Chapter 391 Repairing Allen Through An Upgrade

"I need to leave right now due to a situation. Inform Prince Feng that he can send one of the subordinates to our store's branch located at Lunaris city to collect the items on the date we decided."

Mark informed a guard to pass the message to their leader before he gathered Lan Ju and Jinlong (the gold dragon) and teleported away from the village.

Grabbing two of them, Lan Ju took a few continuous teleportations to reach the Imperial City's valley street.

Staring at the large mansion from a distance, he said, "Knock out everyone who tries to stop me."

The zheng and the gold dragon nodded in unison and followed him from behind as he walked forward.

The two gatekeepers of Lin Wuying's mansion obviously stopped him at the entrance

"Halt right there. Who are you?" One of the guards who didn't recognize Mark spoke out loud while pointing the spear at him.

Mark glanced to the side. Lan Ju disappeared and reappeared behind the guard, giving a chop at his neck at controlled strength and knocking him out.

Jinlong, the gold dragon wanted to do the same but Lan Ju didn't give him the opportunity and knocked out the second one too.

Mark continued to walk forward and stepped inside the compound.

As a few other guards who were roaming around discovered them, Lan Ju flexed his fingers and commented, "I guess it is better to just knock everyone out to save time."

Mark didn't say anything and stayed silent but the gold dragon had different thoughts. Using his intellect, he made his move without bothering to ask Mark's permission.

Transforming into a 20ft gold dragon, he released his aura but made sure to control the range so that only the Spirit Warriors inside the mansion get affected by the presence of a supreme realm beast.

Lan Ju and Mark halted their footsteps in surprise and turned their heads. The gold dragon took a glance at them from the corner of his eyes and said, "I believe no one is foolish enough to fight once they realize that they don't stand a chance against their enemies."

Mark answered calmly, "except that these guys aren't our enemies. They could be considered allies."

"Ah!" The gold dragon realized that he fucked up by misunderstanding the situation. He bowed his head and apologized for his reckless move.

But, it appeared that Mark wasn't against his move. He ordered the gold dragon to continue to stay in that form and put pressure on the Lin Clan.

As a result, Lin Wuying and the Black Knight were forced to come out of the house in a hurry. The moment he saw Mark, his legs already started to shiver. Even Song Yun was in the same condition, although he appeared to be uncomfortable with the presence of the gold dragon.

But, in the end, Lin Wuying is still a minister who dealt with the emperor and the imperial guests for a long time.

He managed to stay calm even in the presence of a powerful dragon and gracefully welcomed Mark and the other two. "Welcome to our residence, Owner Lu. How was your trip?"

Mark replied in a straight tone, "We'll have a nice talk in the future but for now, I'm busy with other matters. I'm here to take Allen, my younger brother back with me."

"Ah, that's..." Sweat beads started forming on Lin Wuying's forehead as he became nervous once again. He wiped off the sweat with his handkerchief and said, "There's something I need to tell."

Mark raised his hand, "I know the condition of Allen, Lord Lin. So, don't bother for now. If you want to answer, just tell me how he ended up in this place."

Lin Wuying thought that Song Yue probably had updated the news and seeing that Mark wasn't too angry, he felt a bit relieved and told him the truth that he knows, "My daughter brought him from the Bloodhill forest. They were attacked by a..."

Mark raised his hand once again and interrupted him, "I will hear the story directly from the witness. So, can you now hand over Allen? Or should I take him in my own ways?"

Mark didn't tell him what was his own way but Lin Wuying understood it perfectly. The minister glanced at the gold dragon and gulped his saliva before he nodded like a hen, "Yes, of course, we'll happily cooperate with you."

After a while;

"The Necromancer King, huh?" Mark mumbled coldly as he tightened his grip on the hexagonal-prism-shaped object in his hand. "He is coming after the Emperor's head? Good... It will save me a lot of trouble to search for him."

After collecting the glowing ring, Alina's core, and Allen's unconscious body, Mark bade farewell to Lin Xue and returned to the store with his fiancée.

As for Lin Xue, she felt a lot relieved after seeing Mark, knowing that Allen would return to life.

Adding on top of that, nothing happened as Song Yue earlier warned her. After listening to the entire story, Mark even thanked her for the help instead of unnecessarily blaming her for this incident.

It made her feel a little bit regretful for speaking such harsh words to her best friend, regarding Mark. She didn't change her view about Mark but still, she felt like she hurt Song Yue with her words. She decided to apologize to her the following day.

And lastly, Lin Wuying was just happy with the fact that Mark didn't show his aggression against his family. It is enough for him.

Upon returning to the store, Mark heard that the third prince returned to the palace because of the long wait. And Xie Mei took this opportunity to take a room for herself and was currently taking a nap.

Mark didn't wake her up and just went to his room with Allen's body. He didn't forget to tell Song Yue and others to take a rest in the meantime.

Laying the android on the floor, Mark closed the door and sat down before the body. He talked to the system. "System, to repair Allen, how much do you need?"

The system was always quick to reply.

*Ding! 100,000 credits

As Mark was about to agree to pay the amount without even trying to negotiate, the system decided to not take advantage of the situation and sent him the second notification, something that helps its host.

*Ding! The host can choose to upgrade Allen Spencer with the upgrade crystal and repair him without paying credits.

"Oh, I can do that?" Mark was surprised a bit and then opened his inventory right away.

Since he planned on giving it to this android in the first place, Mark didn't hesitate to click on the image of a crystal. This one was rainbow in color as opposed to yellow.

Upgrade Crystal (Superior)

Grade: N/A

Description: A crystal made from the core of Divine Dragon, Velkazar.

"Velkazar?" Mark remembered the statue of Velkazar which gives him free gifts every couple of weeks. "Let's think about it later, Mark. Focus on the present." He shook away those thoughts and grabbed the glowing rainbow crystal that appeared in his hands.

Soon, he touched Allen's forehead with this crystal.

As the crystal disappeared into his forehead, the system sent him the notification.

*Ding! The Android goes into standby. Estimated time: 71 hours, 56 minutes, 32 seconds.

"Okay, so, three days, huh? Not a big deal. I can wait. Now, it is Alina's turn."

Mark then looked at the hexagonal prism core that was placed in one of the inventory slots and contacted the system once again, "System, what is the price I have to pay to bring back Alina?"

*Ding!

Chapter 392 The Lamp Of Wishes & Upgrading The Exo Suit

Mark's expression changed as he saw the system's offer.

*Ding! Attack Helicopter-EC 665 is the price.

Just a moment ago, he thought that the system changed after the update. It was becoming nicer and stopped becoming an opportunist.

But, the new reply from the system made him wonder whether he was wrong.

As a result, he didn't rush as he did with Allen's repair. Instead, he tried to negotiate. "Attack Helicopter is something that I need for my family to fly around and will be useful for my research. I'll pay you in credits instead."

Adding to the cursed ring, he possessed four divine-grade weapons, one of which was given to Allen. The remaining three could be traded for credits. Hence, he wouldn't be lacking credits even if he spent a hefty sum for Alina's resurrection.

Too bad for him the system also had the knowledge of it. Hence, it didn't ask for the credits as in its view of the law of exchange, a precious thing can only be exchanged for another precious thing.

Now that credits are no longer precious for Mark, the system decided to use something else that is worth a lot.

However, Mark wasn't ready to give up the helicopter despite knowing the fact that it would bring Alina back.

So, what should the system do?

Ask for the divine-grade weapons? Give him a difficult mission?

The system made a quick analysis and gave him the best offer it can.

*Ding! The price to complete the host's request has been changed.

*Ding! Your side quest has been changed.

Side Quest-III: Spend a total of 100,000,000 credits in the system store.

Reward: Staff of Blessing, the lamp of wishes.

The lamp of wishes

Grade: N/A

Description: The lamp of wishes can be used to make a request to the system that bypasses the law of exchange. Whatever the host asks, the system is obliged to fulfill it.

Note 1: God-grade items and the ones that don't exist within the system's database cannot be granted.

Note 2: can only be used once every 180 days.

"So, this is like a genie's lamp?" Mark had this thought come to his mind as soon as he read the description. His eyes then shifted to the quest itself and mumbled, "The original 50 million credits have been raised to 100 million credits in the side quest and another reward was added. To get 500 million gold coins, I might have to rob all the empires.

Let's see what I have got first.

