

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 961

Lord Top looked at guard D on the sofa and said, "He's here to learn how to play games."

"What?" Randy was a little puzzled. "How can you let him sleep here when I'm not at home/ What if... I mean, what if he..."

"Are you afraid that I will come to him at night?"

Randy was speechless.

"Idiot! I'm afraid because you're a girl! Don't you know how good your figure is? Don't let him stay overnight! Also, when you go to Christy's house to eat, remember to wear trousers. Don't wear shorts even if the weather is hot!"

"Okay." Lord Top looked back at the sofa. Ferne was leaning his head over to guard D's phone screen, admiring the match with him.

From time to time, Ferne would burst out in the living room with a word, "Awesome!"

"Yes," Guard D said.

"Let's hang up. I'll use my phone to call you later." Lord Top handed the phone over to Ferne.

"Are you done?" asked Ferne.

Lord Top nodded.

Ferne walked to the door and asked guard D, "Are you going?"

Guard D shook his head and replied, "From now on, I will be her personal bodyguard."

"Emily, what happens?" Ferne asked.

Lord Top shook her head and said, "Nothing." She didn't want to explain, but seeing Ferne's confused appearance, she thought for a moment and told him what had happened today.

"Well, he's right. But we can't take care of you if we go out. You'll be safer if he stays here. Then you guys go on. I'll go back home now." Ferne waved his hand and went out.

Lord Top sent him to the door, then went to the kitchen to wash some fruits. She brought them to the coffee table and handed them to guard D. Guard D did not refuse. He took them and ate them. He even asked, "Do you have ice cream?"

Lord Top said there were some ice creams in the refrigerator.

Without waiting for Lord Top to take it, guard D had already run over to open the fridge. He took two flavors, ran over, and handed one to Lord Top.

While the two were eating, guard D asked, "Can we play another round?"

Randy was speechless.

He really wanted to ask Vincent if there was anything wrong with his bodyguard. Guard D was being with such a good-looking girl. He just did nothing but played games all night!

Lord Top heard the sound and turned around. When she saw Randy, she thought of something.

Randy thought that Lord Top was going to rush over enthusiastically. However, Lord Top said, "It's good to see you. There is no more ice cream."

Randy didn't know what to say.

Guard D, who had been sitting on the sofa and playing games with his head lowered, reacted when he heard the ice cream. He quickly turned his head and looked at Randy. Then, he said, "I like strawberry-flavored and chocolate flavor. Thank you."

Randy was angry.

He thought, 'Are you an idiot? Did you just play games the whole night without even thinking that Lord Top is so pretty?

Are you even a fucking human?'

Emily was sitting in the car heading to Hump Village when Randy called and complained.

Randy roared almost all the time, "They are playing games all the time! What does he mean? Is he a man or not?"

Emily didn't know what to say.

Emily took some time to figure out what Randy was trying to say. However, Emily was even more confused. "But isn't it better for him to do that? You don't need to worry!"

Only then did Randy calm down. He paused and said, "Makes sense."

Emily was speechless.

After hanging up the phone, Emily was still staring at the phone in confusion. "Randy isn't jealous of the guards, so he came here early in the morning, is he?"

Rex, who was driving, nodded. "It seems so."

"It's really strange for boys to be jealous." Emily looked at Vincent with some surprise. "Mr. Vincent, don't you think so? How could Randy be jealous of the guards?"

"What's so strange about it?" Vincent looked up at Emily from the tablet and said, "I am jealous now."

Emily didn't see this coming.

Ever since Emily found out that Harold was still alive, Harold had become all her focus. Emily was either chatting with Harold on the phone or buying medicine for him online. Emily was completely ignoring Vincent. This morning, Emily also forgot to buy breakfast for Vincent when she bought breakfast for Harold.

Vincent did not show any dissatisfaction. He just looked down at his tablet after getting into the car, looking like he was very busy with work. Emily originally did not intend to disturb him. Now that Emily heard that he was jealous, he could not help but widen her eyes. After thinking for a while, Emily realized that she seemed to be ignoring Vincent these days.

"Mr. Vincent..." Emily tried to please Vincent by hooking his arm and snuggling up against his shoulder. Her little hands hooked around his fingers. "Are you really jealous?" Emily asked in a low voice.

"No." Vincent looked at Emily.

Then the answer must be "yes".

Emily couldn't help but laugh. Then, she hugged Vincent's arm and looked at him for a while before whispering, "Don't be jealous. You are my favorite."

