

Reborn: Another Chance to Leave U by Hazel Ramirez

Chapter 471

Chapter 471

Chapter 471 Argument

Anaya slowly walked forward with her hands on her waist. She said with a long face, "He left in another direction."

She had seen it just now. It was Trenton who took Edward away.

Trenton knew what he should do better than Samuel. At most, he would threaten Edward and would not hit him. Thus, Anaya did not intend to tell Reina about it.

Reina did not suspect anything. She turned around and realized that Jaylon was still holding her.

Jaylon noticed her cold expression and let her go before she spoke. "Sorry."

He rarely felt guilty toward others, and he did not like to apologize.

However, ever since he reunited with Reina, he frequently apologized to Reina.

Reina was silent for a moment and moved her eyes to the sparkling lake.

"Thank you for what happened just now."

It was windy today, so her voice was very low.

But Jaylon still heard it.

He raised his hand and tried to hold her hand.

Reina waited for a while before she shook his hand off.

Although the result was the same as before, the few seconds of hesitation before she shook him off was enough to make Jaylon happy.

At least, it was much better than before.

...

After recuperating for a period, Reina was much better, and her face was much rosier.

After meeting Edward that day, she did not go out much and was worried that Edward would come to pester her again.

However, the next few days were peaceful. Edward never appeared. Reina put her guard down and took a job as a translator.

Although the work of translating online was paid well, it was not available every day.

When she was free, she would occasionally translate for companies to earn some money.

Anaya was worried that Reina would go out alone. She wanted to ask the bodyguards to follow her, but Reina refused.

Reina was going to do a live translation for someone today. It was inconvenient to bring a bodyguard.

Anaya had no choice but to let her go.

The live translation work went very smoothly. The corporate executives spoke highly of Reina's reaction to the changes and her professional ability. They friended her on Line and said that they would work with her again when they needed her help.

Coming out of the company, Reina went to the bus stop to wait for the bus.

In the end, the bus did not come, but Edward came.

Edward's arm was dislocated, wrapped in a gauze that was hung on his neck.

There was also a piece of gauze on his forehead and a few bruises on his face. He looked a little messy.

Edward strode to Reina and said with a gloomy face, "Reina, you are quite awesome. I just wanted to see you. I went to your house to see you several times but you refused to see me!"

Reina guessed that Jaylon had someone stop him outside the door. She asked, "Why are you looking for me?"

"Are you kidding me? Can't you see what's happening to me? Your man asked someone to beat me up. He didn't pay for my medical expenses! He let me go to the hospital myself.

"Your man hurt me. Shouldn't you compensate me for him?"

Reina said without hesitation, "I have no money."

"You live in such a magnificent place. How can you have no money?"

Edward suddenly became excited. "Reina, now that you are rich and married into a good family, are you going to ignore us?"

"My injuries were caused by your man. He is so rich. Just give me 100 thousand dollars! Or I'll call the police."

In the face of his unreasonable behavior, Reina was very calm. "Suit yourself."

Jaylon valued kinship very much, so he also had compassion for Reina's family.

In the past, when Lacey crossed the line, he made a move against Lacey only after he had been forced into a corner.

Edward had only said a few words to her that day. Jaylon could not beat Edward up like that.

Edward used to be a gangster. In the past two years, he had been collecting protection money. Reina guessed that the injuries on his body were caused by his friends.

She was so fearless that she pissed Edward off.

But he could not go to the police.

After all, the injuries on his body had nothing to do with Jaylon.

After Trenton took Edward away that day, he only warned Edward and did not do anything to him.

His injuries were caused by his accidentally crashing into someone while he was riding a motorcycle after he was drunk a few nights ago.

The one he bumped into was a little girl. The girl was seriously injured and was still lying in the hospital.

Her parents wanted him to compensate her, saying that if he couldn't compensate her, they would sue him.

He had been borrowing money over the past two days. He still owed a lot of gambling debts, so no one dared to lend him money.

In desperation, he came to Reina and wanted to blackmail her.

However, Reina did not believe him at all.

This morning, that family gave him an ultimatum, saying that if he couldn't take out the money, they would sue him tomorrow.

He was very worried. It was pointless to threaten her, so Edward grabbed Reina by the collar and said hatefully, "I asked you to give me money. Did you hear me?"

"We are family. You married into a rich family to enjoy your life, but I have to live in a dark corner like a cockroach. Why is that?"

"If you don't give me the money today, don't even think about leaving!"

Reina was worried about the baby in her belly, so she didn't dare to make a move. She grabbed his wrist and pulled it. "I have no money! Let me go!"

Edward scolded, "Fuck you! You married such a rich man. How can you have no money? If you don't give me money today, don't even think about leaving!"

As he spoke, he seemed to feel that it wasn't terrifying enough to just grab her collar. So he pinched Reina's neck. "Hurry up and give me the money! Otherwise, I will kill you right now!"

Reina could not breathe. Her face turned red and she slapped his arm hard.

The bag on her shoulder slipped down.

She said with difficulty, "Let go."

They made a lot of noise. The people around noticed the situation there and stepped aside, not daring to get involved.

Just as Reina was about to suffocate, a young man in a volunteer vest rushed out of the crowd and pulled Edward away.

Edward staggered back a few steps and was about to curse when he was punched in the face.

He didn't stand steadily in the first place, but after taking this punch, he fell to the ground.

By the time he regained his balance, Reina and the person who had just hit him had disappeared, leaving only Reina's bag on the ground.

Edward spat on the ground and cursed.

Some people around took out their phones to call the police. Edward was afraid of the police, so he picked up Reina's bag and left ignominiously.

Chapter 472

Chapter 472

Chapter 472 Stepping Over His Belly

Reina followed the young man who saved her and walked far away before stopping.

The young man let go of Reina's hand and said, "It should be fine here. Go home."

Reina said gratefully, "Thank you so much just now. I'll treat you to dinner. How should I address you?"

"My name is Osvaldo. No need to treat me to dinner. My volunteer work is not over yet. I have to go back to work later."

Reina then noticed that Osvaldo was wearing a volunteer vest. "Then I won't disturb you. Give me your contact number. I'll treat you to a meal when we have time."

"Okay."

Reina was about to use her phone to exchange contact information with Osvaldo when she realized that her bag was missing. It must have been left at the bus stop.

Osvaldo finally noticed it. "Where is the bag? I'll go back with you to find it."

When Osvaldo rushed into the crowd to help, he noticed the bag, but he was in a hurry, so he did not bother to pick it up.

Reina originally did not want to trouble Osvaldo, but she was worried that Edward was still there, so she asked Osvaldo to go back with her.

People at the bus stop were not the same group of people as before, and there was no Reina's bag on the ground.

After looking around and not finding it, Reina asked people at the bus stop, and only then did she know that her bag had been picked up by Edward. Reina thought for a moment, borrowed some money from Osvaldo, and took the bus to the nearby police station.

If Reina went to find Edward herself, she must get herself in trouble, so she needed help.

When Edward returned home, he casually threw Reina's bag on the ground. "Damn, bitch, how dare you hit me! Just wait!"

Just as Edward finished cursing, Reina's phone rang in her bag.

Edward took out the phone and saw that it was an unknown number with no caller ID.

Edward hung up directly, but the call quickly came again.

He thought that Reina was calling to look for something, so he thought about it and answered it.

Reina was in such a hurry to find the phone, so Edward thought he might be able to extort a sum from her.

However, when the call connected, it was not Reina's voice.

"Where are you? I'll pick you up."

The man's voice was steady and magnetic. Edward instantly recognized that it was the voice of the man who took Reina away that day.

Edward rolled his eyes and suddenly had an idea.

"I'm afraid Reina can't go back with you now."