Prior to my departure, I had over 21 million gold coins including the 10 million given by the Imperial Palace as a part of our deal.

I had 26.2 million credits. Now, adding the new rewards, now, I had a total of 33.6 million credits. If I convert all the gold to credits, I'll have another 4 million.

To reach 100 million, I would still need over 62 million credits. Trading Jade pipa and this cursed ring of Chiyou will net me another 50 million. That leaves 12 million credits to be earned. Hmm... I wonder how much I can earn if I sell all the semi-divine items I got from the Wuji sect...

But, is this really the right thing to do?"

Perhaps, it is because Mark was relaxed knowing that Alina's resurrection is possible as long as he earned enough money. He was having second thoughts about trading every treasure he had to complete the side quest.

Instead, he could take it slow and focus more on becoming stronger. Adding on top of that, it was Alina's fault in the place that she ended up like this.

If she had only listened to Allen's opinion and waited for a few days until the system gets online to contact him, none of this would have happened.

If one should receive a reward for doing the right thing, then, they should also be punished for becoming reckless.

Mark doesn't know what his exact feelings were. Was he angry with Alina or was he angry with himself? Or whether he suddenly thinks her life isn't as important as wasting away 100 million credits in hurry...

Whatever the case, for now, he just convinced himself to not hurry the resurrection of Alina and put his priority on exploring the functions of the system instead.

But, before that, he would have to check out the new items in inventory that he missed due to coming in a hurry

"Open Inventory"

He first clicked on the rainbow-colored stone. A new window opened up with its image and the details.

Upgrade stone (Superior)

Grade: N/A

Description: Can be used on items and upgrade their grade as long as the item is Celestial or below grade.

"So, this cannot be used to upgrade to the god grade huh? Well, it doesn't matter anyways. I have already decided on the item which I will use this on."

He took out the stone and then the fist-sized box with a big red button on top of it. Mark touched the stone to the compressed exo suit.

Just like with the android, the box glowed as soon as it was touched by the upgrade stone. The latter disappeared into the box in the meantime.

As the glowed died down, Mark received the confirmation.

"Damn, the improvements are too big. I guess I did the right thing to upgrade it after all. Anyways, there are others to check out for. Let's put this away."

Placing the exo suit back in his inventory, Mark proceeded to click on the rest of the rewards. He clicked on the unique skill ticket with a question mark.

The ticket disappeared from the inventory, giving him a skill.

*Ding! Metal Armor skill (unique) had been added to the skills list.

Metal Armor (Lv-9): The user can gather magic energy and turn his body into steel, increasing strength and defense stats by 2 points for ten minutes (Max: 10.9) Cost: 50% Ether energy. CD: 6 hours.

"Well, the skill isn't exceptional but isn't bad either. It might become useful in the future..."

Mark didn't like the skill that much as he was expecting an offensive type. He felt like he had enough protective measures already and didn't need another defensive skill. But then again, it is not like he paid for it. So, he was cool to have an extra one.

Closing down the window, he went on to click on the image of the next slot that coincidentally has a part of his name included.

Chapter 393 Nuclear Bomb

Mark 14 Nuclear bomb

Model: TX-14

Grade: N/A

Type: Thermonuclear

Yield: 6.9 Megatons

Energy Release at the point of impact: 28.8696 Peta Joules (Equivalent stats: 12.1)

Max. Blast radius (high possibility of death): 4183 meters (groundburst), 4467 meters (airburst)

Max. Effective radius (light injuries): 26.5 km (groundburst), 30.7 km (airburst)

Description: This nuclear bomb has the potential to wipe out any Spirit warrior below Saint Realm if they stand close enough from the point of impact. The more distance is from the point of impact, the less damage the targets will receive.

"The first solid fuel staged hydrogen bomb, eh... It's an old model but the danger it possesses to my enemies cannot be ignored either.

Putting aside this bomb's ability, there's something I need to ponder.

Based on this information, we can safely say that even a beginner Saint Realm expert (12-circle) would usually have the strength equivalent to this nuclear bomb.

That guy named Yuqiang who gave me the holy beasts is surely stronger than an average Saint Realm.

Then, what about the realms above Saint?

According to Baltrow (the manticore), there are beasts and beings in the 13-circle and even in the 14-circle.

There's a high chance that even a bomb of Tsar bomba's capacity wouldn't be enough to harm those beings. Thermonuclear bombs are only helpful against the worlds on this planet of type 1 civilization, and to some extent, type 2 civilizations, possibly.

But, the anti-matter weapons, on the other hand, have the potential to hurt those gods comfortably sitting in heaven and playing with the fates of mortals.

The anti-matter weapons should be what I need to put as my next big goal.

Let's see I need about 23.3gm of antimatter to have equivalent energy released by a nuclear bomb with a megaton yield. Even if I assume that I need a gigaton yield to hurt them, I would need 23 kilograms of antimatter.

Even at my team's peak, we didn't create so much antimatter in the lab. Forget about lab with sophisticated, I don't even have decent modern equipment in this world.

Nah, even if I somehow collect tons of anti-matter, it is only enough to hurt the people, not enough to totally wipe out a planet as the gods do in the myths. It means they are far stronger than I can imagine.

What I need is something like a true vacuum bomb that releases vacuum energy and created some sort of vacuum decay, but it should be in a controlled manner or else, the entire universe will die... Ugh... why am I thinking of such absurd theories right now?

Destruction of planets? Defeating gods? And vacuum energy? Seriously? You are way over in your head, Mark.

Come down to the earth and think about the problems before you, idiot. Fuuu... take a deep breath..."

After calming down himself and throwing all unnecessary thoughts away from his head, Mark closed the window and clicked on the missile defense system.

Since it can be upgraded with a click of a button, he didn't summon it and proceeded with the upgrade using the credits.

*Ding! 840,000 credits were deducted. Missile Defense System has been upgraded to Crystal grade.

He didn't stop upgrading.

*Ding! 6,720,000 credits were deducted. Missile Defense System has been upgraded to Ruby grade.

"Okay, next..." His eyes shifted to a section of the inventory filled with dazzling items.

With his eyes fixed on a throne-shaped item, Mark asked, "System, how much is needed to repair Wang Zuo?"

The system took a couple of seconds to analyze the weapon's condition and gave him the answer.

*Ding! 2 billion credits. The divine throne is a god-grade item. It requires rare resources to repair it and bring it back to its peak.

"2 billion?" Mark let out a gasp in shock. But then, as he remembered the price quoted by the system to forcefully remove the memories of the zheng back when he first contracted with it, he felt calmer.

He felt that it might be worth the price, considering the fact that the god grade is the highest grade an item can have in the universe. There's nothing higher than that. It is why the gods and immortals call them universe-grade items.

As he can't repair it at the moment, he could only try wiping out its consciousness. Since the system didn't cost him much when it wiped out the consciousness of the Yu sword, Mark expected it to be doable.

And the system confirmed to him that he can afford it, but Mark couldn't help but have second thoughts as he read the notifications.

*Ding! The price is 18 million credits. The system will use the protos energy to wipe out its memories and will bind them to you. The divine spirit will not remember anything and will stay completely loyal to you.

*Ding! If the host doesn't want any spirit hosting the divine throne, it will cost 15 million credits. Note: If the weapon doesn't have any spirit, then, it cannot act on its own.

Mark understood that he was left with two choices. The semi-divine and divine weapons which had the spirits can act similar to the contracted beasts. They wouldn't need their masters to wield them all the time.

At the same time, Mark knew the benefits of Wang Zuo too. This old divine spirit has been there for a long time and probably knew a lot of secrets of heaven including the Jade Emperor.

With great wisdom, the divine spirit can also advise him on several matters.

However, there is a big risk. Since Wang Zuo is a divine spirit, he can escape when things become difficult between him and his master. In the future, what if he escapes and reveals the secret of the system to some god-like Yuqiang?

After analyzing the pros and cons for a while, Mark came to the decision and talked in his head, "System, I would like to wipe out the spirit entirely."

*Ding! Please store the item in your inventory.

Mark nodded and took out the scepter from his storage ring.

As soon as he came outside, Wang Zuo expressed his delight, "finally. I thought I would stay and share that space with those inferior spirits. But then again, I didn't expect a mortal to possess more than one divine-grade weapon.

Lu Zhen, where did you get that Yellow Emperor's Jade pipa? There are also weird metallic objects in strange shapes. I'm really curious. Woah, what is that puppet? It looks exactly like a human from top to bottom.

