

Chapter 24 : The Water Elemental

Alpha Roman was back in his study. He wasn't a rude host but he needed to confirm something before he could entertain the guests. He sat on his chair, brought out the blue stone file and looked for Alpha Clark's phone number.

He didn't like cluttering his phone with many contacts so most of the work related contacts were always on files or managed by Easton, at most Alpha Roman had ten contacts on his personal phone.

"Let's see." Alpha Roman skimmed through the information on the file and found the number at the bottom. He picked up his study phone which was usually used for official work matters and dialled the number. It rang four times before the call was picked up.

"Hello Alpha Roman, has Charlotte arrived?" Alpha Clark answered the phone.

"Yes, both girls have arrived." Alpha Roman said, "But I have to ask which one is the elemental?"

Alpha Clark frowned and said, "What do you mean Alpha Roman? Charlotte is the fire elemental. The other girl was sent over to accompany Charlotte while she's there. There shouldn't be any confusing, or did the girl say something wrong?"

"She didn't say anything Alpha Clark." Alpha Roman said. He picked up a pen from it's holder and clicked it as he asked, "By the way, the girl who was sent with Charlotte, was she hurt before leaving Blue stone?"

"N-No Alpha Roman. Nothing like that."

Alpha Roman hummed and flipped the pen between his fingers and continued to question, "May I know her name?"

Alpha Clark was already sweating a bit. He didn't think twice and reported the name, "It's Anaya. She's Charlotte's distant relative and nothing special. She doesn't shift because she has a weak body and is basically of no use. She stayed with Charlotte's family and did some housework there to earn her living. Please don't pay attention to her and if she offends you in anyway, you can punish her. Her actions don't reflect the intentions of our pack."

This was Alpha Clark's way of dusting off Anaya and her future in the southern warrior pack. They let go of her completely. Even if she died there, they won't ask for her corpse.

Alpha Roman scribbled a few letters on the blue stone file. The words were large and visible.

Nice name.

Alpha Roman wrote the name without realising what it meant to do so. He ceremoniously hung up the phone after he got the information he needed.

His impression of the blue stone pack took another dip after the call with Alpha Clark. They were a bit too stupid. So stupid that even the alliance with southern warrior pack won't be able to save them.

They really didn't realise that the girl named Anaya was also an elemental?

In fact, the one Alpha Roman was sure about was Charlotte. The only way he got a hint of her element was due to her scent of fire wood Ash. But when he saw Anaya, he could feel the energy off of her.

Now there were four Elementals under the same roof. Alpha Roman smirked and underlined Anaya's name repeatedly. He subconsciously felt like they will get along just fine.

He left the study with the intention to look for Anaya. If her pack was aware, then there was no way she knew about her own identity of being an elemental. Also, Alpha Roman just needed a reason to see her.

Her scent was a bit addictive.

And he liked to see her.

Which was not normal.

But Alpha Roman didn't care. He did what he wanted to, who could stop him?

At first Alpha Roman tried to locate her with her scent but he couldn't pinpoint the location. The scent was very faint. He saw the kids in the living room so he went over to them and asked if they knew where Anaya was.

"Kids, have you seen Anaya?" Alpha Roman asked.

Georgia looked up and asked back, "We saw two girls with Uncle Easton, which one are you talking about?"

"The one who keeps her head down and walks very slowly."

"Oh, Uncle Easton took her upstairs. She was badly hurt and bleeding so Holden called the doctor for her. The doctor hasn't arrived yet." Georgia said and pointed upstairs.

Just as Georgia was done talking, Alpha Roman left the living room. He went upstairs on the first floor where the rooms were assigned.

He smelled a faint trace of blood in the air, disinfectant and a very tiny bit of floral smell that was unique to Anaya. There was also Easton's scent.

Alpha Roman didn't know which room was Anaya's so he knocked on the first door. The door was opened by Charlotte, who was delighted to see Alpha Roman.

When Alpha Roman had left abruptly before even welcoming her, Charlotte thought he was a bit too rude. How could he do that to Charlotte? Wasn't she special? An elemental that he specifically asked for?

But now he had come to correct his mistake so Charlotte didn't mind. Her mother had instructed her to loop him around her finger soon. Using her charm and after showing off her powers who could resist her? With that thought in mind, Charlotte became happy again.

"Alpha, I was wondering where you were!" Charlotte said in a happy mood, "I wanted to ask if you could show me around the pack? I am new here so -"

Alpha Roman's eyes fell on the girl who was at least two heads shorter than himself. The look in his eyes made Charlotte swallow her words.

"Wrong door."

Alpha Roman turned and knocked on the second door. The door opened and this time it was Easton who opened it. When Easton saw Alpha Roman standing there, he sighed in relief.

"Alpha, it's good that you came. Please come inside, there is something I have to show you!" Easton stepped aside to let Alpha Roman in.

Anaya was passed out on the bed. The first thing Alpha Roman noticed was the blood on her clothes and then water spilt on the floor next to the bed. Charlotte banged shut the door of her room, which was ignored by them.