The voice on the other side of the line paused for a few seconds and then asked in a deep voice, "Why is Reina's phone with you?"

Edward deliberately lowered his voice to make his voice sound threatening. "She asked someone to hit me today. Now I have kidnapped her and brought her home."

"If you want her to go back safely, prepare to give me 80 thousand dollars!"

Edward did not know how much money this man had and was worried that the man would not be willing to spend money for Reina, so Edward asked for a lower price.

As soon as Edward finished speaking, the person on the other side of the line threatened coldly, "Don't touch her."

Through the phone, Edward could imagine the man's extremely cold expression when he said this. Edward suppressed the fear in his heart and continued, "She is my niece. Even if I hit her, no police will arrest me. See if I dare to touch her!"

The person on the other side of the line asked, "The address. I will get someone to bring the money over now."

Edward did not expect Jaylon to be willing to pay so much for Reina.

Edward was immediately overjoyed. "I am at my house. Hurry up and bring the money over."

After Edward reported the address, Jaylon quickly hung up.

Twenty minutes later, there was a knock on the door of Edward's house.

Edward walked over and opened the door.

The man standing at the door was tall and handsome. He asked with a cold face, "Where is Reina?"

Edward blocked the door and did not let Jaylon in. "Give me the money first."

Jaylon gestured to Trenton behind him. Trenton immediately handed the box with money to Edward.

Edward took the box and his eyes lit up when he saw the neat bills inside.

Edward ran into the room, placed the box on the table, and immediately began to count the money.

Just as Edward took out a stack of cash and was about to count it, the box was pressed with a "bang" sound.

Jaylon calmed down and asked, "Where is Reina?"

If this person was not Reina's relative, Jaylon would never ask so kindly.

The last person who threatened Jaylon like this had been buried for several years.

Edward did not kidnap Reina, so he randomly said an address, "She is in the residential building at Grand Park. You can find her when you go there."

After Edward finished speaking, he reached for the box again.

Jaylon grabbed Edward's collar and said darkly, "Lead the way."

Jaylon was not a fool. Before Jaylon found Reina, Jaylon naturally would not let Edward go.

Edward did not want to go with Jaylon. If Edward went, Jaylon would definitely find out that Edward was lying. At that time, Edward would not get a single cent.

However, Jaylon brought a few people over today. Edward couldn't run now even if he wanted to. Edward could only agree and wait for an opportunity to escape.

Edward followed Jaylon and the others out. When he reached the stairwell, Edward saw Reina coming up with a few policemen.

When they met on a narrow road, both sides were obviously stunned. Without waiting for everyone to react, Edward carried the box and turned to run.

Jaylon was the first to react and immediately chased after Edward.

It was an old residential building. The corridor was very short and there was only one staircase.

Edward quickly ran to the end and there was no way out.

The room Edward lived in was on the third floor and was nearly 15 feet away from the ground.

Edward panicked and did not have time to hesitate. He directly jumped out of the window.

If Edward jumped down at this height, he would definitely be crippled.

Almost the moment Edward jumped out of the window, Edward regretted it.

However, just as Edward jumped out, Jaylon grabbed his arm.

Edward's whole body lost all strength due to fright, and the hand holding the box loosened, and it fell to the ground one step ahead of Edward.

The box was not tightened, and the cash spilled all over the ground. The passers-by swarmed up to pick up the money.

Seeing that the money that should have belonged to him was picked up by someone else, Edward immediately shouted, "That's my money! You are not allowed to pick it up!"

However, no one listened. Edward struggled violently again and told Jaylon to let go of him.

Jaylon's wrist was stuck on the window and his hand was holding Edward, who was hanging outside the window. Edward was struggling so hard.

Jaylon's wrist rubbed on the window a few times, which caused a red and black wound.

Jaylon frowned and did not wait for others to come over to help. Jaylon gathered his strength and directly pulled Edward back to the corridor and threw him heavily on the ground.

Edward was hurt by this fall. He felt pain in his bones all over his body and could not stand up, but he was still thinking about his money.

"My money! It has been taken by others! Help me get my money back!"

However, no one responded to Edward.

Jaylon's men all rushed over to check Jaylon's injuries.

When Trenton passed by Edward, he pretended not to see him and directly stepped over Edward's belly.

Chapter 473

Chapter 473

Chapter 473 Ms. Harward Is Gone

Edward was in so much pain that tears came out of his eyes. Just as he was about to curse, he was grabbed by the police, and his hand was held behind his back.

Seeing the police, Edward did not dare to speak anymore and immediately became obedient.

Trenton looked at the wound on Jaylon's hand and said, "I will contact the doctor now."

Reina said, "The doctor came too slowly. I'll help you treat your wound first."

"Do you have medical supplies here?" Jaylon looked up at her.

"Edward should have some at home."

When Reina was a child, Edward often fought with people in the underworld and was injured. Therefore, there were medical supplies at home.

Jaylon said, "Okay, go in and take a look."

Reina nodded and turned into the room. Soon, she found the medicine box in the cabinet beside the sofa and asked Jaylon to go in.

The others were about to follow Jaylon into the room, but Trenton stopped them at the door. "Don't disturb Jaylon."

The other men were stunned for a moment, then they nodded seriously and lined up at the door, not letting anyone in.

Edward divorced his wife a few years ago, and now he had been living alone.

Edward usually did not do the cleaning, and the sofa at home was dark.

Reina was worried that Jaylon would dislike the environment here and refuse to sit on the sofa. She found a clean cushion and was about to place it on the sofa for Jaylon.

However, when Reina turned around, Jaylon had already sat down on the sofa.

Jaylon's expression was normal, and there was no emotion in his eyes. It was as if Jaylon did not care about the environment here at all. His deep black eyes only focused on Reina.

"Why are you motionless?"

Reina pursed her lips and put the cushion back on the table. "I'll help you now."

Reina walked to Jaylon and sat down. She took out all the things she needed and then said to Jaylon, "Take off your coat and roll up your sleeves."

Jaylon's suit was custom-made. The cuffs were not big, and it was difficult to roll them up. It would be troublesome if they slipped down when Reina applied medicine to Jaylon later.

Jaylon looked at her calmly and said in a low voice, "My hand is injured, and I can't undo the buttons."

Jaylon meant that he wanted Reina to help him undo the buttons.

Reina said expressionlessly, "Use the hand that you didn't get hurt to undo it."

Since his sad fishing was ineffective, Jaylon obediently undid his buttons.

Jaylon's black eyes were glued on Reina from beginning to end. His well-defined fingers undid the buttons of his suit one by one, revealing the white shirt inside bit by bit.

The black suit jacket opened up bit by bit, giving off a sense of beauty that made one feel as if his abstinence was being broken.

With Jaylon's calm and indifferent eyes, it added an ambiguous feeling.

Reina felt uncomfortable being stared at by Jaylon and looked away.

Soon, Jaylon's coat was taken off, and his sleeves were rolled up.

Reina picked up a tool to help Jaylon deal with the wound. Looking at the black wound on his wrist after mixing with the dust, Reina could not help but frown.

"Just now, Edward wanted to jump down. Why did you grab him? Let him jump."

Jaylon indifferently replied, "Because he is your uncle."

Jaylon's tone was too matter-of-fact. Reina was slightly startled and whispered, "Not yours."

"Your family is my family."

Reina did not answer him. She helped him treat his wound before she stood up, and put the medicine box back in its original place.

When Reina put the medicine box away and turned around, she found that Jaylon had walked behind her at some point in time.

The tip of Reina's nose brushed past Jaylon's white shirt, and she smelt the man's fragrance.

Reina subconsciously took a step back and distanced herself from Jaylon.

However, there was a cabinet behind Reina, and there was not much space. Thus, even though Reina took a step back, from an outsider's point of view, she was still stuck to Jaylon.