And what is this place? I feel quite an amount of suppression on me. It was as if some powerful entity unleashed a skill and trapped us in a pocket dimension.

Anyways, did you think and come to a decision? We can proceed with forming the contract without wasting any time. What do you say?"

Earlier Mark had a tiny bit of pity for the divine throne as he decided to wipe out its spirit but when he heard these words from Wang Zuo, he felt like he did the right thing after all.

After telling the divine spirit that he still needed half more day and will answer all of his questions, Mark placed the divine throne in the inventory.

"System, proceed..."

*Ding! The inventory has been locked temporarily to block the target's escape route.

A few minutes later;

*Ding! 15 million credits were deducted. The divine throne has been bound to your soul. Name the divine throne.

Chapter 394 The Overpowered God-Grade Weapon

"Danya"

"That is the name I will give to the divine throne as I will deliver judgment using the weapon."

*Ding! The name is registered. Check out the weapons tab for the details.

Mark clicked on the divine throne for the details.

Instant teleportation (unavailable): The divine throne can teleport its master to any place in the universe.

Immunity: The user is immune to all kinds of debuffs.

"Woah, that's a lot to digest..." Mark didn't expect that a god-grade weapon is too overpowered even when compared to the likes of the celestial-grade divine sword, the exo suit, and others.

The power to create life, the power to create dimensions, the power to travel anywhere in the universe; it will just make him a god. Not to mention the fact that he could return home and check on his brother.

His mind screamed to repair it even by taking loans but fortunately, Mark's rationality saved him from falling into endless debt as he wasn't dealing with gods yet.

Hence, he could manage it for what it offers him at the moment. As for returning to his home planet, he could still do it as long as he finishes the quest and unlocks the space attribute.

And to make sure he won't get tempted further, Mark closed the window and tried to shift his focus on other interesting objects like the Amulet of Diyu for example.

"What the..."

Once again, Mark was taken aback by the details, although it left a bad taste in his mouth unlike the earlier one. "System, are you joking with me? There's no way I will use this one..."

Mark had a bit of expectation on this treasure as this would let him form a contract with a demon but that hope appeared to be gone as it required ten years of life force just to initiate the summoning. Even then, there's no guarantee of the success rate.

And there's also a possibility that he would fail to form a contract with the demon after the summon.

Mark felt like he received a useless item.

But, thankfully, the system already had a solution, one that satisfies him as well as its habit to milk gold coins from him.

*Ding! Contracting with demons always comes at a heavy cost as their loyalty is guaranteed once the contract is formed. It is different from the beasts.

*Ding! Integrate with the system? The cost will change to 50,000 credits and the host gets a free chance.

"50,000 credits huh?" Mark couldn't help but scoff at the offer proposed by the system. "The lottery used to only cost 300 credits. You inflated the prices quite quickly, System."

*Ding! The system received a huge upgrade and hence, the quality of the items also increased significantly. As a result, the cost also increased.

"In such case, I guess the cost to spin the lottery wheel must also be increased," commented Mark in response.

*Ding! Yes, it has been increased from 300 credits to 3000 credits. You can check out the new lottery wheel for the details.

Since he cannot argue with the system without seeing the results of the upgrade, Mark was forced to agree with the arrangement.

"Fair enough. Proceed with the integration."

*Ding! Amulet of Diyu has been integrated with your character.

The amulet with the image of a devil disappeared from his inventory and a new tab was added to his character menu.

He opened the Amulet of Diyu.

Amulet of Diyu

Grade: N/A

Description: The amulet of Diyu is an object that is used to summon a demon from the netherworld and form a contract with it.

Cost: 50,000 credits

Cooldown timer: 30 days

Success rate: Varies

Free chance: 1 (100% success rate for summoning)

Contracted demons: 0

<<<Summon>>>

"System, explain to me the process of forming a contract."

Since he was dealing with the unknown here, he asked for the system's assistance to get clarification.

If the demon will be summoned to his residence, then, the ultimate defense will probably make it easier for him to subdue the target. In such a case, he can use an empty room.

But, what if the demon goes on a rampage and others might catch up in their battle as Mark unleashes the gravity dome?

In that case, he would send everyone away for a while before proceeding with the summoning.

Or maybe, he should just go far away and summon the demon in a remote location?

There are a lot of thoughts going on through Mark's head and the system's response only gave him a bit of temporary relief.

*Ding! Upon initiating the summoning, the system will unleash the summoning circle, dragging a random demon from one of the netherworlds located in the plane of immortals.

*Ding! The demon will usually lay down the conditions as they are bound to the summoning circle for the next 30 minutes. The host will be on his own to deal with the demon.

*Ding! Once the host fulfills the conditions, he can form a contract with the demon with terms discussed beforehand. After that, the host can summon the contracted demon at any time while consuming ether energy in the process.

*Ding! For the first contract, the system can create a temporary spatial dimension and summon the demon in that location. If the host needed the system's assistance to create such dimension every time, a fee of 10,000 credits will be needed for 30 minutes.

"Man, you are gold sucking vampire aren't you?" Mark could really feel that the system was actually waiting to promote its assistance to loot more gold coins from him now that he is very rich and also earn a 100% share of every piece of weapon from a transaction. "Fine... we'll proceed after I'm done squandering."

"System, open the store"

Mark clicked on the attributes category and scrolled down to the last section.

Super Advanced: 1,000,000 credits

Chaos, Time, Nuclear, Protos (Anti-divine), Divine, Anti-matter, Nature (natural energy)

"Oh my god... oh my god... oh my god... ouch... I'm not dreaming. It's... it's..." Mark had a hard time believing that he could purchase one thing that he was dreaming to collect the most through scientific ways.

Mark didn't even take a look at the other attributes and directly went on to purchase the thing he desires.

However, the system won't give him the easy way either.

*Ding! Super Advanced attributes can only be purchased once. After this purchase, the others will be unavailable to purchase. Proceed?

"Oh boy... now this has become complicated..." A look of hesitation appeared on Mark's face.

Chapter 395 Purchasing The Attributes

According to Mark, of all the weapons he designed, the Antimatter bomb is considered the best. Indirectly, just a couple of prototypes even stopped the world war.

If only the weapon wasn't banned by the upper echelons, who knows, for the future generations of the earth, Mark would have been called the father of anti-matter bombs.

However, it is also a truth that its creation is what caused his doom.

That doesn't mean Mark wasn't fascinated by designing it once again. They have so much potential. Not to mention the fact that he no longer has any superior to control his actions.

If he wants to create them, he could create them.

And the system gave him a shortcut to achieve it by providing anti-matter particles for free.

On any day, Mark would have chosen it without hesitation. But, as the system mentioned that he can only purchase one super advanced attribute, he wanted to make sure that he was making the right choice.

Since he already knows the method to make the anti-matter, Mark would just need the right materials to create the anti-matter extractor. As long as there is enough time, he might be able to build one and even upgrade it as he researches more.

In that case, isn't it foolish to choose an anti-matter attribute? Mark thought that way and spared another glance at other attributes on the list.

"System, explain the attributes in this section..."

*Ding! Purchasing the Chaos attribute will let the host manipulate reality.

*Ding! Purchasing the time attribute will let the host manipulate the timeline.

*Ding! Purchasing the Nuclear attribute will let the host manipulate the nuclear reactions; reactions involving changes in a nucleus, such as fission, fusion, neutron capture, or radioactive decay.

*Ding! The divine attribute is manipulating the divine energy, which is exclusive to celestial beings.

*Ding! Protos attribute is the opposite of divine energy. This anti-divine energy is the most corruptive energy in the entire universe. No shield could block this energy. Even gods find it difficult to defend against this energy.

*Ding! Anti-matter attribute is about the manipulation of anti-matter particles, which are usually found in cosmic rays. Exposure of anti-matter to the material world will give rise to the annihilation of matter.

*Ding! Nature attribute is the manipulation of natural energy, which is found in every world that is inhabited by living things. The natural energy can also be refined into ether particles.

*Ding! The system recommends Time.

"Controlling time is great and all but it is not for me. I'm a weapon seller and my interests lie in selling my creations to the masses, not some universal domination and becoming a god or something. All I want is the power to protect myself and retaliate if one touches my bottom line. That's all..."

Mark eliminated Time and Chaos from the list as a result of his priorities.

