

Chapter 22 : Flowers and Disinfectant

Alpha Roman was informed that the elemental girl named Charlotte was going to arrive in a few hours and asked Easton to make necessary preparations for it.

"So should I prepare two rooms?" Easton asked.

Alpha Roman looked up from the financial papers and asked, "Why two?"

Easton had a sudden realisation. Did he forget to tell him that the girl is accompanied by an additional person?

"Easton?" Alpha Roman called his name.

"Huh?"

Alpha Roman raised his eyebrows and asked, "Why two rooms? Does she have special requirements that need two rooms?"

Although their mansion did not lack extra rooms, Alpha Roman did not plan on spoiling the girl. If she did not need the extra room then she won't get it. Being an elemental won't get her extra favours from him.

"Alpha, the girl has a companion with her. The extra room is for that person." Easton explained carefully.

"Did I allow another person to come? How old is the girl, she still needs a guardian with her?" Alpha Roman did not sound happy with the arrangement. His house was not a hotel where people could come and go.

"Sir, the elemental is twelve, she is a minor who is required to have an adult with her." Easton said with a straight face but internally he was crying bitter tears. The elemental was only twelve, didn't his Alpha know that?!

Ads-free >

Turned out, Alpha Roman forgot all the details about the girl. He had a moment of realisation and nodded, "Is she? Then it's okay. Prepare two rooms then. But if the two people want to share a room then let them."

Easton scurried out of the office and told the house keeper to clean up the two rooms on the first floor. The group of youngsters who were trained by Alpha Roman lived on the second floor so it was all full. The elemental girl, Charlotte and her companion would have to do with the first floor rooms.

Alpha Roman's focus was on the new finance report and other documents sent by the businesses in his pack and while he checked each and every detail, he forgot about the time. Minutes passed, hours went by in a flash and the next thing he knew, Easton was once again knocking on the door of his office.

"What is it?"

Easton opened the door and poked his head in and said, "Alpha, they are here."

With a sigh, Alpha Roman neatly placed the papers in their rightful place and stood up from his chair. He followed Eaton out of the office.

"The patrolling guards sent a word when they arrived at the border, I told them to let them inside. They will be here any moment now."

Holden, Kruger, Mason and Georgia were in the open living room finishing their homework for the day. When they saw Alpha Roman leave his office, their heads turned together.

Alpha Roman saw this and pointed at them without pausing, "Focus."

The four heads dropped again. One could see their furry heads bowed together as they silently discussed the answers together.

Alpha Roman completely did not notice this and went ahead with his Beta. They just exited the front door when a blue car was stopped by the iron gates. The walkie talkie in Easton's pocket buzzed.

"Let the car in." He spoke into the walkie talkie. Alpha Roman stood by a pillar and watched the car passed the gates and came in through the drive way.

As the car came closer and closer Alpha Roman's nose twitched. He sniffed loudly.

Easton saw this and started to educate the Alpha, "Did you catch a cold? I told you not to sit in the AC for such a long time, it's not good for you..."

"Shut up for a second?" Alpha Roman dragged his eyes around, trying to find the source of this unique smell and his blue eyes landed on the blue car.

The scent itself could not be compared to anything he had smelled before. Like... Almost floral, but with a hint of disinfectant.

It smelled weird but strangely enough, not repulsive. Alpha Roman lifted a foot and nudged Easton with it. Easton almost jumped up a foot into the air and then looked at his Alpha incredulously.

"What is this Alpha?" Easton asked lowkey horrified at his behaviour.

"Do you smell something?"

"Of course I smell something. The two new people have arrived, their scent is quiet... Interesting." Easton admitted.

"What do they smell like?" Alpha Roman asked. He expected his beta to be able to pick up their distinctive smell but also somewhat disappointed.

"There are two scents, one of them is floral while the other is more like wood fire ash? That's what I think it is. I also smell disinfectant, is someone injured?"

Alpha Roman didn't respond. He was more concerned about the person with the floral smell. He didn't even notice the wood fire ash scent that Easton mentioned, he was only drawn to the floral scent. The other scents paled in front of it.

Alpha Roman was impatient, he felt like the blue car was taking forever to reach the main doors. When the car stopped before them, he stood straight and waited to see the person come out. He found out too late that his breath was caught for a long time.

As he took a long breath to make up for the lost ones, the floral scent with a hint of disinfectant filled his lungs. Both doors opened at once.

From the side where Alpha Roman and Easton could see, small hand poke out, followed by a pair of legs. Charlotte got out of the car with a smile on her face. She immediately noticed the two men and was ready to greet them. However, she noticed their both men were not looking at her at all.

Charlotte turned around to see Anaya getting out of the car from the other door. She was slow and had crusty movements. She wasn't as graceful or as elegant as Charlotte while performing the same actions. But still, the two most powerful men in the pack were looking at her.

Comments

Vote

Watch videos get points (0/20) >