

Seller 151

Chapter 151 Demonstration Of Rocket Launcher

"Another new weapon?" The second prince turned curious and observed the weapon. If the previous weapons looked like wolves, this one looked like a mammoth. It's very bulky and looked heavy too.

But, in reality, it was only 14 kilograms, courtesy of titanium and aluminum alloy.

Mark ignored his presence and walked a few steps to the left and aimed at one of the rocks about 50 meters away.

His fingers caressed the three triggers before making a decision and clicking on the middle one.

Bang

A 7.9mm bullet escaped the upper barrel and pierced the rock like a flash of lightning while its case fell on the ground. Meanwhile, Mark's hands shook a bit due to the recoil.

"It's faster than that tungsten pellet." The second made a quick judgment, comparing it to the shotgun he witness during the previous demonstration.

"Fu..." Mark took a deep breath and clicked on the right trigger.

Bang

This time, a shotgun pellet was fired by the gun and made a fist-sized hole out of the sturdy rock.

"Okay, one last thing..." Mark grabbed it tightly and clicked on the left trigger.

Bang Bang*

A 40mm grenade was fired by both of the grenade launchers at the same time. Mark was pushed back a few feet but managed to stand straight.

Both of them hit the rock and detonated upon contact, right away.

Boom Boom*

Two big explosions were witnessed by the second prince, blowing up the rock and its ten meters surroundings.

Some of the rock fragments flew towards both of them but did no damage as Alina shielded Mark while the second prince had a tough body.

"Okay, I'm done... Hmm?" Mark quickly realized that he didn't receive any notification from the system. He confronted the system.

Only then did he understand that he didn't test the weapon properly like he used to do in his previous life.

The test includes maximum effective range check, absolute range check, full capacity ammo check, and mobility check.

Since it will time for that, he placed it back into the inventory and took out the rocket launcher before looking at the client.

"This is the one you want me to demonstrate, right?" He asked the prince.

"This and the other weapons if you have anything new," The Second Prince gave him a little bit of surprise with his reply.

A bright smile appeared on Mark as he nodded, "Alright."

Then Mark put down the rocket launcher and opened the inventory. He took out a falling block rifle, M99 sniper rifle, and lastly, the grenade launcher.

"Your Highness, you have already know about these two. Let me introduce the remaining two." Mark picked up the falling block rifle.

He knew that it won't interest the prince but since the latter asked, Mark gave the details about it. As expected, the prince wasn't impressed by a single-shot rifle, which can only harm 2-circle enemies.

The prince felt that those handguns are better for they are light and easy to carry unlike these.

Mark then showed him the grenade launcher, which has a cylindrical chamber for eight rounds. "This is an exclusive weapon. As per the rules of the store, at present, you haven't made enough transactions to buy these. But, in case you made a large order in the future, let me give you a briefing.

I don't have any extra grenades. So, I couldn't show you an exact demonstration but you have seen it earlier. Since we use the same ammo, this one's power is identical, capable of eradicating everyone under 5-circle.

Its range is about 200 meters but if you don't worry about accuracy, you can shoot as far as 500 meters.

As Shang Wen nodded seriously indicating that he understood, Mark picked up the rocket launcher, which he was confident in selling to the prince.

"As I have said before, this one is a rocket launcher with code-named, Pzf 3-It600." Mark carried it on his left arm before taking out a heat warhead from the inventory and loading it from the front.

He then placed it on the shoulder and looked into the scope. His finger is on the trigger as he said, "Your Highness, as I informed you yesterday, it has an effective range of 400 meters and an absolute range of 600 meters. Do you wish to see its range or its prowess? Earlier you saw how that 3-meter rock was exploded. The effect will almost be similar, a bit less to be honest, but covers a wider range."

"Can I trust your words?" The second prince threw a question in response.

"Demonstration is needed because of the lack of trust, Your Highness," Mark said in a calm tone. He further said, "We aren't close enough to trust each other. All we can do is mutually benefit from each other. You receive the weapons and I receive the money."

"You misunderstand my words, I don't mean that." The second prince shook his head.

As Mark looked at him in confusion, the second prince let out a sigh, "forget it. I'll put everything into defense. I'll give a signal when I'm ready."

"Hmm? What do you mean by that?" Mark didn't understand his words at first but then, as the second prince sprouted his fire wings and flew away towards the direction where the gun is pointing, he finally realized the meaning.

The prince landed about three hundred meters away from Mark and then, took out the flaming sword as well as conjured a three-layered ether wall before him before a fireball shot from his hand. It flew into the sky and exploded.

"You don't need to be so careful though," Mark mumbled and put his eye near the scope. With a 10x zoom feature, he felt as if the prince was standing 30 meters away.

He clicked on the trigger. The 100mm H.E.A.T. warhead shot from the rocket launcher and due to his positioning, he felt little recoil.

With a speed of less than 160 m/s, the warhead only took a couple of seconds to reach the barrier and struck it, causing an explosion.

However, not even a scratch appeared on the barrier. It was as if someone threw a chicken egg on a sturdy steel wall.

"Okay," The second prince nodded and dismissed everything before he flew back for about another hundred meters and gave a signal once again.

bang

Mark shot another warhead at the unarmed prince without hesitation. As the warhead is quite slow, the second prince caught it, at least attempted but the Heat warhead was programmed to be detonated, on the first contact.

It wasn't focused on the armor pierce, followed by detonation.

The explosion occurred at close range. The fragments pierced his skin here and there but only caused minor injuries.

Mark then saw the prince close his eyes and pushed out all the fragments and healed himself pretty quick. This was one of the powers of Exalt realm (7-circle). They can just use ether energy to heal themselves.

"Good, in the hands of my subordinates, this weapon will... Hmm..." As he was admiring the potential of these rocket launchers that can shoot a target from hundreds of meters away, he saw Mark change the weapon to M99, place it on the stand, and go into a lying position.

Looking at the prince through the scope, Mark mumbled, "Suddenly, I feel the urge to shoot at his eyes."