"Compare to creating anti-matter bombs, hydrogen bombs were quite easier to make. With enough manpower (robots) and materials, it is possible."

The nuclear attribute was also eliminated.

With the divine throne giving him free divine power, the divine attribute was also eliminated.

As for Protos energy, it is completely unknown and Mark doesn't want to take the risk. If he has no option, he would take the leap of faith but since there are better options, he hesitated to choose them.

Not to mention, Alina already possessed Protos energy and he can take her help to research the anti-divine energy.

Only two were remaining; Antimatter and Nature.

Both of them had great potential in their own right.

Natural energy is in abundance and if mastered properly, he could sell the weapons to the masses while anti-matter, on the other hand, needed responsible individuals to handle the bombs made out of them as they were quite dangerous.

His eyes darted up and down. "F*ck... who am I kidding? I think I have already made my decision a long time ago."

No matter how logically he wants to compare every attribute, Mark's heart was dead set on only one attribute. He just wants to eliminate other options through excuses.

Upon realizing that, Mark felt like he wasted too much time dwelling on it and went to the pending notification and clicked on yes.

*Ding! 1,000,000 credits were deducted. The anti-matter attribute has been added to your character.

*Ding! The Summoner spirit path is detected. There are no beasts for Anti-matter. The mage spirit path is recommended.

*Ding! A quest for the mage spirit path is detected. Anti-matter will be locked.

*Ding! The super advanced attribute section has disappeared from the system's store.

"Okay, one is over. Let's see if there were any useful attributes."

He scrolled up.

Basic: 50000 credits

Fire, Water, Earth, Lightning (owned), Wind, Light, Dark

Variant: 75000 credits.

Metal, Shadow, Sound, Space (owned), Magnet, Crystal, Gravity, Oil

Advanced: 100,000 credits

Ice (owned), Wood, Poison, Plasma, Lava, Storm, Glass, Acid, Sand

"System, is there a limit on purchasing other attributes?" He asked with his eyes fixed on a certain attribute.

*Ding! No limit on Basic attributes. The host can select any three in Variant attributes and any two in advanced attributes.

"Is that so... well, not that it matters anyway."

System: "..."

Closing down the chat window screen with the system, Mark proceeded to purchase the attributes.

*Ding! 75,000 credits were deducted. The gravity attribute is added to the character.

*Ding! The Summoner spirit path is detected. There are no beasts for the Gravity attribute. The mage spirit path is recommended.

*Ding! 75000 credits were deducted. Oil attribute is added to the character.

*Ding! Summoner spirit path is detected. There are no beasts for the Oil attribute. Mage spirit path is recommended.

*Ding! 100,000 credits were deducted. Poison attribute is added to the character.

*Ding! Summoning beasts from rank 0 to rank 9 were unlocked.

"Gravity spells will be helpful in restricting the movements of my enemies, I will use Oil for various purposes, and Poison could make even simple 9mm bullets lethal but I need to spend time on research."

As all but the basic attribute section were closed for the purchase, Mark went back to the categories section and clicked on Bloodlines.

Just like the rest of the categories, Bloodlines category was also divided into different tiers from tier-1 to tier-6.

The prices were so high that Mark felt the urge to close it right away but forced himself to explore the list.

Tier-1 bloodlines cost 100,000 credits each;

Tier-2 bloodlines cost 400,000 credits each;

Tier-3 bloodlines cost 1,000,000 credits each;

Tier-4 bloodlines cost 5,000,000 credits each;

Tier-5 bloodlines cost 50,000,000 credits each;

As for Tier-6, it cost an enormous 1 billion credits. It only has one bloodline, which is something called "Primeval".

The Blizzard Pegasus he currently owns is one of the Tier-5 bloodlines. Phoenix was also on the same list.

Mark couldn't help but felt amazed by this detail, not because he was the child of the two people who possessed ancient bloodlines but it is because of the fact that the system gave him 50 million credits worth as a gift.

Back when he awakened, even 100 gold coins were so much worth to him and the system gave him 250 million gold coins of worth and didn't demand the amount.

"Maybe, it is probably because I possessed it in the first place and the system only helped me with the awakening?" wondered Mark. He further thought, "But still, the sassy system helped me a lot more than I deserve..."

All of a sudden, Mark felt a little bit guilty for using the loopholes to make millions of gold coins and still cursed the system as too greedy.

"Anyway, let's get going with the purchase..."

He explored the list under the Tier-3 bloodlines which are affordable in his current situation.

"Hmm... based on the list of monsters listed here, I guess the Tier-1 bloodlines mean the bloodline passed down from the common grade monsters. Tier-2 bloodlines mean the fierce grade monsters. Tier-3 means the king grade and Tier-4 means the emperor grade. Finally, Tier-5 should be an ancient grade.

However, only monsters weren't listed. There were also gods listed here. There's even the bloodline of Jade Emperor and Monkey King in tier-5.

Now, my curiosity about the system's origins only increased further. Just how could scientists create such a thing? I believe something else is also involved.

One day, I will find out the truth but for now, let's focus on the present."

Mark threw away the thoughts and clicked on a bloodline that has a familiar name on it, "Yeti".

It was an 8-circle realm beast king he fought in the trial of holy beasts. Since it is an ice attribute, he thought of receiving a few more ice spells (bloodline skills). However, the system disagrees with his decision. It gave a warning notification as usual as he tried to purchase the bloodline.

*Ding! The host cannot use its abilities. Proceed with the purchase?

"Eh? Why?"

*Ding! Bloodlines are different from attributes. Each bloodline contained the essence of the beast and is quite alive like a spirit.

*Ding! The host possessed a tier-5 bloodline. It cannot coexist with lower tier bloodline and neither can it accept a bloodline with an opposite attribute.

"So, I cannot purchase any bloodline below tier-5?"

Mark was stumped by the system's explanation. Each bloodline in tier-5 costs 50 million credits and he wouldn't waste much money on a bloodline even if he becomes the richest person in the universe.

He was forced to go back to the category menu with disappointment and put his entire hopes on the unique weapons' category.

"I wish I would find something worthy here."

He clicked on the category, opening up into two sections; normal and ether. As Mark wanted to sell them instead of using them for his own purpose, he chose the normal ones.

"Hmm... I wonder if I can find something that is of 9th generation fighter, F-46's caliber. It belonged to the enemies but still, the best fighter jet..."

He scrolls down and almost felt like slapping himself.

"Ugh... advanced ones are too pricy. Even if I unlock them, there won't be customers who want to buy them."

Let's pick an affordable one for now but is better than a training aircraft like Yak 130 I have."

After selecting one after another and reading their details, Mark finally chose the one.

"Yup, this Swedish one will be best..."

"Aircraft is done. Since this has meteor missiles unlocked, I don't need to worry about air combat. However, I need a supersonic cruise missile, which is also nuclear-capable. I can then modify the Hardpoints to create a new variant that can equip the new one.

As for the nuclear warheads, I might have to depend on myself cuz I'm sure the system will not include them in this package. But, it is not a big deal anyways. I can make them at any time as long as I have the materials and manpower.

Wait a second... why bother making nuclear warheads when I can make anti-matter warheads and put them in missiles? Now that anti-matter particles can be collected so easily, I would just have to focus on the modification, not the warhead itself...

Anyway, let's go to the missiles' section."

Mark scrolls down further, crossing various sections ranging from unique handgun models to warships before stopping at missiles.

After searching for a while, he purchased one that can be launched from an aircraft and also from a warship.

*Ding! 500,000 credits were deducted. Brahmos missile has been unlocked.

"Next is the manpower. My future soldiers..."

He further scrolled down to go to the section named assistant, which is further divided between robot and android.

He clicked on the robot section only to see the images of different types of robots. Along with different types of humanoid robots, various beast types also existed.

Since they are only robots, they don't have any specific set of skills like the androids. So, it was just a difference in appearances. The only thing that actually matters is their rank, which decides their durability, learning capability, reflexes, moving speed, data storage, etc...

"A rank-1 robot only costs 200 gold coins each and 1000 credits to unlock but it ends with a rank-9 robot costing as high as 78 million gold coins each and 1 billion credits to unlock.

Ugh... at the high-end ones, millions were shown like cents... I really miss those days when I was happy to earn 5 gold coins.

But then again, I'm partly at fault here. I was the one who rushed into rank-9... Anyway, Mark, you just focus on the present."