When the few men who were secretly observing at the door saw this, they immediately retracted their gazes and stopped peeping.

Reina looked up at him. Her eyes were cold and indifferent. "Excuse me."

Looking at Jaylon's posture, Reina thought that he would definitely not retreat so easily.

Unexpectedly, just as Reina finished speaking, Jaylon took a step back and made way for her.

Jaylon listened to Reina so easily, but Reina was not used to it for a while.

Reina felt as if her chest was holding back a breath.

Reina walked past him, and the man beside her suddenly bent down.

Strong male hormones poured down and wrapped around Reina in an instant.

Reina's cheeks felt something soft, and the feeling as if a dragonfly touching the water was fleeting.

Reina was stunned for a moment. When she turned back to look, Jaylon had already stood up straight. His face was calm as if the person who had just kissed her was not him.

Jaylon's eyes were calm as he quietly lowered his head to look at her, waiting to see her reaction.

However, Reina only glanced at Jaylon once, and there were no other reactions. She raised her leg and walked out of the room.

Jaylon thought that Reina had acquiesced to his closeness. It felt like there was a stone suddenly thrown into the quiet lake in his heart, causing layers of ripples. Jaylon's emotions churned and could not calm down for a long time. Edward was taken away by the police. Jaylon specially asked the policemen to let Edward stay in prison for a few more days. After dealing with the matter, Jaylon sent Reina back to Anaya's place.

Today, Reina was unusually quiet, as if she had already accepted Jaylon. Even if Jaylon and Reina sat in the back seat of the car together, Reina did not have much of a reaction. She just quietly watched the scenery outside the window.

At night, Jaylon made a nutritious meal for Reina. Reina also finished it without leaving a single drop. Even when Jaylon proposed to stay in Hearst's house, Reina did not object.

If not for the fact that Jaylon didn't want Reina to feel disgusted, he might have directly proposed to share a room with Reina.

Reina's change in attitude was too obvious. It wasn't just Jaylon who noticed it. Anaya also noticed Reina's change.

Anaya asked Trenton and learned that it was because Jaylon helped Reina deal with Edward today that Reina changed her attitude. Anaya felt inexplicably uncomfortable in her heart.

After returning to the bedroom, Hearst took a storybook and went back to bed to tell her a story, while also doing prenatal education.

"What are you thinking about?" Hearst noticed that Anaya was in a daze.

"I'm thinking about my brother and Reina." Anaya returned to her senses and silently removed the man's hand from her thigh.

Hearst leaned his cheek against her forehead and gently rubbed it. "Are you unhappy that they have reconciled?"

"A little. I always feel that it is too easy for my brother."

If it was Anaya and if someone made Anaya a mistress, she thought that she would never reconcile with that person in this life.

Even if the one repented, the mistakes were made, and the scar would never heal.

But Reina chose to forgive, and Anaya could not say anything.

In the end, Anaya was not Reina. Whether Reina forgave or not, Anaya could not decide.

Hearst lightly said, "It shouldn't be that simple. If Reina has really let go of her past, she can't be so quiet."

"Huh?" Anaya looked up at him. "What do you mean?"

Hearst did not answer. He kissed the corner of her lips. "I will continue to tell you stories."

"Alright." Anaya did not take his words to heart.

The next day, Jaylon personally cooked many dishes and waited for Reina.

As usual, Anaya had someone call Reina downstairs for dinner.

A few minutes later, Mina came downstairs in a hurry. "Mrs. Helms, Ms.

Harward is missing."

Chapter 474

Chapter 474

Chapter 474 Why Did You Leave Without Saying Goodbye?

Hearing this, Anaya suddenly got nervous.

Jaylon directly stood up and asked in a deep voice, "Have you searched in the room?"

Mina said, "Yeah, I just called the guard to confirm. They said that Ms. Harward went out last night and didn't come back. They thought we knew."

As soon as Mina finished speaking, Jaylon picked up his coat and put it on. He directly went out of the villa.

Last night, Hearst said that things were not right about Reina. Anaya was also anxious at this time. She immediately found her phone and was ready to send someone to find Reina.

Just when Anaya took out her phone, she saw a text message from Reina on the phone. It was sent last night in the early morning.

"Ana, I moved out. The address is near the place where I used to live. I will come to see you when I have time."

Seeing this message, Anaya breathed a sigh of relief.

It seemed that Reina just wanted to leave Jaylon's sight, not commit suicide.

Hearst was about to call Samuel when Anaya stopped him. "No need to call someone to find her. I already know Reina's location."

Anaya told Hearst about the contents of the text message. Hearst listened and asked, "I'll call your brother."

"Don't call him. Let him find her himself."

It was good to let Jaylon worry so that he would not always be so possessive.

Reina was sensitive. If the two of them continued to get along like this, sooner or later, there would still be problems.

Jaylon anxiously brought people to look for Reina all morning, but there was no news of her.

Jaylon really couldn't understand why Reina left today. He thought Reina had accepted him yesterday.

What exactly was Reina not satisfied with Jaylon?

At noon, Trenton brought Jaylon lunch, but Jaylon didn't eat it.

Jaylon hadn't eaten since the morning, but because he had always been concerned about Reina, he didn't have the mood to think about anything else.

In the afternoon, Jaylon's subordinates quickly sent a message. They said that after Reina left the villa last night, she returned to the place where she rented before and rented another room upstairs.

The most dangerous place was the safest place. Jaylon forgot to ask someone to search in that place in the morning.

When Jaylon received the news, he rushed over with his men without stopping.

There was no elevator in the building. Jaylon brought his men upstairs.

Jaylon's footsteps were extremely fast and he walked in the front. The others almost couldn't keep up.

Soon, Jaylon was standing at Reina's door.

Jaylon raised his hand and was about to knock on the door, but before he could touch it, he stopped.

Trenton caught up and tried to calm his breathing. He asked, "Jaylon, aren't you going in?"

Jaylon turned to look at Trenton. After a long while, Jaylon asked, "If she wants to leave when she sees me, what should I do?"

Trenton was stunned by Jaylon's question.

In Trenton's eyes, Jaylon was the most powerful existence. Jaylon was decisive and would do everything he could to get what he wanted. Even if Jaylon failed, he could quickly adjust his mentality and reach the next goal. Confusion and hesitation would not exist in him.

However, at this moment, he felt that Jaylon was like a young man who had just come out of society. Because he did not know how to make the woman he loved happy, he was afraid.

After Trenton seriously thought about it, he said, "Why don't you just tie her up?"

Jaylon was lost for words.

Trenton probably felt that it was too rude, so he added, "You should lower yourself and talk to her properly. See what she is dissatisfied with you. Just change it.

"Didn't Reina say before that she hates your possessiveness the most? You should be a little gentler with her.

"As long as you insist and let Reina see your persistence, she will accept you someday."

Trenton's words were like encouragement from some midnight program.

Jaylon felt that what Trenton said was very reasonable. "I'll raise your salary later."

Jaylon turned around, tidied up his slightly messy suit, and raised his hand to knock on the door.

Soon, Reina came over and opened the door.

Seeing Jaylon, Reina immediately prepared to close the door.

Jaylon quickly reached in to block it.

Jaylon's hand was injured yesterday, and now it was caught. No matter how much he could endure, he could not help but frown.

Reina was also shocked and quickly let go of the door handle. "Are you stupid? You actually used your hand to block the door?"

If Reina had been more forceful just now, Jaylon's hand might have been crippled!

Jaylon did not answer and quietly looked at her. "Can I go in? I haven't applied medicine to my hand yet today."

It meant that Jaylon wanted Reina to help him.

