

313 Northern Continent's Status

Everything about the legacy started when someone leaked the information to the whole councils of each world leader. The continents waged wars on each other without making any allies, with the winner becoming the Ambassador of Mortal Heaven and ruling over the entire Heaven, including the small islands, which were more powerful than the large continents. 1

Because of that drive: acquiring everything and ruling the Mortal Heaven, standing above others, the harmony in the Mortal Heaven was destroyed. And as the war began, lives were used as sacrifices for greater results, but where is it now? When the Great World War occurred, it was helpful since bandit groups and other dark sects joined the authority that was formed in each continent, but for what purpose? The martial arts and techniques of each continent degenerated along with the ancestors and predecessors of the new world leaders. The cause was lost.

The Emperor couldn't help but be saddened as he remembered the events that he had witnessed when he was a child. He hadn't experienced the Great World War, but he had held onto the hope of his ancestors, wanting their bloodline to be the rulers of the Mortal Heaven. He sighed as he looked at his son, who was half-kneeling before him in the...

< 313 Northern Continent's Status

As the wars because of the legacy began, the Northern Continent's military strength was able to overpower the other continent's forces. It could be said that they were winning; they almost took over some of the continent's

< 313 Northern Continent's Status

the past and until now, but one thing occurred that made us stop the further invasion, and it is now bugging me, your Majesty."

"I can understand your worries since I am just hesitant to say such unreasonable things that happened in the past. When I discovered it on my own, I was..."

< 313 Northern Continent's Status

However, they were fools for not realizing that it was already too late. By the time they spied on the Northern Continent, they were already planning to attack them. They knew that they should have watched over the Northern Continent since they had the power to continue the legacy that had been paused for a thousand years. They just learned everything they should have known when it was already too late since help but question why they were weak against other continents, ignoring the strength of the Northern Continent as if they knew they couldn't defeat them head-on.

< 313 Northern Continent's Status

"The Eastern Continent doesn't deserve surviving... they don't deserve to win against the Northern Continent... they don't deserve to survive..."

"Hey, that old man, has he still not snapped out of reality? He is still sulking." A Northern Continent soldier...

< 313 Northern Continent's Status

just like him. No one will be above him... everyone must face the same fate as him. Hahaha!"

The soldiers couldn't help but laugh at the status of the former superior spy. In the middle of this black wasteland, where they could only dig for some scraps and the Western Continent people were used as laborers, the former superior spy faced despair as he recalled the plan of the continent to have some advantage against the Northern Continent.

They were sure that the Northern Continent would divide their force to invade the Eastern

< 313 Northern Continent's Status

Instead. For that reason, some Western Continent people loathed the Eastern Continent for the luck they had, destroying the plans they had prepared for years.

Everything about spying on their enemies was just to win the legacy and survive the atrocities Northern Continent could bring to them. But, it turned out that everything was in vain, for the Eastern Continent was able to recover their previous power.

Comment ⁰

Leave the first comment for this chapter.

