

Chapter 47

However, she had also made a lot of money for him and introduced him to many valuable connections through her family. So, she didn't owe him anything.

But after the breakup, he continued to pester her. The reason she joined this reality show was to avoid his harassment.

She asked, "You said he's trying to use me?"

Lindsay nodded. "He wants to squeeze every bit of value out of you. I suggest you apply to the company for a new manager."

Wendy came from a well-off family with many members working in the entertainment industry, giving her significant influence. She was also a highly popular and talented singer. To her ex-boyfriend, she still held considerable value.

Wendy was even more surprised. She hadn't expected Lindsay to know that her ex-boyfriend was also her manager. Their relationship was a secret known only to the two of them, not even their families and friends.

"Alright, I'll apply for a new manager when I return to the capital."

Previously, she had hesitated to make a big deal out of it, thinking they could remain professional colleagues despite the breakup. But now that she knew he intended to exploit her, she couldn't tolerate it any longer.

They chatted for a while longer, growing closer.

The next morning, Lindsay woke up around six to practice boxing. Not long after, Elric came out of his room. He saw Lindsay practicing in the courtyard, looking strong and graceful.

He was surprised at first, then leaned against the doorframe, watching with admiration.

Lindsay had noticed Elric but didn't stop. After finishing her routine, she turned to him. "Enjoying the view?"

Elric smiled and nodded. "Absolutely! You're amazing, Linds!"

Lindsay chuckled. "Thanks for the compliment."

She asked, "Why are you up so early?"

Elric replied, "We agreed yesterday that I'd help you make mushroom soups today."

Lindsay hadn't expected him to get up so early to help her make breakfast. "Alright, I'll start preparing in the kitchen. You wash up and join me."

Elric nodded. "Okay."

They both headed into the kitchen together.

At this moment, the show's cameraman followed them into the kitchen and started the livestream, allowing the audience to watch them make breakfast.

Although it was early, there were already over ten thousand viewers waiting for the broadcast to start.

As soon as the camera started rolling, the audience saw Lindsay chopping mushrooms and Elric assisting her.

Lindsay smiled warmly at the camera and greeted everyone.

Yesterday, a villager had given them some hams, so she used them to make something extra for breakfast.

Viewers were delighted to see the good-looking duo working in the kitchen. Lindsay's demeanor suggested she was quite skilled in cooking. She explained each step as she went along, captivating the viewers who initially tuned in for her looks but stayed for the cooking lesson.

Besides mushroom soup, Lindsay also prepared a pot of oatmeal with diced ham and soft-boiled eggs. Elric, having finished his tasks, watched her, mesmerized by her focus and skill.

Once the mushroom soups were ready, the others began waking up and getting ready for the day. Elric deliberately brought the mushroom soup to the table in the courtyard and called Leslie and Wendy to join them.

Lindsay let him show off and also brought out the other dishes.

Elric ate the soup first. "I'll try Lindsay's cooking," he said, taking a bite and savoring the wonderful taste. He quickly finished it and exclaimed, "Delicious! This is the best mushroom soup I've ever had!"

Leslie and Wendy each took a sip and also praised it. "So flavorful and delicious!"

When Justin, Alex, Olivia, and Sharon returned after freshening up, they saw the trio enjoying breakfast. Elric, noticing them, took another bite and teased, "Too bad you can only watch us enjoy this deliciousness."

Both Justin and Alex scowled, wanting to strangle him...
