switch to your side without handing over these, the company won't let us go.

"Otherwise, they wouldn't have resorted to such despicable means to scheme against me. If we forcefully resign, the higher-ups at Harper Entertainment will likely spread rumors about us in the industry, calling us incompetent and such."