

Chapter 53

"Your angel sure is impressive; meanwhile, her brother is still stuck in the bathroom."

The fans of Alex and Olivia were momentarily silenced.

On the other side, Justin and his team walked in, seeing Elric and the others seated in the courtyard, deeply engrossed in their meal. Lindsay was eating leisurely, while the other three seemed unable to stop devouring their food.

Wendy, looking utterly satisfied, said, "This lemon herb baked fish is amazing."

Elric looked up and added, "This is the best lemon herb baked fish I've ever had."

He gave Lindsay a thumb-up. "Better than what any chef could make."

Leslie, who rarely enjoyed fish, nodded in agreement. "I usually don't like fish, but I can't stop eating this."

They hadn't expected Lindsay's cooking skills to be this impressive.

Lindsay smiled. "I'm glad you all like it."

In the live chat comments:

"I can imagine how good it is. Even Elric, with his picky taste, can't stop eating."

"Leslie usually doesn't like fish, but now he couldn't stop eating."

"Wendy has completely abandoned her usual ladylike manner, going all in on the fish."

"I'm starving now. I'm going to make some lemon herb pasta and pretend it's their fish."

Sharon, watching Elric and the others devour their meal, felt her hunger intensify. She turned and asked, "They're eating lemon herb baked fish. Olivia, can you make that?"

Although she didn't have high hopes for Olivia's cooking anymore, her craving was overwhelming.

Olivia nodded. "I did learn how to make lemon herb baked fish. But we don't have any fish or herbs; we'll need to buy some from the villagers."

"We got paid for our work today, 40 bucks each," Justin said. "I'll go buy the ingredients."

Soon, the group finished eating the two large dishes of fish on the table. Elric and Leslie even used the remaining sauce to soak some bread.

Elric leaned back in his chair, rubbing his belly. "I haven't eaten this much in a long time."

Leslie laughed. "Same here, it's rare for me to eat until I'm full."

Wendy nodded enthusiastically. "Me too."

Wendy looked at Lindsay and asked, "Linds, what dish are we trying out tomorrow?"

Lindsay smiled and replied, "Whatever you all want to eat, I'll cook it for you tomorrow."

Wendy hugged Lindsay's arm. "You're the best, Linds!"

Elric, with a smile in his eyes, said, "Linds spoils us."

Leslie laughed. "I'm really glad to be on the same team as Linds."

Especially when he compared their situation to that of a certain top star who was still suffering from food poisoning, he felt fortunate not to be on that team.

Elric added meaningfully, "So, happiness really comes from comparison."

Just then, Justin returned with the fish and herbs he had bought, overhearing their conversation. He looked at Lindsay intently, feeling a pang of jealousy. How could she pamper Elric so much?

If it weren't for the ongoing live broadcast, he would have rushed over and pulled Lindsay into the kitchen, demanding that she cook exclusively for him.

Lost in thought, he didn't notice Olivia walking out of the kitchen.

"Mr. Ford, you're back," she said, glancing at Lindsay in the courtyard before quickly approaching to take the fish and herbs from his hands. "You went to buy fish just because we wanted it. You really went out of your way."

She intended to irritate Lindsay, wanting her to see that Justin was willing to do anything for her, unlike for his girlfriend, who apparently meant nothing to him.

Unfortunately for Olivia, Lindsay didn't even spare her a glance. This left Olivia feeling disappointed. She was convinced that Lindsay was just pretending to be unaffected.
