

Chapter 155

Albert decided not to stay for the night; the situation was too revolting for him.

He called someone to find out which hotel the two were staying at. Then, he carefully reviewed the artists' information before sending a list and details to Lindsay.

After that, Albert gathered his trusted team members, the ones he planned to take with him, at his home.

He didn't tell them that Mary had been planted by the new director.

The embarrassment of being so meticulously set up was too much to bear.

Instead, he told them he had discovered his wife was cheating with Robert. He explained that his two recent failures were the result of their collusion with Oliver.

Not only did they aim to bring him down, but they also wanted him to take his team and leave. He played a recording for them, editing out the earlier parts and focusing on the segment where the two discussed getting rid of everyone.

The team was outraged, feeling the Harper brothers were too ruthless. They were company veterans, and they had contributed significantly to its growth. Yet, they wanted to discard them without showing any grace.

"Since the Harper brothers and Mr. Robert are acting so despicably, we don't need to be polite either."

"Right, let's fight back."

After stirring up their anger, Albert seized the moment to reveal his plan to join Lindsay's studio. These team members had weathered many storms with him and trusted his judgment.

The company no longer had a place for them. If they tried to join another company, they might get outcasted or struggle to integrate with the new team, unable to advance.

So, they decided to take a chance and join Lindsay's studio. An added incentive was the attractive salary and commission Lindsay offered, which resonated with them. They all had families to support, and the high pay was hard to refuse.

Everyone agreed to follow Albert in the job switch.

Albert had quietly copied and deleted the data from the company without raising any suspicion.

He and Lindsay agreed to confront Edmund the next day.

With no reservations left, Albert received a message confirming the hotel where the two were staying.

He gathered his team and headed to the hotel to catch them in the act. They would experience firsthand the consequences of their betrayal.

Albert's mother, usually gentle and never one to interfere in her son's marriage, was an ideal mother-in-law.

But this time, she couldn't hold back. She called upon her dance group friends and close neighbors to join in the confrontation. If there was to be a divorce, she wanted the woman to leave with nothing, and they needed evidence for that.

Albert decided to conceal the fact that he had been set up, but he didn't intend to hide the infidelity. It was necessary to have a legitimate reason to reclaim his dignity.

The group arrived at the hotel and successfully caught the two in the act.

Before entering, Albert took out his phone and started recording a video. He kicked open the door and captured the compromising scene on camera. Then, he and his team gave Robert a thorough beating.

Albert's mother, along with her friends, dragged Mary out and gave her a sound thrashing as well.

Their commotion alarmed the hotel staff and the nearby guests.

However, when onlookers realized it was a case of catching an adulterer and punishing the affair, they all cheered, saying they deserved it.

Albert and his team vented their anger, announced the intention to divorce, paid the hotel for the damaged door, and left.

They left behind a completely bewildered Robert and a tearful Mary. The two didn't know that Albert had discovered what happened at the company. They guessed someone might have seen them at the hotel and informed Albert.

They began brainstorming how to resolve the situation without informing Edmund and Oliver.

As a result, the Harper brothers were still unaware that they had once again been betrayed by their own sister.

Back at the apartment, Lindsay and Jenny were reviewing the list of potential recruits. They picked out one file first.

It was about a newcomer who had gained popularity from a school heartthrob photo and was then signed by Harper Entertainment. The manager had arranged for him to act in an idol drama.
