

The Heiress' Return: Six Brothers at Her Beck and Call (Wynter Quinnell) Chapter 61-70

The Heiress' Return: Six Brothers at Her Beck and Call (Wynter Quinnell) Chapter 61

Chapter 61 Mr. Yarwood Is Very Interesting

Wynter stood there with a cool look. "Yes, it's cordyceps. When storing cordyceps, we should avoid strong light, and the temperature shouldn't exceed 68 degrees Fahrenheit

"The indoor temperature is now 75.2 degrees Fahrenheit. There are also UV rays. I put it in the bag to protect its medical value. Don't the Gibsons even know this bit of medical knowledge?"

As soon as she explained, there was an uproar.

George was still sneering, "You're talking nonsense."

"George, shut up!" Hilda shouted.

He was stunned, turned to look at her expression, and then looked at the gazes around him. Instantly, he panicked, wondering if what Wynter said was true.

"She is indeed Margaret's apprentice! She is somewhat talented in understanding medicine.

The one who laughed was Howard Young, the elder of the Youngs. He sat in the corner like an ordinary old man, squinting.

At this moment, he told his grandson, Felix, "You should learn from her."

Felix was humble and elegant. "Yes, Grandpa."

Nelson said calmly, "Howard, you're exaggerating. She just played a trick."

“That’s right!” George echoed, “I just didn’t think about that aspect! She took advantage of loopholes!”

Originally, Nelson’s words could help ease the tension.

But George proved his stupidity after adding this sentence. Some people couldn’t help but laugh.

Hilda was so ashamed that she wanted to cover her nephew’s mouth.

He still didn’t react. Hearing the laughter, he became more upset, glaring around. “Who dares to laugh at me!”

“It was me!” Lydia raised her hand coolly.

He froze again. It was one of the Yarwoods. What should he say?

Unexpectedly, she didn’t even look at him but walked past him, approaching Wynter.

“Our purpose for preparing gifts is to make you all enjoy it.”

Lydia’s statement was clear. “But you all didn’t accept it. I thought you all looked down on

1. US.

“Uh...”

Apart from Wynter, everyone wanted to explain.

Lydia stopped them from talking. “It doesn’t matter. Some people like it anyway. I also want to thank this lady for reminding me how to store cordyceps.”

She thought it was a pity that her grandfather wasn't coming downstairs. It would have been great for him to meet such an interesting lady. But who could Grandpa be waiting for?

Wynter was neither humble nor arrogant. "Ms. Yarwood, you're welcome. It's the doctor's instinct."

"Great!" Lydia liked her attitude. "We had two purposes for inviting everyone this time. Firstly for medical exchanges, and secondly for my frail brother."

Upon saying that, she glanced at everyone. "It's getting late, I won't delay all of you. Let's go to the consulting room!"

"What do you mean?" Xavier asked. Did he need to treat patients? He didn't know how to do it!

Lydia tapped on the table. "There are three special patients in the Yarwoods, each with different symptoms. Everyone should head to the second floor to diagnose the patients according to your queue numbers."

"Aren't we here to treat Mr. Yarwood? Why was the patient changed to someone else?"

Charlie frowned.

She glanced at him and said coldly, "Do you think you can meet my brother as easily as you wish?"

Charlie had never felt so deflated before. His expression turned gloomy.

Lydia smiled again. "My brother has always got a good eye for picking doctors. He's a clean freak. And he also likes good-looking people. We appreciate your understanding."

Chapter 65 tared to very lotesting

Wynter raised her eyebrows upon hearing that. The third son of the Yarwoods was indeed Interesting.

Capter 62 Strange Patient

Let's get started!" Lydia raised her hand as a signal to open the manor's inner secret door.

Consulting
rooms appeared one after another in front of everyone. All the doctors needed to treat patients in groups.

Hilda was the first to set off. She couldn't wait to let others know how great the Gibsons were, especially that arrogant girl!