Mark forced himself to stop thinking about other things and explored the details of each robot.

After ten minutes, he made his choice.

*Ding! 10,000 credits were deducted. Battle Robot-III (rank-3) has been unlocked.

*Ding! 10,000 credits were deducted. Robot Dog (rank-3) has been unlocked.

*Ding! 100,000 credits were deducted. Battle Robot-V (rank-5) has been unlocked.

"Okay, I think I'm done with the store. There's no need to buy too many. Let's go to other functions."

Mark closed the system store and went on to open his dearest lottery wheel that gives him free gifts of high value every time.

The only problem is the fact that his luck is still at 7 points. Hence, he decided to only use the lottery pick ticket, which guarantees him a reward.

As he clicked on the Lottery Wheel tab, the image of a wheel appeared on the holographic screen.

The lottery wheel should have been upgraded according to the system but it looked exactly the same with seven rewards and 14 empty spaces. There are a couple of changes though.

The first one is that one of those seven rewards should be empty when he won the exo suit but it was filled by the same reward.

Second is the change of cost to spin the wheel. It was increased from 300 credits to 3000 credits.

And below the wheel, there was another box that says pick ticket). There was a number 1 on this glowing box.

Random Unique weapon

Random Bloodline

Rank-1 Android (weapons research specialist)

Upgrade crystal (superior grade)

Ungraded battle tank (Merkava mark IV)

peak potion

Mysterious Box

"Here we go..."

Mark clicked on the lottery pick ticket and the wheel started to spin while the empty spaces were removed. In the meantime, the number "1,000,000" appeared in place of a lottery pick ticket.

This was a new scheme from the system to earn more money. Since it knew that its host was using the ring of luck to get 100% probability every time, it introduced the lottery pick ticket, which eliminates the empty space.

And to make sure that its host will not try to depend on this feature too much, the system also added a couple of more commands.

The lottery pick ticket can be purchased only when the regular spin option is available.

One can only purchase one at a time. Until it was used, the second one cannot be purchased.

And once, one purchased a lottery ticket, until the spin option above it was used and then reset after its regular 7 days of time, the successive price increases with each purchase.

It can be considered a genius move by the system but unfortunately, its host is already at a stage where he doesn't have an obsession with any new skills or weapons anymore.

Hence, for the moment, these rules didn't affect Mark much and he was happy to receive whatever he got.

*Ding! Congratulations, you received a peak potion. The item was sent to the inventory.

"Open Inventory"

He casually tossed the vial of green liquid back into the inventory after confirming that it is the same as the ones from before. With his stats crossing 9, the peak potion that increases his stats to 9.9 no longer appeared impressive as before.

Meanwhile, the peak potion was replaced by an upgrade stone.

Closing the lottery wheel, Mark then goes back to the Amulet of Diyu.

He clicked on the free chance option.

*Ding! You will be teleported to the pocket dimension in 30 seconds.

The countdown timer started for him.

Meanwhile, on some planet located in the immortal plane, a demon with three heads (a cat, a man, and a toad) attached to spider legs was standing at the edge of a lava pool and staring at the red sky. On its man's head, there was a golden crown usually worn by kings.

The weird-looking demon appeared to be lonely, based on the facial expression on the man's head.

He lets out a deep sigh, "Life is so boring lately. Everywhere, there is peace. No wars, no motivation to get stronger, no interesting things to learn, and no summoning from mortals either. Those who seek vengeance don't summon me and those who seek wisdom will not turn to our rituals. They would rather read the teachings of Buddha.

Ugh... I'm so bored..."

As the demon resorted to swimming in the lava pool to relieve his boredom, he sensed the otherworldly power descending onto his planet.

He stopped swimming and stared at the sky. A black-colored portal appeared out of nowhere and a beam of light was shot out of it.

The demon's eyes widened in shock as the beam of light struck him in a fraction of a second and then all he saw was that he was at standing in some kind of arena.

Just as he wondered where he was, a blinding flash was seen before Mark made his appearance.

"Eek..." Mark couldn't help but jump back as his eyes spotted a creature with a disgusting appearance.

His finger almost clicked on the Thunderblast skill but Mark managed to hold himself and inspected the demon.

Bael

Species: Demon

Rank: peak-13-circle

Description: One of the nine demon kings of Ars Goetia.

Mark's face suddenly turned pale and he roared in his head, "System, are you trying to get me killed?"

Never in the world did he expect to summon a powerful demon king who can end his life with a snap of a finger.

Mark wanted to return right away.

*Ding!

Chapter 397 Seven Deadly Sins (Part-1)

*Ding! In the event of death, the host will be resurrected by the system. However, it only works if the host dies in this pocket dimension.

*Ding! Since it is the first time, the services are provided for free. The host can enable this feature beforehand by paying extra.

"Tch... avaricious," mumbled Mark before paying attention to the demon walking toward him.

Meanwhile, the three-headed demon with spider legs had its senses working at their peak, trying to understand the place he was at and the strength of the human who appeared.

He also seeks the answers from Mark as the latter is likely to be linked to bringing him to this strange place.

As the system was online and protecting Mark, the demon couldn't sense anything from the person.

If he was a lower-ranked demon, he would have probably assumed that Mark was a normal civilian. But, Bael is one of the kings of Ars Goetia who had 66 legions of demon army under his command.

Each legion comprising 6666 demons can easily destroy all the life on the planet Mark was living in. Perhaps, only supreme beings and demigods could survive by running away or hiding.

He is not a fool to assume that an average mortal could just drag him from his own world. It was obvious to him that the person standing before him is either a dragon in pig's form or he had a true god (14-circle) supporting him.

Both of his assumptions might be wrong but he was certainly curious instead of angry.

That helped Mark to strike up a conversation with the demon.

As the demon stopped walking about a few feet away from Mark, the latter introduced himself with his usual fake smile to cover his nervousness, "Hello, Lord Bael, my name is Lu Zhen. I'm a summoner and I wish to form a contract with you."

"Ho... as I expected." The demon let out a smile on his man's head. He then asked, "What are the terms?"

Seeing that the demon looked interested in the contract, Mark inwardly sighed in relief and firmly said, "Appear whenever I call for you. Destroy my enemies if asked. Protect my allies if asked. Be my messenger envoy whenever needed. If you have knowledge of rare materials in any world, please do give me the information. This is all I need from you."

Seeing that the demon is stronger than the god Yuqiang who gave him the holy beasts, Mark felt that Bael must also be knowledgeable. So, he added that condition in the end too.

And just like the system mentioned him, the demon took his terms seriously and went into thinking. Whether this will lead to an argument or even a battle entirely depends on the terms.

Unexpectedly for him, Demon King Bael didn't want to test his battle strength. Instead, he demanded life force in return.

"No..." Mark outrightly rejected it. After all, he wasn't desperate to get the help of a demon, unlike the desperate people who sign a contract with the devil in exchange for their souls. "Either change your terms or we treat it as if this meeting didn't place at all."

He would rather waste this free chance than accept this deal involving his life force.

Bael observed the fearless human in silence. To understand this summoner's personality and thoughts, he decided to test him.

"Alright. I will use seven deadly sins against you. Based on your performance, we will negotiate the terms." Demon King Bael then closed his eyes and summoned seven ghostly spirits around him.

Mark was alerted by the demon's sudden actions and clicked on the lightning clone skill in reflex.

It appeared the same as the ghostly spirits while gaining the attention of Bael. "Hmm? An attribute cloning technique? That's a rare skill." He praised Mark before adding that a clone won't help him in this situation as the seven deadly sins are different. They cannot be avoided.

And before Mark even responded, his eyes had gone blank and his soul was transported to an illusionary realm where he found himself sitting at the table with dozens of varieties of delicacies.

It was like his consciousness is trapped inside a dream. For some strange reason, he didn't find anything amiss and was stuffing his mouth with the food, starting with the muffins.

Feeling an endless appetite, he continuously ate the food nonstop for atleast 30 minutes straight until his eyes fell on an apple pie.

As he took the slice of the pie into his hand, a sudden memory jogged in his brain. It was the memory of Alina serving him the pie for the first time. He tasted that dish after several years; hence, it was imprinted on his mind.

As soon as he realized that he was in the middle of a test, the remaining delicacies disappeared, replaced by dead insects like cockroaches, crickets, etc...

"Ugh..."