When Vincent heard this, his face didn't change, but the corners of his lips curled up.

Emily did not inform Harold in advance this time. When they arrived at Hump Village, they found that Harold went to work in the wood factory. Following the instructions of Spencer, the group arrived at the gate of the wood factory.

From afar, Emily saw Harold and a group of workers unloading the wood. The boss stood there, watching for a while before he walked in to answer a phone call. The other old employees quickly hid and smoked. They handed the rest of the work to Harold.

Harold did not care and kept on moving. He seemed to have endless strength.

The few old employees who were smoking on the side said sourly.

"Oh, you have so much strength every day. Is it because you don't have a woman to sleep with at night?"

"That's right. Where's that little chick who used to visit you? Haven't seen her for a while."

"Does she dump you for some other man?"

"Oh, dear! It can't be you can't do it, can it?"

The group of people lets out wretched laughter.

"Perhaps we can send you home." The other people half-surrounded Emily with malicious intentions.

Emily lowered her head. She was wearing a mask, so no one could see her face clearly. All they heard was her voice saying, "Hurry up and leave, or I'll ask my uncle to beat you up."

Emily looked like she was very scared, only pretending to be calm.

When the few saw Emily like this, they knew that she was just making up an uncle to fool them. There weren't many people here in the wilderness. It seemed that Emily was the only one who had accidentally barged in by driving. She couldn't find a way out.

"Your uncle?" The bald man and the man with buckteeth smiled harder. "Where is he?"

Just as they were about to reach out to touch Emily, Emily who had been lowering her head, suddenly raised her head and smiled coldly. "I already said that if you don't leave, I will call my uncle out to beat you up."

As soon as Emily finished speaking, she kicked the crotch of the man in the front. Then, Emily punched with her elbow and kicked the man from the back. After that, the group all lay on the ground and cried out.

"Spare me!"

"Don't hit me! Don't hit me!"

"Stop fighting. I still need to make money to support my daughter..."

Rex, who was observing the whole process in the car, could not help but flatter, "The little Hulk is really awesome!"

Emily stepped on the mouths of those people and warned them in a low voice, "I advise you to pay attention to your words in the future. I don't think you want to mess up with me."

The few of them nodded in fear, then covered the wounds on their faces and ran away.

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 963

Emily was still frowning when she got into the car. Vincent wiped the dust off her fingers and asked in a low voice, "I thought you were going to beat them harder. Why did you show mercy?"

Emily held Vincent's arm and sighed softly, "They are evil in my eyes, but they are fathers and husbands for their families."

"I don't hope to see him not able to afford milk powder for his daughter," Emily looked out the window and said.

There were always so many harmonious and happy families that Emily had met in her life. Emily was undoubtedly envious of them. Meanwhile, she also hated herself for being so useless back then.

But she had constantly thought many times if Maury were not dead at that time, he could have died of excitement next time, which was his destiny in the end.

"You've grown up." Vincent touched the top of her head.

Emily stuck out her tongue at him. "I've grown up for a long time. Agreed?"

"Yes, sure. You grow up," Vincent said, curling his lips.

Hearing the ridicule in his tone, Emily couldn't help nibbling Vincent's chin.

They were joking and chatting in the carriage.

Harold came back at night. From a distance, he saw the car parked on the road. So he trotted into the courtyard.

In the yard, Emily and Vincent were serving food and setting cutleries. Rex was roasting fish. The guards washed fruits, served the fruit plater to the table, and set the chairs. Dinner was ready.

Emily looked up and saw Harold standing at the door. Emily smiled at him and said, "What are you doing there? Come on in."

Harold nodded and went into the bathroom to take a shower.

Emily went back to her room, took out the new clothes that she had bought for Harold, and placed them outside of the bathroom door. "Put on the new clothes when you're done. I'd like to have a look first."

"Alright," Harold answered in the bathroom.

Spencer smiled. "He is very happy now. In the past, he always wore a long face and was not in a good mood. But he looks much happier than before these days."

Hearing this, Emily felt a little sorry for Harold.

After all, it was all about the injuries on Harold's face.

Harold had to have another minor operation, followed by months of rehabilitation during which he was confined to his room all day. No sunshine, no wind.

Emily had already had plans. If she didn't have time by then, she would ask the guards to come to take care of Harold. If it didn't work, she would hire a housekeeper, but the only concern was to expose Stephanie's location.

However, there was still time. They could discuss it later.

Vincent brought Spencer a bottle of liquor. Spencer usually did not drink much. Tasting a mouthful of liquor, Spencer felt it was good and took another shallow sip.