Soon, it became clear that the patients brought by the Yarwoods were indeed difficult to treat. Every group of doctors came out solemnly, having taken an extremely long time to diagnose the patients.

The Gibsons and the Shepherds came out smiling, while Felix found it slightly difficult. But luckily, he still could write a medical prescription.

Many people didn't even understand the patient's symptoms, just whispering when they came out. They looked like candidates who had just finished the exam, confirming the answers.

"What disease does the third patient have?"

"I can't tell. When I asked the patient, he said he had a headache. But his X-rays did not indicate that he had a tumor."

Xavier listened to the conversation, feeling a little scared. "Miss, we'd better not go. Abel and I have bad medical skills."

"Follow me," Wynter said. She picked up her bag and stood up. Her gaze was pure and beautiful.

It was their turn. According to previous rankings, they were the last group. After all, none of them had any medical records, and they were all students who had not graduated.

Xavier held the door frame, refusing to enter. "Miss, I don't know how to treat patients. Why don't find someone else? I...

you

Wynter kicked him in. Seeing that, the Youngs stayed silent. No one would take the three of them seriously.

Knowing medicine didn't mean being able to treat a patient. They believed that she would expose her true colors during consultation.

After all, her grandma had caused a patient to die because she used the wrong medicine.

Moreover, they knew the extent of Abel and Xavier's medical skills.

The two of them only knew how to treat minor illnesses. They probably didn't even know how to diagnose those three patients.

Xavier thought the same. As soon as he entered the consulting room, he was helpless." Miss, treating a patient isn't trivial. Let's look through the medical books first..."

"Pulse blockage due to damp heat." Wynter had already begun to diagnose. While recording, she asked the first patient, "Are you afraid of acupuncture treatment?*

The patient shook his head. Then, she pressed his fingertips with one hand, performing acupuncture and bloodletting with the other.

Before they could react, she quickly retracted the needle and said, "Next."

Xavier and Abel's eyes widened. What surprised them was nothing more than the fact that the patient seemed to be well, and he thanked Wynter energetically.

Xavier turned to look at Abel. "Abel, your friend is a genius!"

Abel was in a daze. "But Mrs. Yates Senior told me that she has no talent. And her qualifications are average..."

"It's only been three minutes. Wynter has already treated two people!"

By then, Wynter had already placed her fingertips on the third patient's wrist.

Through the curtain, the patient kept coughing. But his breath was steady, the pulse was strong, and the cough wasn't abnormal.

Wynter raised her eyebrows, then closed her eyes. She seemed to be thinking but also seemed to want to understand the pulse more clearly.

"You said you have a headache?" Soon, she opened her eyes and looked toward the curtain.

The patient coughed, saying hoarsely, "Yeah, I don't know what's happening. Since last month, my head has been hurting from time to time. The doctor couldn't diagnose it." She smiled, then wrote a few words on the medical diagnosis form without further asking.

Chapter 63 First Place in Medical Consultation

Done." Wynter picked up her bag.

The patient raised his eyebrows. "You've done? Doctor, you haven't asked me what other symptoms I have and whether I have any underlying diseases apart from the headache.

"You didn't even look at my X-rays. It's a bit ridiculous to jump to conclusions."

She put the pen back and smiled lightly. "You're fine, so I don't need to ask further."

But Xavier grabbed her hand and said, "Miss, you only took five minutes. Let's check on him again. Look at other groups. They checked on the first patient for 20 minutes alone!"

"It doesn't matter." Wynter raised her hand coolly, pressing the confirmation doorbell decisively.

People outside the consulting room were still trying to figure out the answer. Seeing the three of them coming out so quickly, they all laughed.

"They were out within such a short time! I bet they did not even discover the cause of the first patient's illness!"

"You can tell the answer by looking at Xavier's expression."

"I saw Abel bring a medical book with him. What's the use of that? Hahaha, they didn't even last ten minutes!"

Seeing that, Hilda and Nelson looked at each other with satisfied expressions.

