Chapter 179

Although Oliver was very angry, he no longer underestimated his sister.

"She must have some backup plan. But Fiona won't be able to clear her name. We destroyed all the evidence. Unless those two under me come forward and expose everything, Fiona has no chance of making a comeback. And that's not going to happen."

He was confident about this.

Edmund knew his brother never left any loose ends.

Moreover, it had been more than a year since the incident. It would be difficult for Lindsay and her team to find any evidence.

He asked, "What do you plan to do?"

Oliver replied, "First, we'll reveal that Lindsay rejected the great contract Elric fought hard to get for her and instead opened her own studio. We'll set the narrative and turn Elric's fans against her. Let their fans start fighting among themselves. This will also strain her relationship with Elric.

"Anyone would be upset if their efforts were wasted, especially someone as proud and arrogant as Elric, the heir from a wealthy family."

He continued, "Next, we'll expose that Lindsay not only signed Fiona but also helped her get on the next episode of that live reality show. Fiona's reputation is already tarnished. If Lindsay isn't worried about ruining her own reputation, I'll help fan the flames.

"By signing someone like Fiona, who has been involved in scandals, Lindsay's character will also be questioned. I'll have our paid commentators stir things up, and Lindsay will be dragged down by Fiona and face public backlash."

He shrugged. "This isn't me trying to set her up. She's brought this on herself by opposing us."

Edmund thought for a moment. "What if she finds evidence to clear Fiona's name?"

Oliver said, "The evidence against Fiona was solid and undeniable at that time. Unless she can recover the deleted photos, videos, and chat records, it's impossible. As far as I know, Fiona had already tried to restore the evidence and failed. Otherwise, she wouldn't still be a notorious figure even now."

Edmund considered it and agreed, "You're right. But take it easy. Don't push her too far. She's still our sister, and we do have some feelings for her after spending the past year together."

If only Lindsay could soften her stance a bit and learn to be more flexible, things wouldn't have escalated to this point.

Oliver waved his hand dismissively, "I know, I just want her to admit her mistakes."

From the beginning, he never intended to push Lindsay to the brink. He just wanted her to realize her errors and come back, bowing her head to them. Once she returned, he hoped for a harmonious relationship, without her being so prickly.

Though he could be ruthless, he wasn't heartless enough to destroy his own sister.

"When her studio fails, I'll offer her a contract even better than the one from Star Entertainment," he added. "As long as she behaves, I'll overlook the past and provide her with resources to support her."

Edmund nodded in agreement. "That sounds good!"

After discussing a bit more, Oliver went to make arrangements.

Soon, a well-known blogger revealed that Lindsay had turned down the contract from Elric and started her own studio. This was followed by some people stirring the pot, suggesting that Lindsay intentionally disrespected Elric. Rejecting such a good contract from Star Entertainment was seen as disrespecting Elric.

Elric received the news immediately. He didn't need to investigate to know it was Oliver's doing. Concerned that his fans might be swayed by the paid commenters and turn against Lindsay, he consulted her and then promptly posted on Instagram.

"Congratulations to Linds on becoming her own boss! Remember to treat us to a meal!"

Seeing this, Lindsay quickly responded with a post of her own.

"Thank you, El! Treating everyone to a meal is a must."