"Stephanie was busy recently and doesn't have time to come here. Emily, please help me take care of her over there. Don't allow anyone to bully her," Spencer looked at Emily and said.

"Rest assured. She's fine," Emily nodded.

"That's great!" Spencer smiled. Then, he thought of something and frowned. "I wonder when I can wait until she gets married."

Emily thought, 'It should be soon.'

However, Spencer seemed to be unaware of this, so she did not say anything.

After taking a shower, Harold put on the new clothes and walked out. His face was still wrapped in gauze, which was a little thinner than that before, and only his eyes were exposed.

Emily stepped forward and looked at him carefully. "You've lost weight."

"You, too. And you've become taller," Harold said, reaching out to Emily's head top to measure.

Emily laughed and pushed him.

Harold also smiled, silly.

Vincent sat at the table and watched them, with a straight face. Rex even reached out to block Vincent's eyes, trying to prevent Vincent from seeing this scene.

The guards were chatting through their eyes.

"Guard A: I feel sorry for Mr. Vincent for a second."

"Guard B: I feel sorry for Mr. Vincent for two seconds."

"Guard C: Why isn't Guard D here? I miss him."

After chatting with Stephanie, Emily turned her head and took a glance.

There was a small lamp in the tent. Vincent, who had just taken a shower, was lying beside her. When she turned her head, she could see that his hair was half dry, his eyes were very bright, his thin lips were slightly pursed, his lips shape looked perfect, his jaw was slightly raised, revealing his protruding Adam's apple, on which there was a new tooth mark.

Emily stared at the tooth mark, smiling happily.

Vincent was looking at the tablet when he was suddenly pounced by Emily. Then, he felt a pain in his throat because Emily nibbled him again.

Spencer did not sleep much at night. When he opened the door to walk out, he saw the tent in the courtyard was shaking. Spencer coughed lightly and quickly closed the door.

Emily heard the voice in a daze and said, "It sounds like someone is opening the door. Does Harold come out?" As she spoke, she was about to stick her head out to take a look.

Vincent pointed at the shadows on the tent and said, "Don't move around, or they will think we are doing something indescribable."

The shadow looked like two people were entangled.

And, it was like an indescribable scene between a man and a woman.

Emily changed her mind in a second.

"Let's look at the moon." She lay on top of Vincent and locked her fingers with his.

Vincent looked at her and asked, "In this way?"

"Yes, I look at you, and you look at me." Emily smiled slyly.

Vincent couldn't say anything but dote on Emily.

Emily spent all her holidays at Spencer's house. Harold didn't go to work again. One point to mention, when Harold asked for leave, his boss mentioned that some other staff also did so. His boss told him to assume work as soon as possible, claiming that he would give Harold a raise.

It seemed that the boss thought that Harold and some other staff were not happy with their salary, so they collectively asked for leave to protest. Harold did not explain.

Stephanie was living a carefree life these days. She was immersed in the sweetness of love. She was very happy when she called back once in a while. She would occasionally share with Emily the small details of her relationship. Sometimes, she would complain to Harold about the hard work of the studio and all kinds of unsatisfactory things.

Harold was a very good listener. Ever since Stephanie had talked to him last time, she would talk to Harold whenever the studio encountered a problem. No matter how late it was, Harold would always pick up her call immediately and his voice was always clear, even if Stephanie was on a whim to call him at two or three o'clock in the early morning.

Stephanie did not expect that the first call she made after she broke up was also to Harold, but that would be a few months later.

After Labor Day, Lord Top went to class as usual. The boys in the class did not find fault with Lord Top, but the atmosphere in class was low and depressed.

The girls gathered around and asked what happened after class. A boy said, "Don't mention it."

The girls were curious and asked, "What's wrong?"

Rollo, who had a gloomy expression on his face, looked up and said to the girl, "Don't ask!"

The girl was so shocked by him that she almost cried. Another girl quickly comforted her, "Don't ask. He must have lost the game."

"What does it have to do with me if he loses the game? Why is he angry at me?" The girl wiped her tears and cried aggrievedly. The others pulled her over to comfort her.

Lord Top was disturbed by the cries. When it was time for lunch, she took her school bag and went to the lawn in the shade. She was eating while reading. Suddenly, she got a message.

It was from Guard D, "Eat quickly. We'll play games after you finish eating."

Lord Top didn't reply.

Rollo and a few other boys went to the playground after lunch. All of them were in a bad mood and were ready to play basketball. As they were walking on the road, they heard the sound of playing games not far away.