She even pretended to persuade Howard by saying, "Mr. Young Senior, why are you also making a mistake like the Lopezes? Don't always let your grandson hang out with lower-class people. He won't learn anything good."

He didn't reply, closing his eyes lazily and ignoring what was happening around him.

On the other side, Lydia put down the teacup, taking the note presented by the butler.

Her voice was bright and clear. "Everyone has finished the consultation. I've got the results. Dr. Gibson, please come here."

Hilda stood up, unable to suppress her smile. She even glanced at Wynter as she passed.

1. by.

Wynter was calm, busy sending a message without looking at her.

Xavier couldn't understand. "Miss, why are you still playing with your phone? It's over! We must be in last place!"

She quickly turned off the screen and said playfully, "Really?"

He said anxiously, "Madam Gibson is up!"

"And also the Shepherds." Abel pointed in another direction.

Hilda and Nelson stood beside Lydia. Everyone did not seem surprised by this result and was about to applaud.

But they heard Lydia say, "The Gibsons and the Shepherds have equal medical skills. You two are particularly meticulous in asking about the disease. The first patient experienced damp heat, and the second had an internal disease.

"Both of you have prescribed medical prescriptions correctly. But your medical prescriptions were inaccurate for the third patient, so you two are tied for second place."

Second place?

Hilda's smile froze, and Nelson's expression also darkened. Everyone else was stunned.

Who got the first place if the Gibsons and the Shepherds were second?

“It must be Felix Young!” someone guessed.

But Lydia wasn’t in a hurry to announce first place. Instead, she walked up to Wynter and asked with a smile, “Ms. Quinnell, can you explain the medical prescription you wrote?”

The unfolded note only had a few big words—drink more warm water.

“What kind of medical prescription is this?”

“That’s funny.”

“What did Margaret teach her? She has embarrassed all the doctors!”

Everyone was furious, and Wynter became the target of criticism.

She looked indifferent and didn’t care much, chewing the gum lazily.

Lydia felt helpless toward those aristocratic families in Southdale. She immediately said, “ Forget it. I’d better announce the results. The first place is...”

Chapter 64 Young Lady, You’re Interesting

“Empathy Clinic!”

Lydia looked at Wynter with a smile.

The entire hall fell silent as soon as Lydia announced the result.

Everyone’s eyes widened in disbelief. “First place belongs to Empathy Clinic? How could this be possible?”

Nelson’s expression changed. Hilda couldn’t help but snatch the note away. The first place was indeed Empathy Clinic!

Yvette’s smile faded, wondering how it could be possible that Wynter was good at medicine.

Everyone focused on Wynter, Abel, and Xavier.

As a medical loser, Xavier had never received such attention. He abruptly stopped yawning.

Abel was in a trance. Did they win first place?

Only Wynter was calm.

Hilda couldn't endure losing to an unknown girl in front of everyone. She clenched the note, calming herself down.

"Although I shouldn't ask, I'm curious. I wonder what judging criteria the Yarwoods have used to rank the three of them as first place."

Since the Gibsons have spoken, others also began to have the courage to question the results.

"Yeah, how could the three of them be number one?"

"Xavier is at the bottom of the test results every year! Abel is also a loser! How could they possibly get first place?"

Lydia raised her eyebrows, "It seems that you all don't believe the Yarwoods."

"Of course, we trust the Yarwoods."

Nelson glanced at Wynter. "But no matter how good the competition is, she may take advantage of it. It's better to let her explain her diagnosis, and we'll judge who is more qualified to rank first."

That's right!" George shouted the loudest.

Howard disapproved, saying, "Nelson, don't be a sore loser."

"I have reason to question her."

Nelson showed the medical prescription issued by the Empathy Clinic team. "Drink more warm water? Does this count as treatment?"

For a moment, there was another wave of questioning.

He didn't ask anyone else but Xavier. "Tell me what you were thinking while prescribing this medical prescription."

"..." Xavier hesitated. He wasn't the one who prescribed the medical prescription!

Nelson sneered, "You don't know anything about it."

