Mark wanted to go on a shopping spree to buy the remaining seven basic intelligence pills, spending 3500 credits.

With a total of 10 basic intelligence pills, he could make a breakthrough but he resisted the urge after reading the details of his summons. With the amount of ether energy points that he currently had, he couldn't even summon them.

That's why he felt like his next goal should be absorbing ether crystals and raising his ether energy. Thankfully, for him, he extorted enough money to buy them from the market.

However, he didn't save those credits either. After all, he needs to complete the third side quest and make use of the money that he earned from extortion or selling other items like the corpses of the beasts, traditional weapons, and other miscellaneous items.

"Open system store."

He directly went to the accessory section.

He grinned as he clicked at a silver ring. "I guess it's time to remove my bad luck, once in for all."

*Ding! You purchased Ring of Luck (Silver). 3000 credits have been deducted.

*Ding! You successfully completed Side Quest III. The Currency Exchange panel has been unlocked.

*Ding! You received a new side quest.

Side Quest III: Spend a total of 50000 credits (In progress-0%)

Reward: Statue of Velkazar.

"System, what is this reward? Who is Velkazar?"

*Ding! Velkazar, the personal mount of the wandering god, is the divine dragon that frequently bestows fortunes on its believers. Once a week, pray to the statue of Velkazar and receive one random present, which can be an item, currency, credits, crystals, weapons, skills, etc...

"Oh, that's cool." His eyes lit up in excitement. He didn't understand who this wandering god was or why he had to pray to some monster but either way, he was getting free rewards. That's more than enough for him.

"Now that the exchange panel is opened, it will be easier to complete the quest. I wonder how much the exchange rate will be like. But, before that, let's equip the ring."

Ring of Luck (Bound)

Item Grade: Silver

Description: Upon wearing the ring, your luck stat improves by 2 points.

Skill: Absorb a maximum of 4 points of luck from the target. CD: 12 hours.

Mark took out a ring from the inventory. It was made of silver. He wore it right away on his right index finger. However, the system sent him a notification that had a bad piece of news.

*Ding! Effects of the two accessories of the same type cannot be stacked upon each other. The effect of Ring of Luck (Copper) was nullified.

"Ah, fuck." Mark punched the window in frustration. He expected that he can use both of them and maximize his luck to acquire the rewards from the lottery but now, his plan failed. "Okay, 80% of luck is also not bad." Mark could only hope that he acquire something in the next draw.

*Ding! You dismantled the Copper ring. You receive 5 credits.

Sigh

"I bought it for 500 credits and dismantled it for 5 credits. What a fair exchange." Mark was annoyed by this rule. However, the system also had a befitting reply ready.

*Ding! This is why the host should be careful when buying things. Scams are happening across the world because of ignorance and greed.

Mark, "..."

Letting out another sigh, he thought about opening the exchange system. The result was pretty much to his expectations. 5 gold coins can be exchanged for 1 credit and vice versa.

Mark was tempted to exchange 100k gold for 20k credits but controlled himself and closed the screen.

After a 30-minute flight, Alina landed the helicopter somewhere in the wilderness.

She stepped down and let Mark get onto the pilot seat. It was only then he realized that there was only one seat available in the front.

"Damn, how could I forget about that?" As Mark scolded himself for being an idiot, Alina opened her mouth, "I have a suggestion, Big Brother."

"Hmm?" He looked at her curiously.

Half a minute later, as Alina closed the door, Mark looked at his situation, "I don't think this would work. Fuck, it's so hot, here."

Alina was comfortably sitting on his lap with her body facing the door and her arms around her master, raising the temperature in Mark's body. His ears turned red, feeling her soft skin. He knew that she isn't a human and even got familiar with her presence. However, such physical intimacy is entirely different.

Mark couldn't help but go into wild fantasy for a moment. When he realized it, he hurriedly shook his head and threw the thoughts away while scolding himself.

Not even ten seconds passed, Mark hurriedly stood up from the seat and got down from the helicopter, embarrassedly covering down below. He returned to the back chamber and said on the mic, "There's no need for me to learn how to fly this thing. Either you or Allen can do that for me."

He took out a pot and a glass from his inventory and started to drink water.

Alina tilts her head in confusion. Then, as she connected to his mind through telepathy, realization dawned upon her. "Big Brother, do you want to have sex with me in the vehicle?"

Mark spit the water and started to cough heavily. He couldn't help but scream at her in embarrassment, "Hey, don't spout nonsense. Fly."

"Hmm?" she didn't understand why her master is acting weirdly. Putting the thoughts away, she grabbed the controls and started flying the helicopter. With so much amount of money in his hands, Mark thought that he had enough adventures and decided to return home, skipping the cities of Tinghe and Xinfang.

Genesis store, Hanga District, Imperial City;

Inside the store, there was a customer who handed Allen, 35 gold coins, buying 100 bullets and 1 Semi-automatic gun – P365.

"Thank you for the business. Please come by again." Allen took the money and handed him the box with the goods.

Taking it, the man asked, "I don't see the owner, anywhere. Do you know his whereabouts?"

"I have no idea. All I know is that he's alive." Allen shook his head.

"I see." The man nodded and turned around.

Allen escorted him to the outside. As the man left his sight, Allen let out a sigh, "Big Brother, when are you going to return?"

It's been several days since the abrupt disappearance of Mark. He was missing this one and only master of his. After his rank was upgraded by the upgrade crystals, Allen was going through a phase where he was dealing with a couple of emotions like sadness and happiness.

The only one that can explain him is Mark. As he wasn't available, Allen opened up to Lin Xue quite a bit, taking the initiative to ask a few questions like a child.

Lin Xue was surprised at first but then, felt amusing as the time passed. She no longer looked at Allen like he was only a sparring partner. She even thinks of him as her friend.

It's just a few days but, through Lin Xue's help, Allen no longer answered everything that was asked of him, despite possessing the knowledge. It's not at the stage where he perfectly understood what to say and what shouldn't, in all types of situations. Still, at the present stage, he could fit in any normal human society on his own.

At around 8 o'clock, he closed down the shutter and locked it before starting to run in the streets and jumping on roofs.

Within fifteen minutes, he reached Lin Clan's Mansion. There, he saw Lin Xue was looking at a pocket watch.

"Lady Lin." He greeted her.

"8:17." Lin Xue let out a smile and commented, "It's quite amazing that you managed to come here for the past three days, at the exact same time."

Allen replied with a smile, "Thanks for waiting."

Lin Xue blushed for a second before she turned around to walk toward the dueling platform. "Let's get started."