Jaylon's hand was injured because of her. Reina could not refuse, so she let him in and found a medicine chest to help him apply the medicine to his hand.

Reina lowered her head and seriously helped him treat his wound. Jaylon looked at her intently and asked, "Why did you leave without saying goodbye last night?"

Reina did not look up and casually replied, "I sent a message to Ana. Didn't she tell you?"

Jaylon didn't know what to say.

"She might have forgotten."

Reina hit the nail on the head. "Did she forget or not want to tell you?"

Jaylon's lips were taut as he stubbornly said, "She must forget it."

Reina looked up at Jaylon, not denying it.

After treating the wound, Reina stood up. "Alright, you can go back now."

Jaylon was still sitting there, not saying a word or moving.

Reina knew that this person had never listened to her, so she simply ignored him. She put away the medicine box and prepared to continue working.

The apartment she rented only had one room. Next to the computer desk was the bed, and the sofa was placed in the middle.

From Jaylon's angle, he could see the dense words on her screen.

Jaylon got up and walked over, and asked, "Since you want to leave, why don't you go further?"

The first thing Jaylon checked this morning was the airport and long- distance transportation. He did not expect Reina to stay in Boston. Reina typed quickly on the keyboard and casually replied, "Because no matter how far it is, it is useless."

Reina already knew the gap between herself and Jaylon. Unless she really died, he would always have a way to find her.

Reina was pregnant and it was not suitable for her to rush around, so she simply came back here.

Jaylon was quiet for a few seconds and asked in a hoarse voice, "Reina, do you hate me for pestering you like this?"

Reina's typing speed slowed down a little. She said, "You know it in your heart." Jaylon felt sad. "Reina, what else are you dissatisfied with me? Tell me directly, I can try to change."

Jaylon had already compromised with Reina for many things. As long as Reina could change her attitude towards him, he was willing to make a further compromise.

"There is no dissatisfaction. It is just that we are not suitable."

Reina had thought a lot these days. As for the things she cared about before, Jaylon was now trying to make up for her.

Jaylon was also willing to spend time healing the injuries Reina had suffered.

Jaylon was extremely good to Reina.

But the better Jaylon was, the more afraid Reina was.

Reina clearly realized that her prejudice against Jaylon, other than his own arrogance and possessiveness, was partly because the class he was in was different from hers.

Chapter 475

Chapter 475

Chapter 475 Don't Talk Dirty Randomly

In front of him, the sense of inferiority in her heart would be infinitely magnified. She would become sensitive and fragile.

Just a glance from him would make her worry about whether her clothes and words were appropriate, whether he disliked the environment where she stayed or just herself.

She hated it when she became like that.

She was born not suited to his circle.

Since she could not adapt to it, she could only choose to escape.

Reina had already made it clear.

She wasn't satisfied with him. She simply did not want to be with him.

Jaylon did not know what to do. He stood there for a while and turned to leave.

Now that he had found her, all he needed to do was make her accept him.

As for how to do it, he needed to think about it again.

After night fell, Anaya sent a message to Jaylon asking if he had found Reina.

After a long while, he replied, "Piss off."

That message alone was enough for Anaya to know that he had already found Reina and probably figured out that Reina had sent her a text message.

She laughed gloatingly. Hearst took the storybook and lay on the bed. He saw Anaya staring at the phone and giggling.

He casually glanced at it and saw the message sent by Jaylon.

He frowned and said, "Give me your phone."

Anaya handed the phone to him and asked, "What are you going to do?"

Hearst didn't say anything. He took out his own phone and clicked it a bit. Then, he tapped her screen a few times and returned the phone to her.

Anaya turned her gaze to the phone and saw several curse words sent from Jaylon.

Before Anaya could check what messages Hearst had sent Jaylon before, Jaylon called.

Somehow, Anaya felt that Jaylon wasn't content with cursing via words and planned to directly talk to Hearst.

Hearst reached out to hang up the call for Anaya and then blacklisted Jaylon's number.

Anaya was a little confused by Hearst's actions. "What did you send him?"

Hearst opened the storybook and said in a faint voice, "Nothing. I just said that Prudential Group decided to intervene in one of his projects."

"My brother is angry because of that?" Anaya did not believe him.

In her eyes, Jaylon was still very composed and could not curse people so easily.

Hearst added unhurriedly, "I also sent him a picture of Reina and Vincent holding hands in college."

That was so harsh.

Anaya laughed happily. "You are so narrow-minded? How childish of you!"

Hearst glanced at her and pinched her face. "Who is childish?"

Anaya said, "You are childish, just like a kiddo."

Hearst bit her lips in a punishing manner, then took her hand and placed it on his body. "How can a kiddo feel this way? Hmm?"

His voice was very low, ambiguous, and sexy, with a strong hint of teasing and desire.

Anaya felt a heat in her palm and quickly withdrew her hand. "Can you not talk dirty randomly?"

Hearst talked dirty all of a sudden, which made her feel embarrassed.

Hearst laughed and bit the tip of her ear. "It's legal for the husband to sleep with his wife. Why can't I voice it out?"

Bitten by him, Anaya trembled all over.

She pushed him and muttered, "Nonsense."

"I'll tell a story now. Go to bed after hearing it."

Recently, Hearst often told her some bedtime stories, saying that it was for the sake of embryonic learning, but in fact, it was to help divert her attention.

As her belly grew bigger and bigger, she grew more and more anxious. If not for Hearst's thoughtful care, she wouldn't even know how to get through this.

She was already getting used to his spoiling. If she didn't listen to a story, she wouldn't be able to sleep.

Hearst didn't tease her anymore and opened the storybook to tell her a story.

Anaya leaned on his shoulder and felt his temperature. She was greeted by the fragrant scent of the body wash on his body.

The fragrance, mixed with male hormones, was slightly different from the scent on her body and rather reassuring.

Shortly, Anaya fell asleep leaning against him.

Hearst noticed the steady breathing of the woman beside him and turned his head to look at her.

Seeing that she had fallen asleep, he placed the book on the bedside table, gently tucked her in, and hugged her to sleep.

The next day, when Anaya woke up, it was already bright outside. Hearst had already changed his clothes and come out of the dressing room. He was buttoning his shirt.

Noticing that she had woken up, Hearst walked over and leaned over to kiss her cheek. He said softly, "If you want to sleep, sleep a little longer."

Anaya shook her head with misty eyes. "I'm getting up. I have to accompany Grandpa to the hospital for a physical examination today."

Adams was fine now, but he still had to have a regular physical examination, just in case.

She got up from the bed, put on her slippers, took the tie in his hand, and put it on him. "I heard that the first phase of the East Boston project has almost been completed. When can it be used?"

Hearst raised his head to make it convenient for her to help him put on the tie. "It should be in these two months. Just wait for the documents to be approved. The promotion started not long ago. At present, most of the shops have already been booked."

After getting dressed, Hearst did not go downstairs immediately. Instead, he held her hands and went downstairs until Anaya finished washing up.

Entering the restaurant, Anaya saw Jaylon sitting there.

His entire body exuded a gloomy aura. His originally cold face was expressionless and appeared scarier as if he would attack people at any time.

Seeing them come in, Jaylon stood up and walked straight to the two of them. He stared straight at Hearst. "Come out. I have something to ask you."

Anaya thought that he was going to take revenge on Hearst for what happened last night, so he couldn't help feeling a little nervous. He immediately pulled Hearst behind him to protect him.

Anaya said, "Jaylon, Jared is your brother-in-law."

It would be wrong for him to beat his brother-in-law.

Jaylon glanced at her and guessed her concerns. He said, "I'll talk with him only. I won't do anything else."

Anaya was still worried. Hearst walked out from behind her and kissed her on the cheek. He said, "It's okay. You eat breakfast first. I will be back soon."