"Be careful. Don't be attacked by enemies. Look at the map."

"The enemy is going down to attack the beasts. You guys stay behind and wait for me."

"Your economy is too weak. Remember to use the last blood to get the coin."

"Follow me to anti-attack the enemy."

The boys had heard the voice before. When this person first came to the class and introduced himself on stage, he said in such a voice. "Nice to meet you. My name is Casey Elliott."

At that time, many people laughed at him as his name sounded like a girl's, but he was good-looking. As soon as he appeared, he attracted the attention of all the girls in the class, including Rosa.

When Rollo heard that voice, he frowned. When he heard the game terminology, he couldn't help but walk over.

Lord Top sat on the lawn, with a book, a sandwich, and a bottle of water beside. She was very engrossed in the mobile phone screen and one of her hands moved quickly on the screen.

Rollo rubbed his hands and said, "You're good at games. Would you like to join our team? We will play games together and will share the money with you."

Lord Top shook her head, "No. I have to read books."

Lord Top had made so much money in the previous competition that she could not spend all of it. Moreover, Randy's team was earning money every year. In other words, Lord Top was rich and didn't need to bother with money.

Rollo was speechless. Seeing that Lord Top was about to leave, he immediately stopped her. "Are you still a member of Class C? Do you have any collective sense of honor?"

"I don't know that the collective sense of honor includes playing games together. Can you tell me more in detail? I'll go to the office to consult the teacher later." Lord Top looked at him with a blank expression.

"Alright, it's not about the collective sense of honor. It's about ourselves. We played games with someone and lost. They asked us to continue the competition this Friday." Rollo felt frustrated and told the truth.

If it were in the past, Rollo would just beat whoever didn't listen to him. But Lord Top was good at games, and Rollo didn't dare to act rashly. He was worried that after beating her up, she would still not listen to him. Lord Top had a strong aura that she would never admit defeat and would never bow her head. Even if he stepped on her, she would still look down at him.

Rollo felt that his sincere remarks would move her. However, his lackeys lost momentum when they heard his words. Lord Top said indifferently, "Well, good luck."

Rollo was shocked to hear that.

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 965

Rollo grabbed Lord Top. "Alright, tell us. What do you want if you go to the competition with us?"

"Why do you want me to go to the competition?" Lord Top asked.

"Because you look very powerful," Rollo told the truth. "I played with the hero you just played, but I lost every time, and you..."

What Lord Top acted just now really wasn't like him. In the classroom, he just listened carefully to the teachers and read books. He didn't talk to people. Such an honest person actually knew how to play games, and even managed to come out alive in one versus four, and even killed one person. From this point, Rollo thought that Lord Top's skill was far above them. That was why he always invited him to join.

Lord Top thought for a moment. "I haven't had time to do my homework recently."

"We'll write it for you!" Rollo said eagerly.

"How long will you write for me?" asked Lord Top.

"How long do you want?" asked Rollo with a smile on his face.

Lord Top said, "A few months."

Rollo was speechless.

Those boys didn't say anything.

On Friday night, Lord Top carried his bag and entered an Internet cafe. Rollo and a few boys waved at her. On the table were prepared milk tea and sweets.

At the same time, on the opposite side of Happisland City's first bookstore, a new bookstore was officially opened. The name was Bookstore of the Britt Group, and Emily, the owner of the bookstore, was also brought over by Vincent. She looked at him in disbelief and laughed for a long time.

"You are so bad, aren't you? You just opened the shop opposite them?" Emily covered her mouth as she laughed.

"The place next to them is not good," Vincent said as he held her in his arms.

Emily couldn't hold back her laughter. "Could it be that you want to open one next door to them as well? You are a little tricky. Be careful of being cursed by them."

"Take a look." Vincent pulled her to a place. Emily stopped and found that many of her casually drawn paintings were hung here. Those paintings had no focus, some in a few strokes, others in colorful paint as if representing her mood during that time.

She looked up and laughed. "Vincent, I should also hang up your nude photo."

Vincent became speechless.

This bookstore was more than twice the size of the first bookstore on the opposite side. There was a resting area and tea water area in the middle, and even provided the children's amusement area for the women who brought the children.

"You did the research?" Emily asked Vincent.

"I went to their bookstore and designed this place myself. How about it?" Vincent said calmly, without any intention of taking credit. He seemed to be talking about something very inconspicuous, but Emily was very moved. She held his hand. "I like it very much."