He spat out whatever was in his mind and coughed several times, staring at the table in disgust. Followed by that, he got angry at the demon. "That bastard... I will roast him alive..."

As he was enraged, a peal of laughter filled the place, followed by the words. "hehehehe... you seemed special, mortal. Not everyone could get out of Gluttony in such little time. However, this time, it will be different. Even if you realize that it is not reality, you won't be able to come out so quickly. Good luck..."

Mark felt dizzy and fainted on the spot as the surroundings disappeared, followed by the change in the scenery.

As he opened his eyes, he found himself lying on a king-size bed without any clothes. There were a couple of extremely beautiful-looking ladies, one on each side, sleeping beside him.

They looked so hot that Mark couldn't resist himself touching them. As one of those women slept like she wasn't feeling anything, the other woman was forcefully woken up and found Mark exploring her body.

She felt aroused and let out a sexy moan as she grabbed his arm but didn't stop him.

Giving off a lecherous gaze, he didn't even bother to greet her good morning and just directly went into action.

The loud moans of the woman filled the room for a while until the door burst open all of a sudden and a blond-haired woman in luxurious attire entered with a serious look.

Mark stopped whatever he is doing and turned his head to look at the woman, "Oh, Hey Rachel. Want to join us?"

"We don't have any time for that now, Mark." She raised her hand to show a tab in her hand.

As he sat on the bed, a woman named Rachel played the video and gave it to him.

On the screen, a video was played where a group of prisoners was being executed by guillotines.

Mark's veins bulged, his eyes reddened, and there was a clear look of anger on his face.

Throwing away the tab in fury, he growled, "That weak island country dared to go against us? Pass the message to the generals that we are going to war. I'll give them an hour."

He quickly dressed up and left the room without bothering to converse with his wives anymore.

As he came out of the palace, Mark's eyes fell on a large army of robots with advanced weapons in their arms. He gave them an hour but it only took a few minutes for his army to gather.

Allen was standing in front of them. Everyone fell onto their right knee and bow to their king.

Mark fell into a daze for a couple of seconds as he stared at Allen.

A series of blurry memories and words appeared in his head.

"Allen, you may call me big brother" "Allen, slice that arm" "Allen, make me breakfast" "Allen, clean the store" "Allen is my younger brother. He is not someone you can put a price on, Lady Lin" "Allen, crush her throat" "Allen, you will have to find a hobby that you can enjoy" "Allen, you don't need to compete with Alina"

Eventually, he managed to get out of those thoughts and nodded. "Rise..."

As they got up, he announced, "Today, we are going to wipe out the land of Japan from the planet. Hail Genesis..."

"Hail Genesis," roared the androids and robots as they saluted him.

But then, Mark's expression changed once again as blurry memories disturbed his concentration.

"From now onwards, your code name will be Genesis, Mark." "I name the store with the name attached to my life, Genesis" "Welcome to Genesis Weapon store"

"What the hell is going on?" He wondered.

Chapter 398 Seven Deadly Sins (Part-2)

Sometime later, on a large island, as millions were being massacred indiscriminately by thousands of robots and the buildings were being destroyed by explosions one after another, Mark was laughing like a crazy villain while observing from a helicopter.

"Now, the whole world will understand what will be the result of offending me. Hahahaha..."

Within no time, the enemy country has fallen and the king was on his knees before Allen. Behind the king who had a striking resemblance to Song Yun, there were about a thousand soldiers in the same condition without any willpower left.

And around them, there were hundreds of robots with rifles in their hands.

The king raised his head as he saw the helicopter land and Mark gets down, walking toward him.

When Mark reached the king and looked at his face, he stepped back in surprise. For a few seconds, unrelated memories appeared in his head where he only did nothing but caused destruction using his battle tank.

"You massacred innocent citizens who had nothing to do with our enmity. You are a devil," roared the kneeling king. There was a clear hatred in his eyes.

Mark came out of his thoughts and looked coldly at his enemy, "you should have expected this before you executed my spies publicly without even trying to negotiate with me."

As the enemy king spat on the ground in response, Mark raised the gun and pointed at his forehead, "Goodbye, loser."

The enemy king shut his eyes and prepared for death.

One second... two seconds... three seconds...

Time ticked for five seconds but the bullet never escaped the gun. The king opened his eyes to see a devilish smile on Mark. "No, you won't die a death without a proper audience. I will parade you in the streets of our capital city before executing you. But, before that, I will destroy everything that you hold dear. First, your citizens, then, your prosperous kingdom, then, your soldiers, then, your family, and only after that, your death will come."

"You mothe... Argh..." As the king was about to curse Mark while standing up, Allen kicked the back of his thigh with so much force that it forced him to kneel once again.

"Kill..." Mark gave the signal to his robots and hundreds of gunshots were heard, turning every captured soldier into a corpse.

After a while, the helicopter started flying away with the defeated king inside.

Enormous explosions occurred one after another, drowning the entire island in the ocean.

Roughly about a couple of hours later, Mark and his army returned to the city.

Tens of thousands of people gathered on the sidewalks as the robots paraded in the middle with Mark's half of the body standing out of the tank.

"All Hail Genesis" "All hail Genesis" "All hail Genesis"

The cheering reverberated all over the city as the army was going to the center of the city.

Soon, everyone gathered in the arena. Several guillotines were placed in the middle of the arena and a few feet away from them, the defeated king was kneeling with injuries all over his body. He was tied up by Allen so that he won't move from the spot.

Mark and his queens were sitting on a balcony, watching the event.

Allen spoke loudly, "Bring in the prisoners."

Two women covered in black robes and hoods were dragged in chains along with a dozen more individuals who were criminals of the kingdom of Genesis.

"No... please spare their lives..." the defeated king screamed as loud as he can while the robots secured the prisoners including those two hooded women with a pillory at the bottom of the frame, holding the position of the neck directly below the blade imbued with ether energy.

Allen then raised his head to look at his king for permission. As Mark gave his nod, Allen turned toward the robots and announced, "Begin."

The first blade was released and cut down the neck of a prisoner, ending his life in one chop.

For the next ten seconds, the heads started rolling on the ground one after another.

And finally, only two women were left.

"No... please take my life... Just kill me first..."

The king pleaded with everything he could but it fell deaf to Mark's ears. Allen then gestured for the robot to release the blade.

It was at that moment Mark opened his mouth, "Wait."

The robot stopped the execution and the king hopefully looked at Mark, wondering whether he had a change of heart.

However, the next sentence from Mark dashed his hopes completely.

"It's no fun to kill them like this. Mr. Song Yun here should see the faces of his loved ones when they were killed. Only then it will be satisfying." Mark said with a smile, making it seem like he is a sadist to the core.

But, as if everyone is psycho like him, everyone just laughed and cheered along.

"Kill" "Kill" "Kill" "Kill"

As the whole stadium was filled with cheering, the robots grabbed their hoods and tore them with force before grabbing their hair and raising their heads for their king to take a look at their faces.

Mark was stunned for a moment as his eyes fell on the beautiful face of a maiden at the end.

A gush of memories hit him at the same time as the blade was released on the wife of the defeated king. He got up from his throne. "Song Yue!"

The head of the woman who resembled Song Yun's wife rolled on the ground and her husband cried out in pain and tried to get up but was held by Allen.

In the next second, the last blade of the guillotine was released.

"No" "No"

This time, two people screamed at the same time. One was the defeated king but the other was Mark.

Surprising everyone in the stadium, Mark took a huge leap from his throne.

He couldn't make a proper landing and tripped his leg, falling on the ground. By that time, the blade almost reached the neck of the woman.

"Noooo"

He screamed at the top of his lungs and instantly, everything around him froze by the ice.

Everything except for Song Yue and Allen was frozen in ice and she raised her head with tears falling from her eyes and a look of surprise on her face.

Mark didn't care about his surroundings and just dashed forward.

"Why?" She asked with a stunned expression.

After freeing her, he caressed her face and spoke, "Even if this is an illusion, I would never hurt you, my schatz. I would rather burn the world."

A stream of tears fell down from Song Yue as cracks appeared all over her body. "What?" Mark was taken aback at first but then saw the whole world around him start cracking.

Eventually, everything disappeared and Mark saw the demonic creature standing before him with its human head smiling.

"You..." Mark got angered and almost opened the skill tab to attack but the demon king's words stopped him from doing that.