After comforting her, he looked at Jaylon. "Let's go."

Jaylon nodded and followed him outside.

Anaya sat down at the dining table alone, but she did not eat the food on the table.

When Hearst safely returned, she heaved a sigh of relief. "What did my brother say to you?"

Hearst pulled the chair next to her and sat down. He replied casually, "He asked me how I won your heart."

Anaya was lost for words.

What the heck?

Chapter 476

Chapter 476

Chapter 476 Taxi

Reina worked until midnight last night and woke up after eight o'clock the next morning.

She washed up and prepared to go out for a walk and eat breakfast. Just as she opened the door, she saw some meat porridge hanging on the door.

It was obvious who had prepared it.

When she was abroad, Jaylon had already done this.

She did not touch the porridge and went out directly. She bought something to eat at the breakfast shop.

When she went home from a walk, the house had been cleaned up. Even the dirt on the wall had been scraped clean. A beautiful scenery wallpaper was stuck to the wall.

She closed the door and received a text on the phone: "Do you like the wallpaper?"

Reina did not reply. That afternoon, she asked the locksmith to change her lock, in case that man came to her house and did all kinds of stuff for her.

After doing that, she got back to work.

The company she had worked with last time sent an invitation to hire her to work in the company. The salary offered was slightly worse than what the Riven Group offered her before, but it was more stable than what she had now.

She thought about it for a day but still refused the invitation.

Now that she was pregnant, she could only work for the company for a few months at most. It was better not to delay their recruitment of official employees.

She thought that the company might be dissatisfied with her for her refusal and would not even work with her anymore.

Unexpectedly, two days later, they contacted her and sent her several documents, saying that they could not recruit official employees for the time being and wanted her to work for some time.

Reina was still thinking about returning the money to Lacey. When the child was born, she would need a large sum of money too. For her, the more work, the better.

After she worked for them a few times, her performance was very satisfactory for them.

Through the person in charge of that company, Reina came into contact with more customers and gradually became busy.

It was tiring yet very fulfilling.

After drifting around for so long, she seemed to have got the feeling of being needed when she was working and became more cheerful.

While she was focused on work, Jaylon seemed to be invisible and did not appear in front of her again. If not for the food hanging on the door changing every day, she would not even think of this person at all.

One day, she took another business interpretation job. She followed the vice general manager to meet the client.

The work ended smoothly, and she was exhausted.

After being pregnant, she became a lot weaker and often felt tired.

The vice general manager called on the staff to go to a dinner party for a celebration. Reina meant to decline the invitation with an excuse, but he directly asked her to go as well.

There would be more cooperation, so it was not good for Reina to make their relationship too sour. Hence, she had to agree.

When they arrived at the restaurant for dinner, Reina found that it was a seafood restaurant.

She did not like seafood. In addition, she had not had much appetite recently. Occasionally, she would feel like vomiting. She was worried that it would kill the buzz, so she was ready to leave after the vice general manager finished ordering.

Shortly, the vice general manager returned.

Just as Reina was ready to speak, the waiter served the dishes on their table.

To her surprise, in addition to seafood, there were also many other kinds of food.

At first, she thought that this restaurant only offered seafood. Now, seeing other dishes, she gave up the idea of leaving.

The atmosphere in the company was very good. Reina was not a member of their company, but she did not feel that she could not fit in.

A few young girls even gossiped about the vice general manager's romantic affairs. The vice general manager did not put on airs at all and told these young people what he had gone through when he was young.

He said that he had no other choice but to sleep in the street after being cheated out of 3.2 thousand dollars for his first startup company. He also mentioned that he resigned right after being scolded by his boss without getting a new job first and thus ended up sleeping in the street again. Then, he recalled that his first girlfriend was pregnant with another man's kid...

The vice general manager's story was dull and sad. As he spoke, he burst into tears.

He cried and drank wine, looking pitiful and funny.

The others laughed and shared the bad things that they had encountered in the past few years. They complained and drank together. The atmosphere was very lively.

Although Reina drank coconut milk, she felt that she was a little drunk like everyone else.

She actually found a sense of belonging in a company that she had worked with a few times.

It seemed that she had been alone for too long. Only a little insignificant thing in her life was enough to touch her.

After dinner, she helped a female colleague down the stairs.

That woman couldn't drive as she was drunk. Reina was worried that something would happen to her, so she called a taxi to send her home.

After helping the woman to her house, Reina returned downstairs and found that the taxi she had just taken was still there.

At this time, the bus had stopped. Although she was reluctant to spend money, she could only take a taxi back home.

Fortunately, this place was not particularly far from her home. 3 dollars would be enough for her to get home.

She knocked on the window and said, "Sir, can you give me another ride?"

In the dim car, the driver was wearing a mask, and his tall figure was hidden in his shirt. He looked a little strong.

He replied, "OK." Then, he didn't say anything else.

Reina felt that this driver was a little strange, but the taxi looked regular.

She thought that it should be fine, so she got in the car.

She told him the address, and the driver quickly stepped on the accelerator.

More than ten minutes later, Reina safely arrived downstairs at her home.

She paid the driver and got out of the car.

As she walked up, a flustered voice came from not far ahead. "Make way!

Make way! I'm losing it!"

Reina raised her head and saw a teenager riding a bicycle shakily toward her.

Reina was shocked and subconsciously retreated.

However, behind her was the taxi, and there was no space for her to retreat.

Just as she took one step back, she bumped into the taxi behind her.

At the critical moment, the taxi driver suddenly strode over and pulled her aside. She just bumped into his arms.

The young man who was riding a bicycle finally crashed into the taxi. He fell on his back, and the head of the bicycle changed shape.

If the driver hadn't pulled her, Reina would have been lying on the ground by now.

It didn't matter if she fell on her own, but it would be troublesome if the baby was hurt.

Just as she was about to thank the driver, she looked up and saw a pair of familiar eyes.

Although she couldn't see the whole face, she was too familiar with these eyes.

There was also a scar on his brow, which also proved the identity of the driver. He frowned and looked coldly at the teenager who was getting up from the ground. His eyes were dark as if he wanted to eat the teenager alive. The teenager was frightened by his gaze. Besides, he did make a mistake. So, he hurriedly apologized, "I'm really sorry. I've just started learning how to ride a bicycle. I was practicing at night as there were fewer people. I didn't expect to bump into you.

"I will try my best to compensate you as you request. I'm really sorry!"

Chapter 477

Chapter 477

Chapter 477 A Simp

The boy lowered his head, his face full of self-blame.

Since he had apologized sincerely, the dissatisfaction in Reina's heart disappeared. Just as she was about to say that she was fine, Jaylon, who was still holding her, spoke in a deep voice, "She is pregnant. If she didn't dodge in time just now, you would have hurt two lives! It can't just go through like this."

The boy was so frightened by Jaylon's severe scolding that his eyes turned red, and he could only say sorry continuously.

Reina noticed he was about to cry at any time, so she took pity on him, saying, "It's alright. You can leave after you pay Jaylon for repairing the car."

The boy sniffed and said, "But I don't have any money on me right now. I can only pay you tomorrow."

Reina replied, "It's okay. You go back first and send me the money tomorrow. I will help you transfer it to him."

She had seen the boy in the community before and knew which family he was from, so she was not afraid of him running away.

"Thank you!" The boy nodded hard.

After that, he picked up his bicycle and left.

Jaylon was still staring at him angrily.

The boy could not help but walk faster, afraid that the fierce-looking man would not let go of him.

It was not until the boy disappeared that Jaylon turned his gaze.

As soon as he lowered his head, he saw Reina looking at him with pure eyes.

In the past, her eyes looked somehow gloomy, but recently, they gradually lit up.

He looked at Reina and suddenly felt a little dazed, thinking of the first time they met.

