

Chapter 67

In response to numerous viewer requests, the production team planned to start the broadcast early tomorrow to live stream Lindsay's morning boxing session. Lindsay's fans and boxing enthusiasts eagerly gave their approval.

In the village, Lindsay and her group left Jason's house in the afternoon and visited the elderly man who made puppets. They watched him craft the puppets and even tried their hand at making some themselves, creating a lively and enjoyable atmosphere.

Meanwhile, in another live stream, things were much less exciting.

Justin and his group were helping pack vegetables.

The host tried to make conversation, but they didn't respond much, leading to awkward silences.

Even though they were working hard, it became boring to watch after a while.

Unlike them, Olivia actively engaged Justin in conversation about acting, showcasing her talents, while Sharon couldn't get a word in.

This stream essentially became the Olivia and Justin show. Justin's fans enjoyed watching their idol, but fans of Sharon and Alex were dissatisfied and many viewers found it boring, switching over to the more engaging live stream.

In contrast, Lindsay's stream was far more interesting, with activities like crafting, discussing live streaming sales, and learning from artisans, leading to much higher viewership.

Since Lindsay came up with the idea of using the variety show's live stream to sell products and taught them how to make essential oils and lip balm, Jason's family gave Lindsay and her group several bottles of purified olive essential oil and the lip balm they made. Other villagers also contributed, gifting them crabs and crayfish.

For dinner, Lindsay made spicy crayfish and crab, as well as Cajun-style crayfish and crab. The aroma was so enticing that the group ate heartily, disregarding their manners. They devoured four large plates of crayfish and crab, each also having a plate of pasta mixed with the flavorful sauce, making the viewers' mouths water.

Not just them, but even Justin and Sharon, upon returning and smelling the delicious aroma, couldn't help but feel hungry when they saw Lindsay and the others enjoying their meal so much.

Lying in his room, Alex felt utterly tormented.

The rich aroma wafting from the kitchen ever since Lindsay started cooking was driving him crazy. Having only eaten two bowls of oatmeal earlier, he was already feeling hungry. Unfortunately, Lindsay completely ignored him and didn't invite him to join in the meal...

Olivia, smelling the delicious aroma, felt increasingly uncomfortable.

Especially since she had asked a farmer to make oatmeal at noon and personally brought it back for Alex, only to find that the production team had already prepared oatmeal for him, and he had eaten it. This left her feeling embarrassed.

What frustrated her the most was that after a whole day of packing vegetables, she was exhausted.

Now, she had to cook dinner while enduring the tantalizing smell from the kitchen. This was completely different from the variety show experience she had imagined.

This time, she didn't go out of her way to ask Sharon and Alex what they wanted to eat. She was afraid Sharon might say she wanted the same dishes Lindsay had made.

Olivia didn't know how to cook crayfish. Normally, she found it dirty and unsuitable for formal occasions, so she had never tried it.

Moreover, it appeared that everyone in her group also wanted to eat what Lindsay made, which highlighted how delicious Lindsay's cooking was. So, Olivia prepared three home-style dishes she had learned before and made a soup.

Under normal circumstances, her meal would look quite good. However, compared to Lindsay's visually and aromatically appealing crayfish and crab, her dishes seemed rather ordinary.

Alex came out of his room to join the meal.

The other group was eating with lively conversation, thoroughly enjoying their food and praising how delicious it was.

In contrast, Olivia's group was quietly eating, each person silently picking at their food, creating a subdued atmosphere.

It felt like a stark contrast, emphasizing the disparity.

Olivia felt even more disheartened. She had initially wanted to create a contrast with Lindsay on the variety show, but this wasn't the kind of comparison she had hoped for.