Right now Alpha Roman could see Anaya's face because she was lying down and her hair wasn't in the way, but he couldn't appreciate the view when his eyes kept going back to the blood on her clothes.

"What happened to her?" Alpha Roman asked. Easton looked distressed but also a bit hyper so Alpha Roman didn't know what to think.

"I assume the girl had some wounds on her body and it started to bleed again because of too much movement. Her ankles have bandages too. The doctor hasn't arrived and it can't be said exactly how hurt she is." Easton said.

"But Alpha, I discovered something." Easton went to close the door and said with a low voice so that only Alpha Roman could hear.

"Discovered what?" Alpha Roman amused him.

From the fallen water, and the fact that he knows Anaya is an elemental, Alpha Roman could already guess what it was that Easton discovered. But for the sake of his Beta's happiness, he pretended to be clueless about it.

He picked up the bottle on the nightstand and showed it to Alpha Roman. Alpha Roman took the bottle and examined it. Other than not having a cap, there was nothing wrong with it.

When Easton didn't speak for a while, Alpha Roman sighed and asked, "What is this?"

"This is the bottle of water that I had someone bring for the girl..."

"Her name is Anaya."

"...For Anaya. Anaya was in a lot of pain, because I think her wound opened up. She asked for water and I went to get it from the nightstand but before I could take it, the bottle moved on it's own."

Easton's eyes were shining like stars as he spoke, "The pressure in the bottle increased the more Anaya tried to reach out for the bottle and eventually the cap flew off and the bottle fell. However, before I could react, Anaya had fainted. I was a bit too shocked so I couldn't even give her some water to drink."

"That's unfortunate."

"Yes. I have told Holden to call the doctor, they must be on the way. She will be fine." Easton said and sighed. Then he remembered exactly why he was excited.

"But Alpha, don't you get it? What is water? It's an element! And who can control what like that?" Easton smiled, "A water Elemental!"

Alpha Roman looked at the spilt water and then at Anaya. So that was why he could sense her being an elemental. But why did he feel so attached? Alpha Roman took a deep breath, wanting to smell her scent again but all he got was the disinfectant and Easton's scent.

"Why is it taking so long?" Alpha Roman asked, "The doctor should be here by now."

Just then there was a knock on the door. Easton opened the door to see the doctor standing outside. He let the doctor in. The doctor was a female who could thoroughly check on Anaya.

The doctor bowed to Alpha Roman and quickly went to see Anaya's condition, asking Alpha Roman and Beta Easton to step out on the passing.

"Alpha, why aren't you surprised?" Easton asked when they stood outside. Alpha Roman tapped the empty water bottle as he leaned on the railing in front of the door.

"I was surprised when I found out she is an elemental." Alpha Roman said and then added, "Oh, I was also a bit surprised when you found out she's a water Elemental."

Easton's felt like his intelligence was being questioned. Was he too slow? Or was his Alpha too smart? Either way Easton felt stupid.

In any case, at least he figured it out himself before Alpha Roman had the chance to tell him about it. Think of it this way, Easton mentally patted himself on the back.

"But how come she is an elemental too? How many Elementals do they have that they can give them away like this?" Easton asked. According to the conditions of the alliance the blue stone pack was supposed to send their elemental to Southern warrior pack but they accidentally send two? That pack was an elemental breeder or what?

"There are only five elementals Easton, can't be more." Alpha Roman said and continued, "The pack must have been unaware that Anaya is an Elemental. Besides, they don't have any regards for her. Just now I spoke to Alpha Clark on the phone and it felt like he didn't care what happens to her."

"Really?"

Easton was surprised that an Alpha thought like that about someone from their pack. Easton didn't have a deep relationship with any other Alpha so he could only make a comparison with Alpha Roman. Alpha Roman handled such a big pack but he always cared for them. If anyone needed help, they didn't hesitate to come and ask their Alpha. They trusted him to protect the pack and help them grow and Alpha Roman put his trust in them.

This mutual trust is what made their pack grow into what it was today. However, today Easton found that not all packs were like this. Some Alpha's were like Alpha Clark and some pack members were like Anaya. One was tyrannical and the other was pitiful.

The door to Anaya's room opened and the doctor came out. There was a solemn look in her eyes when she met Alpha Roman's gaze. With a sigh, she told Alpha Roman what the Anaya was going through.

"The girl has numerous whip marks all over her body, old ones and fresh ones, muscle injuries, a three broken ribs, skin trauma." The doctor listen the outer injures one by one. The expression on Alpha Roman's and Easton's face kept changing from shock to anger to sympathy and back to shock.

"Not only that but she is also suffering from malnutrition. Under the clothes she is just skin and bones. The bandages on her body were clumsily done so I assume she did it herself. I have changed the dressing so it should be fine now but I suggest that she come to the hospital for a better recovery."

Alpha Roman nodded, "I will take her to the hospital as soon as she wakes up. Please arrange the admission procedures for her."

The doctor readily agreed to it. As a doctor she wanted the best for her patients. She took a notepad out and handed it to Alpha Roman.

"I will need some details about her. Please write them down here so I can do the procedures. If I have to guess, the girl has to stay in medical care for at least a week."