At that time, she was also energetic, full of confidence, with expectations for the future in her heart, and her eyes were pure and full of hope.

"Aren't you going to let go?"

When Reina's cold voice sounded, Jaylon came back to his senses and immediately let go of her. He then turned around and prepared to return to the car.

"Jaylon, when did you start driving the taxi?" Reina stopped him.

She thought that he had already disappeared from her life, but she never expected that he had just changed his way of caring about her.

She could sense him staying with her all the time.

"Today." Jaylon stopped.

Reina continued to ask, "Why?"

She thought that Jaylon valued so much about his dignity and he paid great attention to his reputation and image. What he looked down on the most was the people who busied themselves for merely 20 dollars every day.

However, to Reina's surprise, he would wear a uniform and work as a taxi driver today. That was unbelievable.

Jaylon did not turn around. He said in a low voice, "I want to bring us closer."

The reason he pretended to be like this was Hearst's idea. Hearst said that by doing this, he could reduce the pressure and get used to the life of an ordinary person, just like Reina had done.

Although he felt that Hearst had deliberately tricked him, he still agreed with this plan.

Reina was silent. After a while, she asked, "What about your company?"

"I'm not always like this. I only do it when you go out."

Reina basically worked at home, so he didn't need to change his clothes many times and didn't delay his work.

Reina looked at him with a complicated expression and didn't know what to say for a moment.

She thought that it was unbelievable for someone like Jaylon to cook for her. If he wanted to make a girl happy, he would usually spend money to make romantic dates or prepare flowers in high-class restaurants.

If Jaylon showed her those superficial things, she might not hesitate to turn around and leave.

But he did the job he despised the most in the past. He silently guarded her for such a long time and was willing to stand in her perspective to think about the problem.

She was touched.

What she wanted was never flowers or diamond rings, but the most ordinary and simple life.

She had accepted Argus before because he had something that she had always been pursuing.

Seeing her remain silent for a long time, Jaylon could not figure out her attitude. He lowered his voice and said, "I'll go back first. See you next time."

His tone and demeanor were different from when he was talking to the boy just now.

Reina was stunned for a long time, then she nodded and turned to walk into the community.

Jaylon stood at the door and watched her leave.

When Jaylon returned to Hearst's house, Anaya and Hearst were still watching a foreign action movie on the sofa in the living room.

Noticing that Jaylon had entered, Anaya immediately paused the movie and waved at him, "Jaylon, come over and tell me if you have any progress today."

After Anaya didn't go to work, she was bored all day. And she was more interested in Jaylon's story of getting Reina back than watching a TV series.

In the beginning, she only liked to gloat over the bad things that happened to Jaylon, so she wanted to listen to his story.

Later, she began to pity Jaylon. Now, besides listening to them, she occasionally gave some advice to him.

Reina was pregnant with Jaylon's child. It was difficult for her to find a good man if she wanted to get married. Except for Jaylon, there was probably no other person who could be so good to Reina.

After thinking about this, Anaya began to support Jaylon.

Of course, the most important thing was still Reina's will.

Jaylon initially didn't like to tell her about the things between him and Reina.

Later, he found that Anaya would help analyze Reina's psychological state, so he would take the initiative to tell Reina. Jaylon walked over to the sofa and prepared to sit next to Anaya.

Before he could touch the sofa, Hearst put a pillow over and occupied his seat. Then, he said casually, "Please sit across from me."

Jaylon's face darkened. "I am Ana's brother."

What was Hearst thinking about?

How could Hearst be so wary of him?

"Sit across from me," Hearst insisted.

Jaylon was now living in Hearst's house, so he had no choice but to sit across from him.

Anaya held the potato chips and asked with a serious face, "Jaylon, please report your progress today."

If she hadn't been chewing potato chips while asking, the atmosphere might have been more serious.

Jaylon told her everything that had happened today. Anaya said, "Her attitude has begun to soften. Keep working hard."

Jaylon smiled bitterly, "But I feel that she doesn't seem to treat me any different from before."

Anaya swallowed the chips in her mouth and said, "In any case, she didn't ask you to get lost today. It's a good sign.

"I feel like you were a little miserable before.

"You were so tenacious and thick-skinned. That's a simp."

Jaylon was speechless.

"A simp?"

"If I can get Reina back, I can try anything."

Anaya nodded.

"Of course, you will."

Chapter 478

Chapter 478

Chapter 478 Don't Touch Her

When Reina went out for a walk in the morning, there was a bag of breakfast hanging on the door as usual.

She did not care about it when she went out, but when she came back, she took the breakfast down and brought it home.

Jaylon went upstairs to collect the breakfast like before, only to find that the bag hanging on the door had disappeared.

He was slightly stunned. At noon, he prepared a meal specially made for a pregnant woman, and waited at the corner of the elevator.

Seeing Reina take down the food hanging on the door and bring it in, Jaylon believed what Anaya had said last night.

Reina's attitude had indeed begun to soften.

Jaylon was in a much better mood.

He turned around and was about to leave when he saw a boy staring straight at him.

It was the boy who ran into the taxi last night.

Seeing him, Jaylon became gloomy instantly.

This boy almost bumped into Reina yesterday. Although Reina was fine in the end, Jaylon still disliked this boy.

Before Jaylon could say something to educate the boy about what happened last night, the boy spoke first, "Sir, are you a stalker?"

Jaylon was stunned.

The boy continued, "I have been seeing you in the community recently, but you are not one of us.

"And you are always wandering around this house."

"Do I look like a stalker?" Jaylon's cold face darkened.

The boy nodded without hesitation. "You are a stalker."

"If you are so sure, why didn't you call the police to arrest me?" Jaylon asked with gloomy eyes.

"I have already called the police," the boy replied.

Jaylon was speechless.

Reina had just finished eating when she heard a noise outside.

She pushed open the door and walked out. Then she saw two policemen lying on the ground, while Jaylon was standing beside them.

"What happened?" Reina walked over.

The boy had his back against the wall, feeling scared.

Seeing Reina come over, he immediately hid behind her. "He hit the police! Run, I'll be behind you!"

Reina said, "You asked me to run, but why are you pushing me forward?"

The boy responded, "Sorry, it's subconscious behavior.

"This man is really fierce. Come in with me..."

He grabbed Reina's hand and was about to run into the house when his hand was pushed away by Jaylon.

He staggered a few steps from Jaylon's push and almost fell to the ground.

"Don't touch her!"

Jaylon's cold voice sounded. The boy trembled and did not dare to reply. Reina broke free of Jaylon's hand and said with a cold face, "Don't touch me."

Jaylon, who had been full of hostility just now, instantly fell silent. He lowered his head and said in a low voice, "Sorry."

He looked like someone who had been wronged.

The boy was a little surprised. A policeman who had fallen to the ground got up, saying, "Do you know each other?"

Reina nodded.

Then, Reina was brought to the police station with Jaylon.

If Reina weren't there, Jaylon would not have gone to the police station obediently.

This matter was just a mistake, but Jaylon attacked the police, which was a big problem.

Before being released, Jaylon was educated by a policewoman for a long time, and Reina was also mentioned by her.

"Madam, I advise you not to live with such a husband. He attacked the police this time, and he might apply physical abuse to you. You better think carefully about your marriage..."

As soon as she finished, Jaylon, who had been quietly listening to her preaching just now, suddenly looked at her with sharp eyes.

The policewoman was frightened by Jaylon's gaze and stopped talking.

Not long after, Trenton brought people over to pick Jaylon up.

The boy looked at the men Trenton brought with him and then looked at Jaylon. His eyes immediately lit up. "Sir, are you a gangster? That's so cool!"

Can I join you?"

Jaylon glanced at him with a poker face.

