Chapter 165

Olivia's decisive rebuttal made Alex and the others look at her in surprise.

Realizing her intense reaction, she bit her lip and said, "If we quit, it will look like we're scared. It would only confirm those accusations against me and Justin. I'm not guilty, so I'm not afraid. I want to continue participating and prove that Lindsay misunderstood us and clear my name."

She had never told the Harper family that she occasionally had prophetic dreams since childhood.

For instance, she dreamt their father would be set up to have an affair by another woman, so she took their mother to catch them in the act, preventing it from happening.

After dreaming that Edmund would accidentally fall from a building, so she arrived just in time to get him to the hospital.

When she dreamt that a particular script would become a hit, she had Brandon secure it from the original director.

Seeing a song's potential for success in a dream, she suggested Raymond buy it from the songwriter.

She foresaw an idol trainee rising to fame and advised Alex to join the competition.

When she dreamt that Oliver's protégé would be embroiled in a scandal, she recommended he act preemptively, framing the other actress as the interloper, which led to her downfall.

Since childhood, she had been their lucky star.

These dreams didn't provide detailed processes, just hints.

For example, when she dreamt that the live reality show Lindsay participated in would be a hit, making Lindsay famous, she wanted to take that spot, believing the fame would be hers.

Even if Oliver couldn't ultimately gain the fame, she still felt compelled to participate. She had also dreamt of a drama that would become a surprise hit this year, so she had Oliver secure the lead role for her. After finishing the reality show, she planned to star in that drama.

As for the actress who would have originally risen to fame because of that drama, it simply meant she was out of luck.

Olivia believed that in this industry, it was survival of the fittest.

If anyone else had known about these opportunities in advance, she was sure they would have fought for the opportunity.

Not even her closest five brothers knew about her secret. She just gave other reasons, conveniently using it to put Lindsay in a bad light.

Olivia firmly believed that the first episode had been a fluke for Lindsay and that she could turn things around in the second episode.

Olivia was convinced that she was the one truly favored by fate.

Hearing Olivia's determination, Alex had no choice but to abandon the idea of quitting the show. He sighed, "Alright, let's continue participating."

During the next episode, he would try to reconcile with Lindsay, hoping to ease the hostility.

Their sister seemed to have gone completely crazy, relentlessly targeting them.

First, it was him and Olivia, now it was Oliver.

Raymond agreed, "Via should continue. Otherwise, people might think she's guilty."

Brandon added, "Yes, let's just continue with the show and use it to clear up the misunderstandings about Via."

Olivia's eyes sparkled with tears at their support, but she flashed a bright smile. "Thank you, brothers. I knew you were the best!"

The four of them squeezed onto a single couch, huddled together to talk. The other three brainstormed with Olivia on how to stand out in the next episode.

Although they were sitting close, they didn't hug, so the housekeeper turned a blind eye.

Meanwhile, on the other side.

Lindsay and Jenny finalized the team they wanted to recruit and started planning development paths for the three new members. They discussed how to find the best resources for them.

Lindsay knew which dramas and movies would become hits in the next year and which artists would gain sudden popularity or rise to fame through certain reality shows.