"You are full of lust, wrath, and pride, Lu Zhen; quite a fitting host for demons. On the other hand, Gluttony, Envy, and Sloth; the three deadly sins had no effect on you.

Unfortunately, I didn't have time to test your greed but it is clear that your love for that girl is strong enough to repel the seven deadly sins. It destroyed everything I had planned for you. She's your anchor, Lu Zhen.

I really wonder what would happen when that anchor gets broken one day. Will the ship sink or will it sail and destroy everything in its path. Anyways, this is my assessment of your test."

As Mark forcefully suppressed himself from beating this demon, the latter continued, "Now, coming to my conditions, they were simple. Freedom to act. There is no cost for summoning me, but to stay by your side, I would need to consume the soul of a human or any creature. Here..."

Demon King Bael took a white orb out of nowhere and threw it toward Mark. As the latter caught it in reflex, the demon said, "every time you kill, this will absorb the soul of the killed one. When this changes color, you can summon me at any time."

Mark observed the orb in his hand.

Orb of Bael

Grade: N/A

Description: The orb automatically absorbs the souls from the corpses when near them (in a 100-meter range).

He furrowed his brows as he fell into deep thinking, wondering if it would be the right thing. Since his path ahead is filled with dead bodies, either way, Mark was tempted to take this offer.

However, after experiencing the seven deadly sins, he wouldn't underestimate this demon.

He consulted the system. As expected, he received a series of notifications.

*Ding! The target is too stronger than the host. The system cannot forcefully summon the target whenever the host wants.

*Ding! The host cannot summon the target with full power. The target will only possess the strength of a maximum of two realms above you.

*Ding! This target usually can only be summoned for 10 minutes to 60 minutes for 24 hours. But, this target can break the rules due to abnormally high stats.

*Ding! The system cannot control the target as a slave contract cannot be imposed due to the large difference in strength and the host should depend on his own skills to order the target.

*Ding! Using the orb of Bael to absorb the souls is against the course of nature and might receive the attention of the Death god, Yan Wang.

*Ding! The orb of Bael can be integrated with the system to receive protection from being traced. Proceed?

"We'll proceed after returning to our world."

Mark kept the notifications aside for a second and looked at the three-headed demon. "Alright, Bael. We have a deal."

Chapter 399 Awakening Of The Second Spirit Path

Yu's Jade Pipa

Grade: Mythril

Description: The musical instrument that can control all the basic elements present in nature.

"It's only a Mythril grade, huh?" Mark was slightly disappointed by its skill set and grade. If he didn't have the divine throne and the exo suit, he would have probably kept it, but at the moment, it felt like he was keeping a useless item. "System, proceed with the trade."

*Ding! You traded Yu's Jade Pipa to the system. 30 million credits have been added to the account.

"Next, it is..."

Ring of Doom

Status: Cursed

Grade: Celestial

Description: The ring of Yan Wang gives power over all types of undead beings. One would be immortal just by wearing it. However, at the moment, it is cursed. As a result, one would be sealed in the form of a skeleton upon wearing it.

*Ding! Do you wish to lift the curse with purification stones (superior grade)? Nothing will change in the skills or the offer.

"Nah, a superior grade one will only cost me another 1 million credits. It's not like I'm interested in this object."

After making his decision, he spoke, "System, I would like to trade this too."

*Ding! You traded Ring of Doom. 47 million credits have been added to the account.

"Now, I have enough credits for the upgrade. Should I proceed or not?"

Mark opened the inventory and clicked on the defense system. With new earnings, he had a strong urge to upgrade it but when his eyes fell on the cost for the upgrade in 9 figures in gold coins, he hesitated to spend such an amount as he was worried that it will force him to spend the remaining to get the lamp of wishes.

"Nah, even after this upgrade, the next one will likely cost over 600 million credits. I will have to loot several worlds to collect 3 billion gold coins. Let's not give it to temptations and use the money to develop my island.

Anyways, let's check out the last one too..."

Closing the window that showed the details of the defense system, he clicked on the aircraft with a unique design.

Description: An aircraft bomber that has the capability to destroy an army of legendary realm experts with ease. It's a marvel of stealth engineering and deserved to be praised.

Cost: 400,000 credits/2,000,000 gold coins

"2 million? Ugh... the prices are rising at an exponential rate every time. The cost of those bombs will be even more. No one with a right mind in this world would buy it. Only crazy people like me would spend hundreds of millions of gold coins just on upgrading as if they don't matter.

eaglesnovel Nah, even if they were crazy enough to squander their wealth, I will not sell these babies at any cost even after I unlock them in the gallery either way. They are exclusive to my army. So, I guess I don't need to worry about its sales. I just need to manage my spending on the bombs. Perhaps, when I create anti-matter bombs in the future, my spending will be cut off further.

Anyways, I'm done checking with all the rewards and changes in the system. All that's left is to wait for Chang Bo to return and absorb his luck points for the lottery wheel."

Seven days passed away in a blink of an eye;

During these seven days, a lot happened that is directly or indirectly related to Mark's life.

First, the crown prince was put on house arrest with the Emperor strongly suspecting that he is behind Shang Wei's abduction. A large-scale investigation started.

Second, the Emperor invited Mark and his family for lunch. However, Mark postponed it by a week because of Allen's upgrade.

Third, Mark received a letter from the Western Moon kingdom about the official engagement ceremony.

Fourth, Mark acquired an upgrade crystal of superior grade from the lottery. He used it on Allen once again as soon as the upgrade is over. He wanted Allen to go toe to toe even against a supreme realm expert.

Fifth, Western Moon secretly went into a secret alliance with Prince Feng Wu. According to their agreement, the kingdom will officially recognize the Western Yan as an independent kingdom once the kunyu bandits overthrow the Ji clan.

After that, they will give necessary protection for the border. In exchange, Western Yan will cede its disputed territories to Western Moon. As the result, the latter will gain about 6630 sq. km of land.

As for Princess Shen Ling's plans of annexing the land into its kingdom, it will have to wait until she acquires the throne.

Sixth, Shang Wei successfully awakened the power of the phoenix bloodline through fire seed. The remaining part of the Golem's head was currently being researched by the mages and alchemists of the imperial palace.

Before making weapons out of them, they wanted to study the head and the happy emperor gave them permission, much to the protest from the crown prince and the generals.

Last but not least, Mark received the results of the investigation from his grand-uncle, Lan Jing regarding his adoptive parents' death.

The organization behind the incident is named Soul but the Eastern Sun kingdom doesn't have much information on them.

Mark's best subordinate who excelled in the investigation is now dead. He knew that they were just the bullet. The hand which clicked the trigger should be someone else.

And he doesn't want to spook them unnecessarily over the fit of rage, atleast not before he found their identity. That is why he decided to wait until Allen was done with his latest upgrade and give the task to him.

In the meantime, the store was opened and proceeded to run as usual. The advanced orders received by Chang Bo during the past few weeks had net the store a little more than 9,000 gold coins. And throughout the week, the store received 2000 more gold coins as earnings.

However, the rich owner of the store had nearly 390 million gold coins in his account (if all credits were converted to gold and added to the remaining gold coins), which is more than all the wealth of the entire phoenix empire, and hence, he didn't feel a thing about such massive profits.

While continuing to create weapons in his free time, as usual, Mark waited for the completion of Allen's upgrade. He thought of lying low for just three more days but something changed in Kunyu valley that forced him to make his move in advance.

The so-called grand tutor of Western Yan became too impatient to wait for the delivery of the weapons and went on a killing spree of Ji clan guards, spooking them.

If he had been successful in assassinating the Ji clan's head, it would have been fine but he failed due to the intervention of an expert from the church of Nuwa coincidentally staying there as a guest. As a result, he was recognized but managed to escape with his life.

The Imperial family was alerted by the sudden change of events at Western Yan and the Emperor deployed an army along with the Northern General to take care of the situation.

Feng Wu cannot scold his greatest asset for his recklessness and hence, can only turn toward Mark for help.

As a result, Mark was forced to send the zheng to Western Moon three days in advance with a storage ring full of weapons and ammunition as promised. He also made sure to write a letter with further instructions.

As the zheng reached the city of Lunaris, he directly went to the store and opened it. There was nothing inside except for a robot (the guardian).

As the zheng is connected to Mark's soul, the robot treated it as a friendly target and allowed inside to explore the tower. However, Lan Ju wasn't interested in that.