What a childish boy.

The boy added, "Sir! I want to be a member of them!"

Just as he finished speaking, someone slapped him on the head.

"Brat, didn't you go to pay for the damages? Why did you enter the police station?"

The boy turned around and saw Osvaldo, his brother. He said unhappily, "Osvaldo, I've told you many times not to touch men's heads."

"Is this the main point?" Osvaldo patted him again.

Reina was standing next to Jaylon. At a glance, she saw Osvaldo. "You are his brother?"

Osvaldo also noticed Reina. He tried his best to search Reina's face in his brain before remembering that he had helped her before.

"Did he crash the taxi you took yesterday?"

Reina nodded, then Osvaldo said, "I'm so sorry. He is used to being reckless. I will compensate you for the money."

"If you feel that it's not enough to vent your anger, you can bring him back to teach him a lesson."

Brent Whitney was somewhat dissatisfied with Osvaldo's words, but he knew that he had done something wrong, so he did not say anything.

"It's fine, and it's all in the past," Reina waved her hand and said.

"Do you have time tonight? I'll treat you to a meal and thank you for helping me last time."

Osvaldo said, "I'd like to, but I still have something to do in the volunteer alliance today."

Hearing this, Reina did not insist. She chatted with him for a while and then left the police station.

This place was not far from her house, so she planned to walk back.

Jaylon silently followed behind her all the way. Reina glanced at him and said, "Aren't you going back to work?"

Jaylon stopped and said in a deep voice, "I helped you many times before."

"And then?" Reina was confused.

Jaylon hesitated and turned his head, asking stiffly, "Why don't you treat me to a meal?"

Reina said coldly, "Because Osvaldo didn't force me to be a mistress."

Jaylon was too embarrassed to utter a word.

Everything he had done during this period was just to make up for the mistakes he had committed in the past. Reina did not need to treat him to a meal to thank him.

Both of them kept quiet for a few seconds, and Jaylon said in a low voice, "I'm going back to work. Please be careful on your way."

After that, he was about to turn around.

Reina suddenly asked, "Do you have time after work today?"

Jaylon stared at her with a glimmer of hope in his heart. "Yes."

Reina said, "I will prepare a meal for two people tonight."

"And then?"

Reina did not answer and turned to leave.

Although she did not say it explicitly, Jaylon understood what she meant and smiled.

After getting off work in the afternoon, he immediately packed up his things and went to Reina's house.

Passing by the supermarket, he bought a bunch of fake flowers.

Reina was allergic to powder, so he could not send her real flowers. But it was also good to buy some fake flowers to decorate the house. When Jaylon arrived at Reina's door, he tidied up his clothes and pressed the doorbell.

Chapter 479

Chapter 479

Chapter 479 Treat Him to a Meal

After half a minute, the door was opened.

Seeing Anaya's face, Jaylon was disappointed.

"Why are you here?"

"It was Reina who invited me." Anaya raised her eyebrows. "If you have any objections, you can just leave."

Jaylon's face darkened as he entered the room.

Reina looked out from the kitchen. When she saw the flowers that Jaylon was holding, her expression changed slightly. Jaylon immediately explained, "They're fake flowers, which are plastic products."

Hearing this, Reina calmed down and went back to the kitchen to continue cooking.

Jaylon casually placed the flowers on the table, took off his suit jacket, rolled up the sleeves of his white shirt, and walked into the kitchen to help.

Hearst was washing vegetables. Jaylon took the vegetables from his hand and said, "I'll do it."

Hearst directly handed over the work to him and walked out of the kitchen.

Jaylon washed the vegetables while paying attention to Reina's movements. He couldn't help but ask, "Didn't you say that the dinner was made for two people?"

Reina was peeling fruits for decoration and casually replied, "It was an impromptu idea."

In fact, she was afraid that it would be embarrassing if Jaylon and she stayed alone.

Right now, she was still a little resistant to him. With two more people, the atmosphere would not be so stiff.

Jaylon did not ask any more questions and focused on washing vegetables.

Suddenly, an obvious gasp came from Reina.

Jaylon turned his head and saw that Reina's finger had been cut by a knife, and blood beads were seeping out.

Jaylon was worried and strode over to hold her hand.

Reina said coldly, "Are you going to suck my finger to stop the blood?"

Jaylon paused.

To please Reina, he had watched a lot of romantic dramas recently, and the male lead usually did this.

But Reina did not seem to like it very much.

"No, I want to help you wash it," he said in a deep voice. Then he asked casually, "Don't you like that?"

Reina replied, "No, the saliva is very dirty."

"Actually, I think so too," Jaylon agreed.

Reina was speechless.

The atmosphere during dinner was quite harmonious. After the meal, Jaylon was afraid that Reina would get annoyed if he stayed for too long, so he washed the dishes and left.

After chatting with Reina for a while, Anaya also left with Hearst.

On the way back, Anaya received a message from Silvia.

Since Silvia went abroad, they didn't contact each other frequently, but every time they talked, there was no feeling of alienation. Their relationship had always been very good.

Silvia sent Anaya a photo of the plane ticket, saying that the public welfare organization she attended would send her a representative to visit the country for an exchange, so she would return next week. Silvia would come to Anaya and ask Anaya if it was convenient.

Anaya immediately agreed, and then she was a little worried.

Anaya texted her: "Aren't you afraid that Bryant will see you?"

It took two minutes before Silvia replied: "My dad sent a bodyguard to follow me. It's fine. I won't act alone these days."

Silvia originally didn't want to participate in this event, but she had always wanted to find time to come back and meet up with Anaya, so she agreed.

Anaya was still worried and replied: "You can stay at my house for the next few days. It's safer."

Although the Tirrell family had declined and Bryant was no longer as aggressive as before, it was better to be careful.

Bryant had nothing now. If he went on an extreme way and wanted to die with Silvia, then it would be troublesome.

Silvia replied: "Okay."

Two days later, Reina received the list of the company she had worked with before.

This time, she needed to translate the document online, and she did not need to go to the company. She could just send the email directly to the person in charge.

When she translated to the end, she found that the last page of the document was missing, and the content stopped abruptly. So she sent a message to the person in charge to ask.

But there was no reply, and Reina was a little anxious.

The person in charge said that they needed to get a translation draft before three in the afternoon, and now there were only two hours left.

Reina was worried about delaying the progress, so she changed her clothes and went directly to the company, ready to do the work there.

After she arrived at the company, she went directly to the office of the person in charge.

There were many documents in the office. When the person in charge saw Reina, he was slightly stunned. "Reina, why are you here?"

Reina explained, "The last page of the document you sent me this morning is missing, and you said that you needed it during the meeting at three in the afternoon. So I came over to get the original document."

The person in charge frowned and seemed to be a little puzzled. "A meeting at three? I just came back from a meeting. What are you..."

Then he suddenly thought of something. "You're right. I forgot about it.

"I have to go to a meeting later, and I'll send you the original."

Reina felt that his attitude was a little strange, but she did not think too much about it. Then she quietly waited for him to turn on the computer to look for information.

The person in charge explained as he did it, "There was a meeting just now. My phone was muted, and I haven't checked it yet. I'm so sorry."

"It's fine." Reina sat down on the sofa. "Do you have two meetings in the afternoon?"

"Yes." He nodded heavily.

He soon found the document that he had sent to Reina this morning and sent the last page to her again. He then said, "It's done. You can go back to work."

Reina said, "You need the information at three o'clock, so I'll translate it and give it to you here."

She could do it on her phone, though it was not as convenient as a computer.

The man nodded casually. "Okay, I will take you to the reception room. It's quiet there."

"Okay."

The content on the last page of the information was short, and Reina only spent less than ten minutes getting it done.