Right then, Wynter spoke, "He knows nothing because I wrote the medical prescription, and Abel wrote the medical diagnosis form."

Abel was stunned. What did she just say?

“Miss...” He was about to leave, but Wynter pushed him back and smiled slightly.

“Abel, as our team leader, is experienced in medical practice. Within two minutes, he discovered that the third patient was actually pretending to be ill.”

Pretend to be ill? Everyone’s eyes widened!

Someone shouted, “That’s impossible! His body temperature is high! There is also something wrong with his tongue!”

“There are ways to fake body temperature, such as preparing hot water and putting the thermometer in it,” Wynter said slowly.

She continued, “Am I right? Dr. Lopez?”

Abel pointed at himself in puzzlement. Him? A doctor?

She nodded toward him, so he responded in a daze, “Yes.”

Satisfied, she continued, “The patient deliberately concealed his identity, so he did a good job with the medical case’s details. I wouldn’t have noticed it if Dr. Lopez hadn’t reminded me.”

Chapter B Young Ci

Xavier turned to look at Abel and whispered, “Did you remind her?”

Abel replied, “Did you even see me remind her? Weren’t you in there too?”

Xavier nodded. Right, she was the one who was treating the patients.

Their whispers didn’t affect Wynter’s performance. ‘Empathy Clinic won first place because Dr. Lopez was bold and careful during the diagnosis.’

Abel looked stiff. “I...”

“Hahaha!”

The curtain in the consultation room drew open. Leaning on the dragon cane, Theo walked out while speaking in a loud voice, shocking everyone.

“Young lady, you’re so interesting!”

#Claim Bonus For Free Every Day

Chapter 65 Theo Appears

“Grandpa. Lydia stepped forward.

The bodyguards in black lined up in a row and stood on both sides of Theo.

To put up with his act of feigning illness, Theo even had a bandage wrapped around his head. At this time, he removed the bandage and glanced at Wynter meaningfully before facing the crowd.

The Yarwoods had been a formidable family for many generations, which fuelled Theo’s solemn demeanor. Now, as Theo’s gaze swept across the room, everyone instantly became anxious.

“I heard the discussion earlier.”

Then, he stood up straight and announced firmly, “Empathy Clinic is definitely number one.”

Upon Theo’s declaration, no one dared to refute anymore.

Nelson, who had only wanted to ask for Wynter’s medical ideas, became listless.

Hilda smiled stiffly. “We didn’t know that it was you...”

“Apart from these three kids, none of you guessed that it was me,” Theo said indifferently while leaning on his cane.

The embarrassment promptly dawned upon Hilda, but the others were not any better either. They were all feeling so embarrassed that they wanted to bury their heads into the sand.

Who could have thought that the third patient would be Theo, who pretended to be ill? This didn’t fall within the scope of their medical skills!

Hilda began to panic and thought, “No! I can’t let that girl stand out on such an occasion!”

Then, Yvette whispered, “Madam Gibson, you have a rare medicine that can cure all diseases.”

If Yvette hadn’t reminded her, Hilda would have almost forgotten her trump card.

“Mr. Yarwood Senior!” she exclaimed loudly. “I heard that Mr. Yarwood has been ill! I’ve brought the medicine which you’ve been looking for!”

The medicine that the Yarwoods have been looking for? Could it be....

Everyone became excited, and Theo also turned to look at Hilda. He then motioned to his bodyguard to take the Item.

Hilda opened the wooden box she had brought and presented it before Theo.

“It’s the Zenith herb!”

Someone recognized the herb in the wooden box, and now, even Howard looked over with Interest.

“The Gibsons found the Zenith herb?”

Everyone knew that the last time the Zenith herb had appeared was ten years ago. This was a rare herb cultivated by the founder of Heavenly Medical Guild. They had all heard that taking this herb could detoxify and cure all diseases.

It was rumored that a big shot in Kingbourne had suffered from cancer 10 years ago. But he was cured after the Heavenly Medical Guild gave him a Zenith herb.

