

Chapter 22

Wendy had a pretty good impression of Lindsay and wanted to lighten the mood and change the topic.

So, she said to Lindsay, "Weren't you going to weave straw hats? Why don't you teach me? I'll see if I can learn."

Lindsay nodded. "Sure!"

She patiently took some reeds and started teaching Wendy how to weave a straw hat.

Elric and Leslie exchanged a glance, then each pulled up a chair to sit and watch them weave.

Meanwhile, the comments in the live stream were filled with controversy.

"Lindsay must be crazy! Not only did she insult my Lex, but she also snapped at Justin. Who does she think she is?"

"Exactly! She's just a third-rate actress. How dare she go against top stars and an award-winning actor? Who gave her the courage?"

"Lindsay is so rude and disrespectful to her seniors. I dislike her more and more."

"My Lex was just worried about his sister. Lindsay is the one who's out of line."

"Not just out of line, she's completely lost it!"

"Justin was only trying to tell her she was being too rude and asked her to stop. What's with her attitude? She doesn't recognize a good person when she sees one."

"No wonder Justin cut ties with her. With that sharp tongue of hers, she's not fit to be his friend with anyone."

"After all the care Justin has shown her over the years, she's just an ungrateful bitch."

"Lindsay is a manipulative bitch, trying to play hard to get with Alex and Justin."

"She's probably using this method to gain attention and stir up drama."

"I can't agree with the comments from Alex's and Justin's fans."

"Me neither. Didn't Alex initially order Lindsay to cook with a commanding tone?"

"So, is it wrong to reject someone?"

"Does your Alex think he's a king? Are his words supposed to be law? Linds doesn't owe him anything."

"Linds has never used Justin's name to seek opportunity or publicity. We can't call her ungrateful."

"They grew up as childhood friends, but Justin sides with outsiders. No wonder Linds wants to cut ties."

"I'm just a bystander, but honestly, I didn't think Lindsay's actions were over the top. If anything, Alex was being a bully."

"Finally, someone said what I was thinking. Alex came off as really domineering. I'm glad Lindsay stood up to him."

"Doesn't anyone else feel like something's off here?"

"What's off?"

"It feels like Lindsay's relationship with Alex, Olivia, and Justin is more complicated than it seems."

"I noticed that too. Olivia was in such a hurry to drag her brother back to the kitchen like she was afraid he'd reveal something."

"And Alex's earlier words sounded like he and Lindsay had some prior connection."

"I think Lindsay is deliberately distancing herself from them."

"Yeah, it seems like Lindsay genuinely doesn't want anything to do with them."

"They were the ones who started this mess."

"Alex and Justin's fans are so biased. Ignoring their Alex is playing hard to get? That's ridiculous."

"Alex isn't worth much, he's not irresistible."

"By the way, doesn't anyone think Alex and his sister are a bit too close?"

"I didn't notice it before, but seeing them hold hands, it does seem a bit awkward."

"I'm very close with my brother, but we've never been as touchy as Alex and his sister."

"I only act that way with my boyfriend."

The conversation quickly veered off course.

People started discussing Lindsay and Alex's sibling relationship and how their actions seemed more like those of a couple.

This was exactly what Lindsay had intended by making those comments earlier.

Otherwise, most people wouldn't have paid much attention to the siblings' overly affectionate behavior.

With her subtle hint, viewers would now unconsciously scrutinize their interactions more closely, revealing many issues.

Meanwhile, in the kitchen, Olivia endured the pain in her hand and finished cooking the last two dishes.

Comments

Support