The zheng just silently waited at the reception desk on the ground floor until the party arrive and take the ring without giving any money. According to the agreement made between Mark and Feng Wu, they will give him the principal amount after they won the war.

And Mark received the confirmation of the transaction through the notifications he received back at the Imperial city.

A total of 825,600 gold coins were deducted from his account but he was nevertheless happy that the sale went through, not because of the gold.

It is because he almost completed the quest that's been on pending for so long.

"Great, now, only Gripen, Battle Robot-III, Robot Dog, and Battle Robot-V are left. The world isn't ready for these things. Let's just purchase it myself through proxy. But, the system recognizes only individuals that weren't connected to my soul as the customers."

Sometime later;

"That would be 524,000 gold coins," said Mark to Chang Bo, who was wondering why he was given two storage rings, one full of gold coins and the other with weapons, and then asked to proceed with the sale.

Whatever the case, he would do it as he was ordered without any questions. As he received a series of notifications, Mark gave ten gold coins to his subordinate as a reward.

Chang Bo didn't know why he was doing this but he was pretty much happy with his boss' generosity.

Once the job is done, Mark left him to manage the store and returned to his room.

Locking the door, Mark proceeded to open the notification screen.

*Ding! Battle Robot-III has been sold. You received 2000 gold coins (100%) as your share.

*Ding! Battle Robot dog has been sold. You received 2000 gold coins (100%) as your share.

*Ding! All mass-producible weapons are sold at least once.

*Ding! You fulfilled all the conditions. You completed the mandatory quest, "Awaken the second spirit path"

*Ding! You may choose between Mage and Assassin.

"Well, there's no need to think."

Chapter 400 The Necromancer King Resurrects Alina

Mark clicked on the mage. And his notification screen was once again flooded with a series of notifications.

*Ding! Mage spirit path has been unlocked.

*Ding! Gravity, Space, and Oil attributes were detected in the host's body. All of them were associated with the Mage spirit path.

*Ding! You received the skill, Attraction.

*Ding! You received the skill, Repulsion.

*Ding! You received the skill, Flight

*Ding! You received the skill, Singularity

He received nine skills associated with gravity attribute, followed by space, and then, Oil.

*Ding! You received the skill, Oil clone

"Finally, the problem with transportation was solved." Mark explored the list of skills he received from the space attribute, ignoring the remaining ones for the moment.

"Hmm... If I remember correctly, my home planet was named Earth-192 by the system. But, the problem is I don't know where it is or where am I for that matter. I didn't learn astronomy to even basically understand the positions of planets or stars or galaxies either. How can I locate my world?"

As Mark was wondering about how to make a visit to home so that he can have his revenge and bring back his brother if it is possible, the system gave its piece of advice without being asked.

*Ding! Zan Rong/Marina Zan has traveled from her host planet to another world via summoning. If the system gets access to her memories, tracing is possible.

"Technically, my soul also traveled from earth to this world, correct?" Mark pointed out that if he can remember his whole life, then, his soul should also possess the memories that can be used to track the earth.

However, the system had different opinions on this logic.

*Ding! The soul can only possess the memories its physical body experienced, and that too, for a short while. The soul itself doesn't have any memories.

*Ding! The host can only remember his past life because of the system. The system stored all the memories in its database when the host's soul is merged with Lu Zhen's.

eglesnovel "Fine, you are the boss. I will have to make a trip to Helios city anyways. I will unlock Mari's memories using the Eye of Talim and get you access to her brain."

Helios City, Eastern Sun kingdom;

"Your Majesty, for the past few weeks, the members of our specialized unit were operating the warships. It wasn't perfect but I think we can go ahead with their launch on the day of your birth," said Lan Jing, talking about the Kidd-class destroyers they acquired in the auction held by Mark.

Ouyang Zen is going to turn 13 within five days and Lan Jing wanted the day to be remembered by the launch of their super warships that will secure their maritime boundaries against the other neighboring kingdoms. They would also be able to prevent illegal fishing too.

"Okay, you can proceed with the preparations for the launch from the harbor," The teenager gave his nod and further asked, "what about the guests? Is Lu Zhen invited?"

Lan Jing nodded and explained, "Yeah, along with him, we will also be hosting the royal guests too."

King Shen Niu and Princess Shen Ling of Western Moon, the new Dwarven King-Kraggek Jedefury, and Crown Prince Qin Yu of the Kun Empire confirmed their participation.

On the other hand, the Leon Empire only replied that a prince and a minister will attend the lunch but didn't specify which ones."

"Alright." Ouyang Zen turned serious as he said, "But, make sure to keep this in mind. Our priority for this event should be awakening the memories of my sister. Go and personally escort Lu Zhen if you have to. I don't care."

Lan Jing bowed, "I will contact him and make sure that he brings Eye of Talim along with him."

Meanwhile, in Sector 3 of the Bloodhill forest;

In the region filled with 7-circle and 6-circle realm beasts, a bunch of corpses was placed on the ground in an orderly fashion.

The Necromancer King was drawing some ritual circles on a large scale with the blade of his doom scythe. Surprisingly, he was no longer in Exalt realm when he came out of his prison. He was now in the 8-circle realm.

After he was done, he placed the corpses around the larger circle while placing the body of a woman in the middle of the central circle. It was Alina, who looked devilishly beautiful as always as a while ago, the Necromancer King flattened her face using brute force and still managed to restore it to normal later on.

He then raised his scythe and proceeded with the incantations.

"Oh, the Lord of Death, Yan Wang, here is your servant praying you for your blessings and..."

The incantation was a minute long and once it was done, strange dark wisps erupted from the corpses and made their way toward Alina's body.

After entering her body, the dark wisps merged to form a large one before transforming into the shape of a missing hexagonal shaped core. Somehow, all the circuits in her body got activated while dark energy flowed through them.

Alina's eyes were suddenly open and she sat up. She looked at the long-haired man with the staff and kneeled, "Master."

The Necromancer King laughed as he spoke, "Welcome to the world of the living, Alina. But, I don't like your name. As my first subordinate, I will adopt you into our great Xia Dynasty. Hence, from this moment, your name will be Xia Fen."

Alina raised her face to look at him before cupping her fists, "Understood, Master." After a brief pause, she asked, "What are your orders, master?"

The Necromancer King then said, "We are going to get back my peak strength. Also, we are going to need a mount befitting of our status and an army. Follow me..."

Soon, both of them slowly made their way toward Sector-2, which wasn't explored in decades because of the existence of beast kings of the legendary realm (8-circle).

Three days later;

Genesis Weapon store, Imperial City;

Mark was casually reading the newspaper while sitting in a corner as the remaining people handling the customers.

Song Yue was working as the manager of the store, Chang Bo went back to being a normal employee, and the new freeloader who is interested in Mark and doesn't have any job responsibilities just spends her time chatting.

The gold dragon, Jin long, didn't stay with Mark as he felt suffocated in the city atmosphere. Since Mark has no use for the dragon at the moment, he sent him away but made sure to keep an eye on him.

As a result, both of the beast emperors were currently staying at the ruins of Lan Sect, located in the Kunyu Mountain range. But, thanks to Mark's rank-9 stats, their telepathic connection was still active. Even from a couple of hundred kilometers away, they could speak to one another.

As for Shang Jiao, she returned to the academy, making Chang Bo a little sad but thanks to a new friend he made, he didn't miss her as much as he thinks he is.

"This damn idiot... He really made a mess this time." Mark was busy cursing Feng Wu for letting his grand tutor go wild. Because of the latter's actions, the imperial army is rigorously searching the Kunyu mountains while the Ji clan has gained additional security.

The whole second page was completely dedicated to the news from Western Yan. As if it is sponsored by the imperial family, the Kunyu bandits were shown in a bad light in the newspaper.

Their crimes were exaggerated too much and their noble deeds like giving charity to the poor are described as an evil scheme to recruit bandits.

Mark could only let out a sigh of pity and turned the page to look for the market section. "Oh, someone from the inner sector is putting up their store for an auction. It is in a prime location. I can place an office there just for taking orders."

As he was reading the details, a notification bell was heard in his head, followed by the appearance of the holographic screen.

*Ding! The upgrade time is completed. Inspect Allen for details.

"Finally, the ten days of wait is over." Mark closed the newspaper with a pleasant smile and got up from his seat. "Let's go and have a talk with him..."