Even now, the Heavenly Medical Guild only had three Zenith herbs to stabilize their current guild. It was possible to say that the Gibsons were actually powerful enough to get it

.

Not to mention others, even Theo felt slightly excited.

The Yarwoods had been in contact with the Heavenly Medical Guild just to get a Zenith herb. However, the Heavenly Medical Guild replied that they could only obtain it after paying a high price.

The Yarwoods weren’t short of money but time. Theo’s beloved grandson was running out of time, but only few were disclosed to this fact.

Theo stared at the wooden box expressionlessly. “Dr. Gibson, you’re worthy of your renown as a doctor. Tell me your conditions.”

As soon as he said that, everyone became envious. Hilda enjoyed the admiration and pretended to be generous. “I would like to become Mr. Yarwood’s attending physician.”

Dalton's attending physician? Theo stroked the dragon cane in his palm as he pondered . His grandson already had a designated physician—Dr. Genius—and only wanted that doctor to treat him.

But the Gibsons had the Zenith herb.

While Theo was deep in thought, Wynter suddenly sneered. "Madam Gibson, do you need a reminder of where your Zenith herb came from?"

Hilda was tired of dealing with this damn girl, who only kept ruining her plans over and over again.

She smiled and patted Yvette's hand. "Yve, as I expected. Your sister is indeed jealous of

1. us.
2. Chapter 66 She Plants the Zenith Herb
3. yvette bit her lips and shook her head. "It's not Wynter's fault for not being able to accept this. After all, the Yates had a sudden change of hearts."
4. Her words might seem harmless, but she hinted that Wynter was pestering the Yates.
5. Charlie frowned. "Yve, don't be afraid and just say it aloud. She won't be able to bully you
6. since we're here!"
7. "She never bullied me!" Yvette lowered her eyes softly. "She only misunderstood us. The
8. Gibsons and the Yates
9. have a good relationship, so Madam Gibson accepted me as her apprentice. As a token of gratitude, my father gave the Zenith herb to the Gibsons. Then..."
10. Charlie sneered. "Then she came here looking for trouble!"
11. "Charlie, calm down." Hilda pretended to be magnanimous. "It's better to clear up the misunderstanding. Otherwise, others may think that I obtained the Zenith herb through unscrupulous means.
12. Wynter looked at their pretentious
13. act and sneered, "Since when have the Gibsons ever gotten something through proper means?"
14. "Stop talking nonsense!" George was angry. "You're only qualified to talk when you're able
15. to take out a Zenith herb!"
16. Wynter could always get a Zenith herb if she planted it, but there wasn't a need to show it

17. off here.

18. She only smiled and walked up to Hilda. "My grandma gave birth to an ungrateful son who

19. stole her Zenith herb for others. She said to let it go since it was her karma. But I would like

20. to ask the Gibsons on behalf of the patients. Have you ever felt guilty?"

21. "What are you talking about?" George rushed forward and was about to hit Wynter, but the

22. Yarwoods' bodyguard stopped him.

23. "Sir, fighting is prohibited within the Yarwoods' territory."

24. Theo expressionlessly stood at the center of the room in silence.

25. Seeing this, Hilda knew that she could no longer quarrel over trivial matters. If she made

26. the Yarwoods impatient, she wouldn't be able to bear good results.

27. "Mr. Yarwood Senior, I can guarantee that there is nothing wrong with this Zenith herb."

28. She even shamelessly brought Yvette into the scene and said. "This is the herb that my apprentice and I would like to dedicate to Mr. Yarwood's treatment."

29. At this point, everyone could somewhat understand that the Zenith herb originally belonged to Margaret. It must be the Gibsons who managed to get Ewan to snatch it a way

30. for them.

31. However, that was the Yates family's matter. As long as Margaret didn't speak, no one could blame the Gibsons for taking it.

32. After all, Yvette, the biological granddaughter, had come voluntarily. It was useless for Wynter, the fake granddaughter, to help Margaret seek justice.

