

Chapter 34

Hearing Adam's words, Eddy and Austin remembered that Lindsay and Elric were celebrities and were in the village to film a show. Worried about affecting their filming, they agreed.

Eddy said, "Alright, then you can have lunch at my brother's house and dinner at mine."

"Today, you've been through a lot and are exhausted, so you don't need to work in the orchard. Just rest well."

Knowing that Leslie and Wendy were on Lindsay's team, they warmly invited them to join them for meals as well and told them to take the day off from the orchard. Their sincere hospitality was hard to refuse, so the four agreed.

After Eddy and Austin left, Wendy and Leslie stayed in the courtyard. Leslie smiled at Lindsay. "We managed to win again today, thanks to you two."

He genuinely admired Lindsay and Elric's bravery in saving the children. If it had been him, he might not have had the courage to jump into the water with the reservoir gates open.

This event made Leslie respect Lindsay and Elric even more. Their willingness to risk their lives to save the children showed admirable character and honesty. It was easy to interact with and trust people like them.

Wendy felt the same way. She looked at Lindsay with sparkling eyes and said, "Linds, you're amazing."

Not only was Lindsay skilled at face-reading, but she was also incredibly brave.

Wendy, who could swim, wasn't sure she would have had the courage to jump in. Especially during the most dangerous current, Lindsay abandoned her own chance to reach the shore and turned back to save Elric. Both of them could have easily been swept away.

Wendy couldn't see herself doing that, but she deeply admired those who could.

Lindsay smiled. "I've been working out regularly, so my stamina is decent."

She then suggested, "Since we don't have to go to the orchard today, why don't we find some tasks to do here in the courtyard? We can continue doing similar work afterward."

Her attempt to change the subject only increased the admiration of those present.

If it were someone else, they would probably keep bringing up the rescue during the live broadcast. Elric didn't want to repeatedly mention the rescue either. They saved the children because it was the right thing to do, not to seek praise.

He said, "Sure, what tasks should we take on?"

Lindsay thought for a moment. "What are you good at? I can repair electrical appliances."

Elric joked, "Does being good at playing video games count?"

Lindsay laughed. "You're a champion in eSports and brought glory to the country, so being good at video games definitely counts."

She shrugged. "But there's no way to show that skill here."

The recent rescue brought Lindsay and Elric closer, making their conversations more casual. "Do you have any good suggestions?"

Lindsay replied, "What other skills do you have? Or any hobbies?"

Elric said plainly, "Besides playing video games, I can sing and dance. Oh, and I'm good with musical instruments too."

Leslie added, "My strongest skill is acting, and my hobbies are calligraphy and traditional painting."

Wendy said, "I'm best at singing and can dance too. My hobbies include playing video games and shopping."

Hearing their responses, fans playfully teased them in the chat, enjoying their genuine interactions.

Lindsay thought for a moment and suggested, "How about we set up a few classes here based on your skill sets and hobbies?"

The three of them were puzzled. "Set up a few classes?"

Lindsay nodded. "Yes, the village chief mentioned that most of the villagers are elderly and children. Since it's summer vacation, the children are home from school. We can focus on activities for them.

"For example, Elric, you can teach the kids to sing, dance, or play musical instruments. The show can provide the necessary instruments.

"Leslie can teach the children calligraphy and traditional painting.

"Wendy can teach them singing and dancing.

"I can help repair electrical appliances or tutor their homework."