She sorted out the document and sent it to the email of the person in charge. After everything was done, she went to his office and was about to say goodbye before leaving.

At the end of the corridor, the person in charge had his back to her and was talking to someone on the phone.

Reina did not want to eavesdrop and was about to leave.

Just as she took a step forward, she heard him say, "Mr. Malpas."

Although Reina couldn't hear the content, she heard these two words.

She paused in her steps. Thinking of the strange attitude of the person in charge, she suddenly realized something.

She understood why this company invited a pregnant woman like her to work, and why it always ensured her workload.

She had felt it was strange before, but today, she finally figured it out.

For a moment, Reina felt complicated.

Jaylon was probably worried that if he gave her a job directly, she would treat it as charity. In that way, he would hurt her sensitive self-esteem, so he used this kind of roundabout way to help her.

She was sensitive, and he changed his way of doing things to help her.

When Reina reached the gate of the company, she saw a car parked by the side of the road.

It was Jaylon's car.

Probably because she had discovered that he often drove a taxi to follow her a few days ago, he decided not to disguise himself anymore.

Reina hesitated for a while before walking to the side of the car and knocking on the window.

Jaylon slowly opened the window, revealing his cold and handsome face.

After keeping silent for a long time, Reina suddenly asked him with a smile, "Sir, would you like to give me a ride?"

Chapter 480

Chapter 480

Chapter 480 Reina Really Kisses Him

It had been quite a while since Jaylon last saw Reina smile at him.

Ever since the two reunited, Reina had been cold-shouldering him.

Reina shared her happiness with everyone but Jaylon.

But, to Jaylon's surprise, she actually smiled at him today.

Noticing that Jaylon remained silent, Reina asked her question again. Jaylon didn't come back to his senses until now. Then suppressing his excitement, Jaylon said calmly, "For you, it's free. Let's go."

Reina pulled open the car door and sat in the front passenger seat.

When they arrived, Jaylon hurried to get out of the car before walking over and opening the door for Reina.

Reina thanked him and left.

After hesitating for a few seconds about whether to follow her or not,

Jaylon decided that he might as well do it.

Then he took over Reina's bag so as to help her carry it.

Hearst had once told Jaylon that a bit of consideration wouldn't hurt when staying with a girl.

Jaylon reviewed what he had done today and thought, satisfied, "Up to now, I am quite considerate."

When they got to Reina's place, Jaylon returned Reina's bag to her. "Goodbye."

Then Reina pushed open the door and entered. But Jaylon called out to her in a hoarse voice, "Reina."

"Huh?"

Reina turned her head, only to find that Jaylon's body, which was strong and tall, had pressed down against her.

She could vividly sense his breathing, which was slightly rapid and warm.

With her heart jolting, Reina was completely stunned.

Their lips were less than an inch apart.

Before Jaylon's lips touched hers, Jaylon stopped and looked down at her, his eyes dark and looking cautious.

"Can I kiss you?"

Hearst told Jaylon that a sneak attack could be touching sometimes.

But that was on condition that the girl did not hate the boy.

Jaylon wasn't sure if Reina found it acceptable.

But Reina was emotionless. She simply looked at Jaylon and asked him rhetorically, "Do you think you can?"

The flash of hope that was there on Jaylon's face before disappeared. Then pursing his thin lips, Jaylon retreated a little.

At that moment, Reina, who was around ten inches shorter than him, stood on tiptoe to touch the corner of his lips.

Jaylon held his breath.

Despite having slept with her countless times, Jaylon had never felt his heartstrings being tugged like that.

After getting over the shock, Jaylon wanted to hug Reina, but Reina had already closed the door and shut Jaylon out of it.

What had just happened was like a dream to Jaylon.

But the warmth at the corner of his lips was still lingering, reminding him that it wasn't illusional.

Reina had really kissed him.

He had waited for so long and his persistence paid off.

Later on, Jaylon told Anaya what had happened between him and Reina. Despite Anaya saying that Jaylon was not worthy of Reina, deep down, Anaya was happy for the two.

It seemed that their wedding was just around the corner.

A few days later, Silvia was back from abroad.

Since Anaya had difficulties getting about, she had her female driver pick Silvia up.

Soon, Silvia arrived.

The moment Silvia got out of the car, Anaya was stunned.

Whenever Anaya thought of Silvia, Silvia showed up in Anaya's mind with a disfigured face. Although Silvia had sent Anaya a picture some time ago, it was still difficult for Anaya to put Silvia's name on the new face.

Now that Anaya had seen Silvia in person, Anaya finally accepted it.

Silvia smiled at Anaya.

That smile was as shy and reserved as it was a year ago.

"Ana, it's been quite a while."

Anaya replied with a smile, "Yes. Let's get into the house now."

"Okay." Silvia nodded.

The two then walked into the house together. On their way, Anaya asked Silvia how her life was in Germany. Silvia gave a brief answer, which was full of happiness and joy though.

After Kael took Silvia away from America, not only did Kael have a psychologist give her treatment, but he also arranged for her to have plastic surgery so as to help her pull herself together.

Due to that, Silvia recovered greatly, despite still being a bit shy and frightened of being close to men.

Aracely knew that Silvia was back as well. Therefore, she suggested that they have a meal together.

And since things between Jaylon and Reina were still in a stalemate, Anaya then decided to include the two as well as some other friends so as to have a dinner party at night.

And knowing that Silvia still found it uncomfortable staying with guys due to what Bryant did to her before, Anaya only invited a few female friends to the party. As for the guys in the house, she planned to make them stay in the room that night.

After Hearst came back from work and heard about Anaya's plan, he was a bit worried. "Refrain from having unhealthy food and drinking. Don't stay up late, and be careful of the baby."

Anaya threw her arms around his neck and pulled him down a bit so as to kiss him. "Mr. Helms, you're being grandmotherly, which is not charming at all. Now eat and go upstairs."

Hearst stroked her head helplessly and kissed her back while saying in a low voice, "Got it, Mrs. Helms."

Then Anaya came back to Silvia.

Silvia found the couple very loving. Therefore, she sighed, "Ana, what a relationship between Mr. Helms and you!"

Anaya sat down beside her and said, "Soon, you will meet your Prince Charming as well."

Silvia lowered her head and said in a low voice, "Ana, you know me.

"Who would want a woman like me?"

From the moment she met Bryant, she had been sent into an abyss of despair.

Therefore, she never expected to meet another person who liked her.

Probably, she would spend the rest of her life alone.

Since Anaya knew how the relationship between Bryant and Silvia hurt Silvia deeply, Anaya then put a stop to the topic and comforted Silvia,

"There will be."

Silvia smiled and changed the subject.

Early in the evening, Aracely and Reina showed up.

Also, Anaya invited Nikki as well.

Since Prudential Group had recently shifted its business to America, Nikki kept commuting between America and Canada these days. And knowing that Nikki happened to stay in America now, Anaya then decided to call her over.

There was a wide terrace on the roof of the villa, with a swing, some succulent plants, and non- flowering plants on it.

Reina was allergic to pollen, so Anaya set up the gathering venue here.

Summer nights here were noisy with birds and insects chirping. But everyone felt serene.

The huge starry sky was like a curtain in the sky, quiet and romantic.

Anaya had people put a piece of cloth on the ground and food and colored candles on the cloth. Embracing the gentle night wind, they started to eat and chat away.

Since Anaya and Reina were pregnant, Aracely, who liked alcohol, then asked Nikki and Silvia to drink with her.

Nikki, who was a straightforward person and enjoyed socializing, had fun drinking with Aracely.

Silvia, on the other hand, didn't want to turn down Aracely. Therefore, she forced herself to drink some alcohol as well.

But since she was not a drinker, after a few glasses, Silvia found her face already reddening.