33. This was how most of the people reacted, but some people disagreed with it.

34. Especially Abel and Xavier, who were pissed off. "Even if that old hag said it nicely, this is considered robbery!"

35. Abel immediately understood Wynter. "Miss, no wonder you acted so stubbornly. It turns out that you did it for Mrs. Yates Senior!"

36. Though that wasn't her entire point, Wynter remained silent and only took a glance at the time on her phone.

37. Xavier shook his head. "This Zenith herb is too rare. The Yarwoods know its value, so they

38. probably wouldn't reject that old hag."

39. That was right. Who could refuse a rare medicine that could cure all diseases? No to

40. mention Mr. Yarwood, who was on the verge of death.

41. After all, survival was a person's instinct. It was the only reason why Hilda could act out so

42. fearlessly.

43. After putting the wooden box down, Hilda approached Wynter and whispered, "Little girl,

44. you

45. should look clearly. The Gibsons have a great family background. What do you have to ave to
46. fight with us?"
47. Chapter 67 Mr. Yarwood's Message
48. Wynter remained silent and chewed her gum while looking at the pendulum clock
.
49. Hilda thought that she was frightened, so she confidently took Yvette's hand and sat back.
50. Yvette didn't know why, but she had a bad feeling churning within. Maybe it was because
51. she would see Mr. Yarwood soon.
52. She glanced at the wooden box. Sure enough, the Zenith herb was the only thing that could
53. bring them close to the Yarwoods.
54. Under everyone's gazes, Theo took the wooden box. People were envious and were about to congratulate Hilda in advance.
55. But they heard him say, "Although the Yarwoods aren't benevolent, we can't take anything we shouldn't. Life and death are determined by fate. The Zenith herb is i ndeed rare, but I
56. can't accept it."
57. What?
58. For a moment, everyone looked at him, including Wynter. She raised her eyebrow s in
59. surprise and observed him meaningfully.
60. Theo put the wooden box back and raised his right hand. Instantly, a few words s uddenly
61. appeared on the wall—I don't want it.
62. It was said that words could resemble people—and the words on the walls were indifferently calm.
63. If Wynter guessed correctly, this should be Mr. Yarwood's reply.
64. As expected, Theo laughed loudly. "It seems that my grandson has the same ans wer as
65. me!"
66. "Mr. Yarwood Senior, this is Zenith herb!" Hilda couldn't sit still. "Do you know ho w many people want it? Doesn't Mr. Yarwood need it?"
67. Theo was leaning on his dragon cane. Before he made his decision, he had felt tr oubled.
68. On one hand, he wanted to cure his most beloved grandson; on the other hand, he needed, to do things ethically. Either on e was difficult for him to choose.
69. But now that he had made a decision, he felt relieved. "He has his destiny."
70. Hilde was dumbfounded since she had never expected this result. Logically spea king, as long as she offered the Zenith herb, the Yarwoods would treat her as a d istinguished guest.
71. But Theo rejected the herb just because it had an "unknown origin"!

72. She took a deep breath. The surrounding gazes were like multiple slaps silently hitting her

73. face.

74. "Mr. Yarwood Senior..."

75. George had more to say but was interrupted by Hilda's laugh. "That's fine. I understand that the Yarwoods have rules. Since it inconveniences the Yarwoods to accept it, I'll keep it in

76. case of emergency."

77. With that said, she turned to Yvette and asked, "Yve, what do you think?"

78. "The Zenith herb is a rare life—saving medicine. Its value will be even greater in your hands."

79. Yvette knew she had to stand with Hilda at this time. "Mr. Yarwood's disease can also be treated with other methods, such as the medicine you developed overseas."

80. As soon as she said that, the Gibsons became the audience's focus again. Right! That was Zenith herb. Just because the Yarwoods didn't want it, it didn't mean that the others didn't!

81. Even the Heavenly Medical Guild might let the Gibsons rejoin the guild if they found out

82. about this news.

83. Moreover, Hilda still had many new medicines under development. It would only be a

84. matter of time to cure Mr. Yarwood.