Vincent's eyes were dark and his thin lips were close to her ear as he said, "I want payment."

As Ferne fastened his seat belt, he thought of Noah's pair of sunken eyes and trembling fingers when he took the scissors. Ferne asked, "Do you think that can be taken back after being cut?"

Noah turned the car around and said, "Yes."

"Then where did you throw that thing?" asked Ferne nervously.

"I fed it to a dog." Noah looked straight ahead. "When I ran out just now, I saw a dog, so I threw it at that dog."

Ferne lay prone outside the window and retched.

Noah parked the car on the side of the road, and Ferne directly ran out to vomit.

Five minutes later, he dragged his exhausted body back and said, "Go back."

This was not the first time Noah had done such a thing.

But this was the first time Ferne followed him and witnessed him do such a thing.

Some man could not control his penis, so Noah could only help him control it.

At three o'clock in the morning today, Trevor received a help letter on his computer. It contained words like death, so it was directly extracted.

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 966

At that time, Trevor was still sleeping. But Christy heard the noise and got up to take a look. Then, she passed the message to Noah.

The girl was twelve years old.

This number always reminded Noah of the past. He thought that Christy told this to him because of his age.

That monster was a sixty-year-old man.

Because the girl broke the classmate's pen and she was worried that she would be scolded by her parents when she went home, so she hid downstairs and did not dare to go home. That man noticed her, so he said to the girl, "I have a pen in my house. I can give it to you."

The girl asked innocently, "Really?"

Then, she was brought to hell.

The girl did not dare to tell her parents and hoped that the bad guy would be punished, so she was willing to use her own life in exchange for the bad guy's retribution. In the end, she still asked innocently, "Is anyone willing to help me?"

Noah drove the car downstairs, and then went upstairs with Ferne.

Christy hadn't slept yet. She was waiting at their door. When she saw Ferne, she couldn't help but ask, "What's wrong with him?"

Seeing that she was still holding dishes in her hands, Ferne immediately pushed her away and rushed into the house. Not long after, the sound of vomiting came from the room.

"What's wrong with him?" Christy widened her eyes in surprise.

Noah knocked her on the head, took the two bowls of rice in her hand, then said to her, "It's done. You can go to bed early."

Christy heaved a sigh of relief.

Noah put two meals on the dining table, went straight to the bathroom. He took off his clothes and prepared to take a bath.

Ferne was still vomiting. The air was filled with that foul stench. Noah frowned slightly. He first opened the window, then carried Ferne into the bathroom. He opened the shower and poured the water on Ferne.

Ferne's face was full of water. He stared at the shower above his head, and then looked at Noah and said, "You will go to jail."

Noah paused for a moment, threw the towel on Ferne's face. Then Noah said, "Come out and eat after you finished the shower."

Ferne stared at his back, then he picked up the towel to cover his faintly red eyes.

In the middle of May, Emma sent an invitation. Stony was going to celebrate his sixth birthday. Emma asked everyone to have a meal when they were free.

Emily accepted the invitation and took Lord Top with her.

"I'm doing very well in school." Emily smiled.

Emily had been living a good life these days. No one dared to cause trouble in the school. Students in Class F were changing. The girls were studying seriously in the classrooms. After the lessons, they also dug out all kinds of gossip. They even found out how many girlfriends the teacher of Class A had had before. Of course, their main focus was to prevent people from doing bad things to Emily. However, after the incident about Jemma, no one dared to cause trouble to Emily.

Even David, Class S's commissary in charge of sports, had been quiet for a long time.

Emily had been very active in class during this period. Whenever she encountered problems she would not answer, she would turn around and ask Lucy. After school, Emily walked with Marisa and Lucy, talking and laughing. When Emily returned home, she hacked into Rex's computer and checked what he had searched for. Then Emily went to the studio to draw. When it was almost dinner time, she would go to the study to tease Vincent...

Of course, if Vincent lost control, it would be a problem when they would have dinner that day.

They had dinner late last night.

Thinking of this, Emily couldn't help but gently touch her neck.

Lord Top accidentally glanced at it. Then she smiled.

Emily saw her smile. So Emily directly took out her phone and took a look. Then, she skillfully took out her makeup.

Rex, who was in the front seat, was speechless.

So was Vincent who was in the back row.

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 967

Emma, who was wearing a dress, and Jaquan, who was wearing a suit, were standing at the door. In the middle of them was Stony wearing a uniform. The three of them smiled at the guests.

When Emily and Lord Top got out of the car, Emma took a few steps forward to greet them. Emily quickly came over, "Slow down. You're pregnant."

