Chapter 737: Vanished

Strongest Mage with the Lust system

disdainful look in her eyes. "Someone like him who despairs when put in a seemingly hopeless situation isn't worth a shit even if he has that destructive energy and a good bloodline." Yshoy narrowed his blood-red eyes, anger ashing within them. Then his expression became neutral, and he scoffed, "You

"Is this the kid you said was going to become a threat?" The strongest Ashen Fiend Emperor asked, glancing at Yshoy with a would say that, wouldn't you? After all, none from your tribe would feel afraid when in such a situation, right? You also didn't despair and kill your son when he offended the Infernal Princess."

The Ashen Emperor's face fell when she heard this, and dark cinders started oating around her, the air becoming thick with tension. Her three companions also glared at Yshoy, ready to ght if their matriarch attacked.

Right then, however, Vigil spoke up and diffused the situation. "There is no need to get angry, matriarch Luen. What Sir Yshoy meant to say was that that kid, even though it seems he has gone mad, must be up to something." ght. 'Tsk! It would have been good if they Tristen and others shook their heads in disappointment seeing the demons didn't killed each other.' Tristen thought. He didn't like the current situation where they couldn't do anything to the demon side. He could only console himself by telling himself that when the reinforcements came from the central plains, they would once again gain the upper hand.

[Do it, Overlord.] Leo gave the go-ahead. His bloodline was already useless, so there was basically no loss if something bad happened to it. However, if it recovered, the gains would be amazing, and he would be able to save himself from the current becoming less and less.

they also want to make a deal with me like Amara's father?'

situation without much of a problem. Max nodded and started injecting his bloodline energy into his body and started directing it toward his bloodline. He was sure if he used Nascent Energy, the process would be faster and easier, but unlike his bloodline energy, which he could recover a few times using mana stones or crystals without any worry, as only after a few times would he start losing himself to his lust, the Nascent Energy wasn't easily gained. ADVERTISEMENT

He still had to ght for around thirty hours. So, he had to be frugal about every bit of Nascent energy he used.

Suddenly he remembered something: 'I need to head back to Ninam City too and heal Granny.'

strengthening it, which made him sigh in relief. Although his bloodline energy was the catalyst for Emily's bloodline awakening, meaning it could also affect the bloodlines like the Nascent Energy, though not as much, he wasn't sure if it could help Leo. So, seeing it was effective and he wouldn't need to waste his Nascent Energy, he sighed in relief. He then looked behind and saw the demon kings were still hot on his trail, and the distance between them was slowly

After a few moments, he realized his bloodline energy had started affecting Leo's bloodline, slowly purifying and

Unlike before, he couldn't easily promise to help them because following through with those promises wasn't dif cult.

nished, he felt

ve or so

ghting in the distance, reballs. The rst reball he created was strong ashed with a ruthless glint, rst two but was weaker than them in power, only able to lightly injure peak

'If not for the Frostclaw demons, I wouldn't have been able to escape.' He thought, feeling grateful but a little surprised. 'Do

He had checked in the war temple and found that although the healing medicine that could help an emperor mage was very cult, he could still afford them if he tried his best. expensive, and although dif

However... Why would he waste his war merits, which he could use for better things, on the healing medicine, when he had the Nascent Energy? A few minutes later, the demon kings had closed more distance between them, and he was barely outside their divine sense. He was aware once he came within the range of their divine sense, escape would be impossible. Fortunately, the continuous injection of his bloodline energy had almost healed the imperfection within Leo's bloodline while purifying and strengthening it.

ADVERTISEMENT

Leo was perfectly still for the past few minutes. If Max wasn't holding onto him, he would have thought he wasn't even breathing. However, the moment Max injected the Nascent Energy and the process of healing his bloodline nish the process faster, he injected a bit of the Nascent Energy.

it, and his eyes lit up with delight.

Therefore, to lled with uncontrollable excitement and gratitude to Max.

Matriarch Luen gave Lady Verana and other human emperors an annoyed look; the same was true for Tristen and the newly joined emperors.

Up in the sky, within the isolation barrier, the emperors noticed the change in Leo's expression and got confused.

If not for each other, they would have used their divine senses and would have seen what Max did in these past

Then without Max saying anything, he closed his eyes and felt if it was any different. When he opened them, his eyes were minutes, which made Leo look at him with such a gaze. The curiosity was eating them, but they could do nothing but glare at each other because if they tried to use their divine sense to scan them, the other side would stop which would result in a battle the consequences of which would be disastrous for both sides.

[Thank you, Overlord. If we survive this battle, I vow to follow you for the rest of my life.] Leo said, and as if fearing Max would refuse him, he broke away from him and vanished from his bloodline sense within a few seconds. ADVERTISEMENT short few moments, helping him increase the distance between him and the demon kings.

He then located a large group of humans and demons, mostly in the Three and Four Star realms, and rushed toward them.

toward the crowd, which he had been doing his best to avoid until now.

Max shook his head and chuckled. 'What an interesting guy!'

Swoosh!

they noticed this.

them toward the crowd.

Boom!

Boom!

The second

The third

They wanted to capture Leo, but before they could take action, he had vanished from their sight and divine sense. They, however, didn't mind it much because in their opinion, Leo wasn't worth anything, so his life and death didn't matter much apart from the fact he was Max's friend. So, they forgot him and focused on chasing Max. Now, however, Max was rushing

In the distance, the demon kings—one from the Ashen Fiend tribe and one from the Abyssal Howler tribe—frowned when

He then injected a bit of Nascent Energy into the Phoenix Wings, which boosted his speed by almost seventy percent for a

However, apart from the initial surprise, they didn't give it much thought because everyone in the crowd was weak and wouldn't be a hindrance. A few moments later, however, they narrowed their eyes when Max suddenly conjured three one-meter reballs and hurled

Boom! ADVERTISEMENT

Max had used differing amounts of Death Energy when creating the enough to severely injure mid-stage Five Star beings, and he threw it close enough for the crowd to feel its destructive power but far enough not to injure them.

Four Star beings, and he threw it toward the center of the crowd, but at a slow speed.

ying toward them, everyone started escaping in all directions while cursing Max.

reball was slightly bigger than the the crowd. When it exploded, a few humans and demons died while a few more got injured. He sighed. He didn't want to kill any humans if he could, but to save his skin, he had to do it.

Max was pleased to see this, and right before it exploded, he mixed into the eeing crowd, put on his mask, and changed his clothes.

The rst explosion had startled the crowd, and the second one caused them to panic, and seeing the third, a bigger one reball was powerful enough to seriously injure early-stage Five Star beings, and he threw it at the periphery of Swoosh! Swoosh! A few seconds later, the demon kings arrived where the third reball had exploded and watched the eeing crowd in panic with ugly expressions on their faces.

ADVERTISEMENT

No matter how hard they tried, they couldn't sense Max's presence. He had vanished without a trace.

him, however, he didn't show his impotent rage and stayed silent. A moment later, his eyes and he ew toward the nearest

"That sly bastard!" The Howler demon king ground his jaws in rage, his aura whipping around, creating loud booms in the The Ashen demon king's expression was... ashen. He couldn't believe a Four Star mage had escaped from him, a mid-stage demon king. It was unacceptable and shameful even if the said mage was someone extraordinary. Unlike the demon beside eeing group that had both humans and demons and attacked them indiscriminately.

Boom!