85. "As expected, the Gibsons are too awesome!"

86. "Compared to people who only know how to be jealous, it's better to be like Dr. Gibson, who's been doing research and development. She has saved countless cancer patients!"

87. "That's right!"

88. As they spoke, they glanced at Wynter meaningfully, but she didn't spare her attention on any of them. A minute later, she looked at her watch with a slight smile and silently

89. counted the time.

90. "3, 2, 1. Time's up."

91. Hilda and George were enjoying everyone's admiration, and no one cared about the "fake daughter" in the corner.

92. Chapter 68 The Gibsons Are Doomed

93. While everyone fawned over the Gibsons, a group of people barged into the Inner hall.

94. Plain—clothed police officers suddenly appeared, as if they were performing some sort of special mission. As soon as they rushed in, they pressed Hilda and George to the ground.

95. Their movements were fast, sharp, and fierce.

96. George was shouting, "Who are you? How dare you do this to us..."

97. The leader showed his ID. "We're the Special Operations Team!"

98. Special Operations Team?

99. Everyone was shocked. Why did the Special Operations Team show up here?

100. Theo raised his eyebrows but remained silent as he watched the scene.

101. Wynter didn't move; she was still standing in the shadows where the surveillance couldn't capture her. She chewed on her gum and carried her bag like a naïve girl.

102. George wanted to get up. "I don't care who you are! Do you know who is behind the

103. Gibsons?"

104. The plain-clothed police officers pushed him back to the ground heavily.

105. Hilda turned pale and explained in a hurry, "It's a misunderstanding! Sir, I have Gerard 106. Carter's phone number! We..."

107. "City Bureau Secretary Gerard Carter has pleaded guilty."

108. The police interrupted her, "The Gibsons despise human life. You used your position to sell organs, carry out bribes, and deceive patients who shouldn't have to undergo surgery for heart resections! You also committed crimes such as academic fraud, framing colleagues, and marketing to recruit apprentices! With all these, I only feel that I'm arresting you a little

109. too late! Take them all away!"

110. "He has pleaded guilty?" Hilda was stunned for a moment. She was in a crawling position and her hair was messy when she shouted hysterically, "No! I don't believe that Mr. Carter would plead guilty!"

111. The arrogance she once had before was immediately replaced by embarrassment.

112. George was so frightened that he peed. "Aunt Hilda! What should we do? They're serious!"

113. Other aristocratic families were already confused.

114. The police no longer wanted to look at them. With a gestured signal, the Gibsons, headed by Hilda, were dragged out together.

115. Yvette, who stood beside Hilda, also suffered from the setbacks and was dragged out of the Inner hall. If Charlie hadn't explained the matter to the police, she would have been arrested and Interrogated instead.

116. The atmosphere in the manor had changed. No one was thinking about the medical consultation and panicked.

117. Nelson was afraid the Gibsons would affect him. So, he kept shaking his head when the plain-clothed police officers asked him a few questions.

118. The Gibsons' incident was like a bomb that shook the entire medical field, especially the aristocratic families who dared not to speak anymore.

119. Some of the people who didn't have higher family backgrounds whispered to each other.

120. "Did the Gibsons really perform random surgeries to make money?"

121. "Maybe it's a misunderstanding."