Emma's stomach had grown a lot over the past few months, but she didn't feel anything wrong with it.

Emily handed the gift to Stony. "Happy birthday."

Stony happily received it and said, "Thank you, Emily."

When he received the gift from Lord Top, Stony smiled, "Thank you, lady."

Lord Top smiled.

They greeted each other at the door. When Stony saw Vincent come out, he greeted Vincent politely, "Here you are, Uncle Vincent."

Vincent handed the gift to Stony, who opened it on the spot. His eyes lit up when he saw the gift and said sincerely. "Thank you, Uncle Vincent. You're so handsome!"

The Alberton family was rich, and they did not lack any gifts, so they appreciated others' kindness.

Stony was receiving private tutoring in the Alberton family. He was either practicing martial arts or guns. He was still a child and felt bored after being watched for a few months. He was excited to receive a slingshot from Vincent and couldn't wait to test it on birds.

"Let's go in." Jaquan chatted with Vincent for a while and gestured for everyone to enter.

Emily held Vincent's hand as they walked. This was the first time she had come to the Alberton family. She felt that the house had many layers. Moreover, there were bodyguards guarding everywhere. They were dressed in a black uniform of the Alberton family and had a solemn look.

There were some wooden stakes for martial arts practice everywhere in the courtyard, and there was even a venue for archery. Emily's eyes lit up when she saw this. When she entered the largest courtyard and heard Janessa's laughter, Emily came back to her senses and waved at Janessa and Armando. "Hi! Janessa!"

Janessa's stomach was a little bigger than Emma's. When she got up, she had to rely on Armando's help. Janessa once said that she was afraid that she wouldn't be able to catch her breath while she slept.

Janessa often felt tired while walking and couldn't catch her breath. It was probably because she had put on too much weight. She had already gained thirty-three pounds before her due date. Janessa pinched her chubby face and cried to Emily, "Look at my face! Oh my god, I'm so fat!"

Emily laughed.

Janessa stared at her angrily.

Girls would wear dresses in May. Emily was wearing a white T-shirt and jeans, looking like a college student. Lord Top wore a pair of overalls, a hoodie, and a black hat, looking like a low-key and quiet boy.

Janessa, on the other hand, was wearing a loose white dress. Her stomach was protruding and she had to hold her waist with her hand. Pointed at Emily and Lord Top, she said, "When you are pregnant, I'll wait at your door all day long and photograph how you climb the stairs. By then you will know that you have to catch your breath while you are walking."

Janessa quietly took out something from her bag and stuffed it into Ferne's hands. "It's good for you. Take it."

Janessa was so mysterious that Ferne did not dare to open it until he went quietly to the bathroom.

Shit.

It was an essential oil for curing hemorrhoids.

Deon had just returned from the hotel with Bernice and his children. The other relatives and friends were arranged to stay at the hotel. Only Emily and her friends were treated at home.

After brief introductions, everyone sat down. Jaquan and Stony were about to express their thanks when Randy's voice came from outside the courtyard. "Sorry, I'm late."

"And me," Collin said.

Jaquan turned around with a smile and saw a girl standing next to Randy. Jaquan immediately got angry. "Damn it, Randy. How could you bring a date here? Lord Top is here too!"

Randy quickly moved aside and then scolded Jaquan, "Are you blind? That's Collin's date."

Jaquan shut up.

Billionaire's Reborn Baby novel Chapter 968

"Hello, everyone. This is my ... girlfriend, Jade." Collin brought Jade to everyone and smiled.

Jade gave a shy smile to everyone.

Jaquan walked over and patted Collin on the shoulder. "Great! You have a secret girlfriend. What? Just to give me a surprise today?"

"Why should I give you a surprise?" Collin patted the gift on Jaquan's chest and said, "Be quick. Let me see 'my son'."

"Go away," Jaquan said with a laugh.

"Mr. Collin!" Stony ran over when he saw Collin.

"Good boy!" Collin carried up Stony and said, "You've grown a lot, taller and stronger."

"Since you like kids so much, hurry up to have your own one," Jaquan deliberately said from the side.

Jade blushed.

Collin took a glance at Jaquan. After saying some more words to Stony, Collin brought Jade to their seats. Coincidentally, they sat next to Dorothy.

Dorothy slowly swept her gaze over Jade from top to bottom. Then she raised an eyebrow at Collin, indicating that this one was more beautiful than the previous one he loved.

Collin smiled and said nothing. When he turned his head, the smile on his face immediately disappeared.

