

Secretly The Billionaire Boss

#Chapter 591 - Read Secretly The Billionaire Boss Chapter 591

Chapter 591: Outcome “Grey!” Avery yelled again, in despair and pain.

The phone dropped from her hand but she barely noticed.

She couldn't believe what she had seen.

She was actually thinking of surprising Grey by coming to the airport.

But since Grey didn't want to see her, she was going to leave. Just seeing him from afar was enough for her.

Avery raced closer. Her heart was pounding madly in her chest.

“Grey!” She yelled again and felt the tears slide down her cheeks.

Then she saw some images flash across her eyes. She saw herself standing beside a car with Grey.

A serious headache hit in and he held onto her head a bit to stop the pain.

But it worsened.

Avery couldn't move as several images flashed across her eyes. The pain in her head got worse.

She yelled, much in sadness than in pain. Grey was slipping off her hands and instead of helping, she could not.

But it felt like she was starting to remember everything. She was starting to remember everything about Grey.

“You ruined my life!” Avery saw herself yelling.

And then, she was going down.

She opened her eyes and saw as the crowds rushed towards Grey and Charles.

A sharp pain coursed through her again. She closed her eyes and held tightly onto her head.

When she opened her eyes again, she could no longer see Grey but a lot of concerned passersby.

And she fell into the darkness.

Giovanni couldn't stop pacing. He was impatiently waiting for the result of the world he had given to his men.

The work should have been easier because Grey wasn't entering a private jet and he was seriously not coming with his men.

Besides, Grey must have thought that he was going to pull back, especially with Alex's case going on and well, his recent company that just went down.

Grey wouldn't have expected the attack. But then, he had a knack for preparing well even for the unexpected.

Grey had really amazed him over the years.

But this was the last chance he had.

He took the remote and switched the TV on. It should be on the news if it truly happened.

He flipped through the channel and eventually gave up. There was nothing on the news. Does that mean they failed?

The door opened suddenly and Giovanni turned around to look at the intruder.

A man walked inside and bowed slightly.

“Any news?” The man looked up and smiled. “He was shot by the new men. It was a success!” Giovanni's eyes widened. “Really?” The man nodded once. “It should be on the news anytime from now.” Giovanni turned away and grabbed the remote again. He started flipping through the channel again. He stopped suddenly when a new headline resurfaced.

Grey was being wheeled to the ambulance, with an oxygen mask on his face.

Blood was all over Charles' clothes.

Giovanni nodded once. "Find out! Find out if he survived." The man bowed slightly and rushed out.

Giovanni was happy with the outcome.

At least, it was certain this time that he was shot. It was just great knowing that.

Secretly The Billionaire Boss

Chapter 592: The end! Avery woke up with a scream. Her head was still banging but she wasn't in the airport anymore.

She held onto her temple for a moment.

The door opened suddenly and Emily walked inside.

"Avery!" She called, with worries written all over her face. "What happened? Are you alright?" Her eyes were shut tightly.

"Headache," she whispered.

Emily rushed out of the room suddenly. She rushed inside almost immediately but was accompanied by some doctors.

Avery felt a stab of the syringe and suddenly, the pain started to ebb away.

“Avery! Are you alright?” Avery opened her eyes and looked at her mother. “Mom, where is Grey?” Emily hesitated briefly. “What about the headache?” She asked instead.

Avery looked at the doctor, ignoring her mother's question. “Grey was brought in here, right? The VP of Protos Publicita. Where is he? How is he?” One of the doctors regarded her for a moment, then looked at Emily. “Are they ” “He's my husband!” Avery said quickly. “If he's here, I demand to know how he's doing.” “But you guys are di_” Emily started suddenly but was forced to a sudden stop by the glare that Avery sent her.

“Mom! Stay away from this. If you won't let the doctors tell me the truth, then move back!” She snapped.

Emily sighed and looked at the doctors.

“you can leave. I will do the rest,” she assured.

The doctors walked out.

«Mom! Don't! Don't_» Avery started aggressively.

Emily reached for her hands. “Calm down, Avery. Grey is fine. Thank God he was attended to in time. He survived,” she explained with a smile.

Avery's eyes widened. “Really?” Emily nodded once. “Yes, he survived He has been through so much anyway.

He's the type that survives any adversary.” Avery nodded, agreeing with her. She smiled. “You are right mum.” She remembered everything now. She knows now that Grey was the man behind the mask. He was the popular Hercules.

He wasn't only caring, but strong and intelligent. That was who her man was.

And well, he was going to be her man again.

Emily massaged her hands slightly and tried to conceal the sadness in her smile. If she told her that Grey was dead, Avery might not have survived

She couldn't allow that. Avery was their only daughter.

Giovanni smiled as he entered the car.

Grey was dead and gone.

Finally, the war was over! “The hearing is in twenty minutes boss,” one of the men announced.

It doesn't matter anyway. He could just try and escape death. Every other thing will fall into place now that Grey is dead.

They stepped inside the court and took their seats. The court proceedings started immediately.

Giovanni sat comfortably, with a smile on his face. He was so sure of himself because he had settled a lot of people.

“My lord, we have a witness! Someone that saw Giovanni kill Hercules,” the accusing lawyer explained.

Giovanni looked back and saw Alfred, Gregory, and Charles walk inside.

He wondered who the witness was.

None of the men were there that day, except for Charles' father who had long died.

What witness do they have again? "Charles' father who used to be Hercules's friend and his biological son!" The lawyer announced and gestured at the door.

Every gaze turned back at the two figures that had stepped inside.

Giovanni's eyes widened with shock.

Grey looked at Giovanni as he walked forward. Their gaze held and locked for a moment. Giovanni's mouth was open in agape. He couldn't quite comprehend how Grey would have survived.

Grey smiled at him, turned away, and stopped just beside the lawyer.

“My name is Grey Fox. I'm the only son of my father. I am the new Hercules.” Giovanni was bothered. Why has Grey suddenly decided to reveal his identity to the world as the Hercules? Giovanni settled inside his cell and looked down at the drugs in his head.

He released a sigh and swallowed the drugs. There was nothing left for him.

Alex was still in prison and Giovanni was sentenced to a hundred years in prison for killing Hercules and attempting to murder the young Hercules.

Grey had a way of getting to him that amazed him.

And he could boldly say Grey was really a tough nut to crack. Giovanni felt disgraced and cornered.

It was over. Death was the only way out.

Suddenly, pain stabbed him. He could feel his stomach turning.

Grey won this war!