

Chapter 33

"Who would plan a script that could have cost four lives?"

"This is a live broadcast! Are you blind? Can't you see anything?"

"Anyone with eyes could tell that those thrilling moments weren't acted out."

"Try following this script yourselves! If you can pull it off, I'll eat my words."

"Why can't face-reading be this accurate?"

"Weren't there several mystics doing live fortune-telling before?"

"I'm speechless at these brainless fans."

"Do you have any conscience, criticizing such brave actions?"

"In the eyes of these brainless fans, all that matters is praising their idols."

"Fans of Alex, Olivia, and Justin, you've gone too far. Even as a bystander, I can't stand it anymore."

"Exactly, Lindsay and Elric didn't offend any of you. Why are you so fixated on badmouthing them?"

"I'm so tired of seeing them now. They're making me dislike those three even more."

"I already disliked them before, and now it's even worse."

It wasn't just Elric's fans who were fed up with the trio. Fans of Leslie,

Wendy, and other bystanders were also annoyed by these comments. Naturally, the brainless fans of the trio didn't back down and started arguing with fans of other groups and bystanders.

Meanwhile, after Lindsay and Elric had finished their showers and changed clothes, Eddy and his brother, Austin Lynn, brought the two children to the courtyard. Grateful expressions on their faces, they looked at Lindsay and Elric. "Thank you so much for today."

They even wanted to kneel to show their thanks, but Lindsay quickly stopped them. "We knew the children were in danger. We couldn't just stand by and do nothing. We only did what was right."

This was the second time Lindsay mentioned doing what she thought was right. Instead of making people dislike her, it made everyone see her as genuine.

She wasn't trying to take credit but had truly saved lives.

Eddy emphasized gratefully, "No matter what, you are great benefactors to both our families."

If Lindsay hadn't noticed something was wrong with his face and rushed to the reservoir in time, even jumping in to save the children before they were in real danger, he couldn't imagine what would have happened to the children.

Austin nodded in agreement. "Yes, we won't forget this kindness."

Their family only had one son, whom they treated like the apple of their eye. If their son had been swept into the reservoir and drowned, they wouldn't have been able to bear it.

The two brothers insisted on repaying the favor, asking Lindsay and Elric what they wanted, promising to give anything they had.

Their enthusiasm made it hard for Lindsay to refuse outright. So, she said, "Then how about treating us to a meal?"

When she had seen Eddy's face earlier, her only thought was to save the children as quickly as possible.

She hadn't expected any reward. Seeing that they felt obligated to repay her, she suggested a meal.

Eddy responded, "One meal is not enough."

"How about this? While you're in the village filming, come to my house for meals," he insisted.

Lindsay's laughter was tinged with exasperation. "Really, there's no need."

She suggested, "Maybe you can each treat us to a meal?"

However, the two brothers continued their enthusiastic invitations, suggesting that Lindsay and Elric alternate eating at their homes.

At this point, Charles couldn't help but intervene. "We are filming a show. They can't keep going to your houses for meals."

The situation left everyone in stitches, but it also underscored the deep gratitude and connection that had formed.