Jade was in line with Cora's preferences in all aspects. Her height, weight, appearance, personality, and even her favorite fruit and the taste of picking clothes were deeply loved by Cora.

As Collin's mother, Cora arranged everything for her son, especially his marriage. Collin had to accept the girl whom Cora was happy with, regardless of his feelings.

Collin couldn't change it, and he didn't want to either.

Jade would be his wife in the future, and just thinking about this made him frown.

Emily greeted Collin through the table and smiled at Jade friendly.

Collin kept smiling and chatted with others all the time. But Emily always felt that there was something hidden in his eyes, which made him unhappy.

"Have your dinner. Don't keep staring at him," Vincent said as he placed the food on her plate.

Emily lowered her head to eat food. Then, she whispered to Vincent, "I feel that Doctor Mueller seems a little unhappy."

"Why do you say that?" Vincent handed the soup to her.

"Look at Jaquan and Doctor Mueller. Jaquan's eyes sparkled as she looked at Emma. While Doctor Mueller and his girlfriend just started dating, but..." Emily wondered how to describe it. "Why do they look like an old married couple?"

Vincent glanced over there, seeing that Jade was lowering her head with a very shy smile, and her face was full of joy.

In contrast, Collin looked too cold. Even though he kept smiling, it was no different from his smile to the patient in the hospital, which was very polite.

"I don't know. I never thought you and her would get married. Frankly speaking, even if you get married, you will get divorced in the future," Dorothy said.

Collin's heart was touched slightly, but he didn't reveal it on his face. Then, he said with a smile, "Have you changed your profession to fortune-telling?"

"I can see people accurately," Dorothy said, deliberately leaning close to Collin, and whispered, "if you want to break up, you can come to me. I'll leave my door open for you tonight."

Collin was silent.

He took a sip of water and said, "Don't bother."

Dorothy shrugged, "What a pity! I quite like your figure and your appearance." She turned the glass in her hand, looked at Collin, and asked, "You don't seem to have sex with her yet."

Collin was embarrassed. Not far away, Jade was coming over, with a shy smile.

Dorothy looked at Jade and sighed.

"Why are you sighing?" Collin asked.

"I just feel that she is so pure. Look, what a shy smile she has!" Dorothy made a shy face, then said, "I can only pretend to be shy."

Collin was speechless.

Korbin and Roger both stayed for a while and took their leave. Deon and Bernice made a toast to everyone and went inside, leaving Jaquan and Emma with the guests. Stony had already run off with his slingshot.

Felice and Allen came after the meal. They had been entertaining guests at the hotel until now. During this period of time, they had made many new friends in City Qi. Although the Alberton family was crude and rash, the friends they made were all good and loyal. Some of them were very knowledgeable. Deon could be friends with these people because he had helped them. Now Deon was holding a birthday party for his grandson who was just found. These people all came to congratulate him after traveling for a long distance.

Felice and Allen returned with a pile of business cards. When they saw Collin and the others, they greeted them politely.

Emily had classes tomorrow, so she took a few bites and went back early. Lord Top did not go with him as Randy was going to take her to City Y to meet Vincent.

The party had come to an end. When night fell, Felice suddenly remembered something. "Where's Stony?"

Deon was also stunned. "I haven't seen him since this morning."

Emma stood there and asked, "Where did he go?"

Jaquan was worried about her and the baby in her belly. He supported her. "Go back to your room first. Stony might be playing outside. I'll go look for him. Don't worry, wait for me at home."

"Don't worry. He has a locator on him." Emma was chilled. "Go check where he is."

Jaquan let out a sigh of relief. After all, Stony had been kidnapped before. So when he heard that he was missing, he would recall the scene of Stony almost being drowned to death.

"Then I'll go first." Jaquan left.

Deon also informed Korbin and Roger.

As lights were here and there, the entire Alberton family was out to search for Stony in the middle of the night.

Felice and Allen were walking back and forth at the door anxiously. Bernice wanted to look for Stony but she had to appease Emma, Felice, and Allen. The worry tortured her and she walked around anxiously, high heels clattering on the ground.

Korbin immediately sent people to find Stony when he learned about the location. Roger followed closely behind. Dorothy also sent her people. At around ten o'clock that night, they finally found Stony. It turned out that he was kidnapped. He was playing with his slingshot, but then he went after a bird and ran into a group of kidnappers.

A boy's voice sounded. "Valery, when we get back, I'll tell my dad to fire your dad."

