

Chapter 84

"Can't you be more careful when buying something?"

May hadn't realized that the bracelet her husband bought nearly harmed their child. It was a good thing they had called in the mystic today, or the consequences could have been severe.

Lyle was filled with regret. "I thought it was cute and bought it on a whim. I never imagined it would cause this."

He felt an overwhelming sense of remorse. If his son had been seriously harmed by the bracelet he bought, he would never forgive himself.

He looked at Lindsay and asked, "Ms. Summer, if we take off this bracelet, will he stop waking up crying?"

Lindsay replied, "Your child has already been affected by the negative energy. Removing the bracelet will prevent it from worsening, but he will still wake up crying."

Lyle asked anxiously, "Is there any way to fix this?"

Lindsay said, "Don't worry, I can draw a charm for him to wear. The charm will suppress the negative energy. In at most three days, the negative energy will be expelled from his body."

Lyle felt a wave of relief. "Great, as long as it can be resolved."

He looked at the coin in Lindsay's hand. "Is that coin effective too? Can I buy one?"

Lindsay chuckled. "Sorry, these coins were passed down from my mentor. I can't sell them. But a charm will work just fine. Don't worry."

Lyle was disappointed that he couldn't buy a coin but still trusted Lindsay. After all, she had quickly identified the problem with the bracelet and calmed his son.

Smiling, he nodded. "Alright, I trust your charm will work. Can you draw it now?"

Lindsay replied, "I didn't bring my drawing materials. I can't draw it right now."

Because they had to unpack their luggage in front of the camera during the live show, she didn't bring her mystical tools with her.

She turned to Charles. "Could you help get the materials?"

Charles smiled. "Of course. Just write down what you need, and I'll have someone get it right away."

This was definitely going to be a highlight of the show.

The boy was only about two years old, so it was impossible for him to act convincingly enough to fake what had happened. Even if trolls and haters wanted to spin the narrative, they couldn't.

Lyle quickly found some paper and a pen, and Lindsay wrote down the materials she needed. The production team then drove off to purchase them.

The little boy, fair and adorable, was now very calm and clung to Lindsay, looking very cute.

"How are those people who said my bias would fail feeling now?"

"Being proven wrong so quickly must be quite embarrassing."

"They just claimed she would fail, and now she's dazzling them."

"My bias is so talented in divination. She spotted the problem with the bracelet right away."

"Indeed impressive. The boy was crying so hard he was almost breathless, but he's fine now with her."

"Children can see through people, and now he loves and clings to her. It shows she's beautiful inside and out."

"This kid has a bright future, knowing to cling to a pretty lady at such a young age."

"I want to cling to her too."

"El was right. This kid has good taste. My bias is beautiful."

"I fall in love with her a bit more every day."

The fans who had been loudly predicting Lindsay's failure were now silent. In their minds, they were all thinking, "Wow, this is incredible."

Seeing is believing, so they indeed felt a bit embarrassed now.