Valery suddenly became angry, "You are the one who asked to come out! This is not my fault. You can't fire my dad!"

"Hey, we are being kidnapped. Can you lower your voice?" Stony had no choice but to speak up.

The two children shut up.

Stony fumbled around in the warehouse and heard the people outside arguing about something. Later, the door was kicked open and the light seeped in. Stony held a nail that he found on the ground. When he looked up, he inadvertently saw Valery standing in front of the boy as if she was trying to protect him.

Stony felt complicated. When he was rescued by Korbin, he looked back at Valery inexplicably.

Valery was wiping the dust off that boy's face with her clothes.

After Jaquan picked up Stony, he let others know Stony was safe.

Collin received Jaquan's call after sending Jade back.

It was 10:30. Collin remembered it very clearly. At 9:30, he and Jade left Cora's place. Before leaving, Cora told Collin to choose a date for engagement.

Collin was checking the date on his phone. He was unconsciously thinking about what Roxy would be doing at this time. Was she eating instant noodles? Was she making coffee? Or was she taking a shower?

Collin parked the car outside Roxy's home. It was 10:30. He texted Roxy, "I'm not coming today."

Roxy made herself a cup of coffee after taking a shower. As she stirred the coffee, she looked in the direction of the door, lost in thought.

Her phone vibrated. Roxy knew it must be Collin.

Sure enough, he was not coming today.

Collin texted her. It meant he was in a good mood. But he came here fewer and fewer. Roxy was very clear that Collin had another woman.

Roxy was waiting for him to show his cards.

This day came very fast.

Many young people would define the 20th of May as a holiday for couples to confess their love. Beautiful roses were sold everywhere. When Roxy went to the bathroom, she vaguely remembered that she didn't have a period in the last two months.

It was dark but still hot outside. Roxy was wearing a black loose dress, a hat, and a mask. She entered a pharmacy.

Roxy was not sure whether Collin used condoms every time. She prayed in her heart that it should be a disorder caused by long-term insomnia. However, when Stony sat on the toilet and saw two red lines appear on the pregnancy test strip, her mind went blank.

"Roxanne?" Roxy heard Collin's voice.

Roxy quickly threw the test strip into the trash can. She hesitated for a second. What would Collin do if he knew she was pregnant?

But soon, Roxy lost such concerns.

Collin stood outside the bathroom and said, "I'm going to get married."

The test strip in Roxy's hand fell to the ground. Pausing for a moment, she picked it up, wrapped it up layer after layer with a tissue, and threw it into the trash can.

Roxy washed her face. When she opened the door and went out, she was wearing a faint smile.

"Congratulations," Roxy said.

Collin thought, 'If you're a little reluctant, I can give up Jade and Cora for you.' But Roxy had no hint of reluctance on her face at all. Roxy was saying congratulations with a smile. She reached out to him and said, "Give me the key, and we won't have to meet again."

Collin spent more than a year proving that Roxy did not love him.

Collin gave the key to Roxy and left without looking back.

What he did not know was that Roxy disappeared since then.

At the end of May, Collin went to Roxy's place and knocked on the door. No one answered. He lifted the carpet.

Collin found two keys hidden under the carpet.

He knew at once that Roxy had left. But he still opened the door and searched each room, shouting Roxy's name over and over again.

Jade sat there awkwardly and stood up after a long while.

She finally realized where the real problem was. Ever since they were together, Collin had never kissed her. Never.

When the car stopped, Jade did not move. She looked down and asked in a low voice, "Doctor Mueller, are you in love with someone?"

"Sorry." Collin frowned. "I can't forget my ex-girlfriend."

"I get it." Jade did not know what to say. She could not give up on Collin, but Collin could not forget his ex-girlfriend. Jade thought about it and finally said, "You will like me one day. After all, you're not together anymore."

Collin stared blankly and murmured, "Yes, we're not together anymore."

"It doesn't matter. I can wait." Jade kissed Collin on the cheek.
"Goodnight."

After Jade got out of the car, Collin didn't move. He picked up his phone and hesitated for a long time before calling Roxy. But the phone number didn't exist.

He was not surprised.

Collin did not go home. Instead, he drove to where Roxy used to live. They were supposed to get married. Even if Roxy had left, the house was filled with her traces.

The sofa, the bathroom, the bedroom, and the kitchen.

As soon as he walked in here, Roxy's voice would ring in his ears, husky and sexy, with a little gasp.

Collin closed his eyes and leaned against the door.

"Roxanne ... You're going to drive me crazy."