122. "It's not a misunderstanding! Look at your phone!"
123. Someone posted a video. In 10 minutes, the video was spread throughout Southdale.
124. The video wasn't only playing in shopping malls and hospitals but also in the Yarwoods' territory. Someone had invaded the inner hall of the manor and played the video on the wall.
125. wall.
126. In the video, an old man cried and begged, "Dr. Gibson, one million for surgery fees is too high. I really can't afford it."
127. Then, the camera panned to Hilda. She didn't even raise her head. "If you can't afford it, just wait to die! You don't need to cry with me! Sir, what is more important? Money or life?"
128. The old man wiped his tears away. "Dr. Gibson, is there no other way? Must I really undergo surgery?"
129. surgery?"
130. Chapter 69 Rush to the Trending Topic
131. Hilde waved impatiently. "Yes, surgery is the only way. You can ask the other doctors If you don't believe me. Don't come to me anymore! Next!"
132. The old man panicked. "Dr. Gibson, I was wrong! You're the expert in this field. About my disease..."
133. disease...
134. The video ended at this point, and another video was released.
135. On the screen, Hilda sneered. "Poor people from the village are always so troublesome!"
136. A trainee doctor said, "Dr. Gibson, this isn't right. He only has a benign small cyst. We can first..."
137. first...
138. Hilda wore a sinister expression. "Who is the director here? Is it me or you?"
139. Two days later, the hospital fired the trainee doctor, and he never appeared again.
140. In the same month, Hilda announced that the trainee doctor created a medical accident under her supervision. She suggested that other hospitals shouldn't hire him and that the university shouldn't issue him a certificate.
141. The trainee doctor was banned, and he was also in the video. As soon as he took off his medical mask, the camera captured the scars at the corner of his eye.
142. medical mask, the camera captured the scars at the corner of his eye.
143. "I originally thought that this matter would be suppressed forever. Back then, I tried writing a report letter, but it didn't work. The Gibsons' are too influential in Southdale, and Hilda is also my mentor, so I thought of leaving this matter alone.
144. "But I came from a small town and studied medicine. I once asked myself. What was my purpose to study medicine? Is it just to get the medical qualification certificate and find a decent job?"

145. Then, the trainee doctor shook his head. Tears streamed down his ruined face, but his eyes
146. were unusually bright.
147. “No, I want to save people. I want to save people like me, who come from ordinary backgrounds without medical knowledge. I still remember what I once wore—
I volunteer to devote myself to the cause of human health, consciously safeguard the dignity and sanctity of medicine, respect life, save lives, and heal the wounded.
148. The last paragraph was an oath that every Cascadia doctor knew.
149. After the scarred trainee doctor read that, everyone felt moved.
150. It included the women who danced in the square, the pregnant mothers who underwent prenatal check-ups, and all the doctors in the manor.
151. Before the video ended, the screen changed. It was Hilda again. She sneered. “How dare a student with no background fight with me! He doesn’t even know how to respect his mentor!”
152. Someone echoed, “Madam Gibson, you’re right. He’s too ignorant.”
153. She took off her medical mask and said, “This surgery is done. Keep an eye on him, and don’t let him bleed. Poor people are indeed easy to fool—they don’t understand anything. Arrange the next surgery for me as soon as possible. I have to do more surgeries this month. It’ll be great help to my professional title.”
154. Soon, the video changed again.
155. The old man, who had undergone an unnecessary surgery, was unable to get out of bed for the rest of his life.
156. The video ended with one sentence.
157. “Luck never seems to favor the poor. How can the Gibsons repay their lives!”
158. Almost as soon as the video finished playing, it became a trending topic on all major platforms.
159. All platforms, even the news, had this video playing. Some people spent a lot of money to suppress the trending topic but to no avail.
160. In addition to Southdale, people in other cities were also discussing this topic.
161. When it reached a certain level of popularity, it became a matter of people’s livelihood
162. Who would dare save the Gibsons? No one!
163. The Gibsons were at the center of criticism. Those who had good relations with them were now eager to cut ties with them.
164. Arthur made numerous calls to ask for help, but no one answered. There was only one

168. reply that he received.
169. The meaning of the other party was unclear. "Get ready for the loss."
170. Then, he never got any clue again.
171. Chapter 70 Good and Evil Deeds Are Rewarded
172. The people who weren't in the video were hiding away. While the people appearing in the video had already been controlled by the Special Operations Team in advance.
173. It took the Special Operations Team three days before deciding to take action in the Yarwoods' private residence.
174. The Yarwoods' seminar was undoubtedly the best choice to catch the criminals to avoid protection and leaking information.
175. The Special Operations Team arrived so quickly that no one knew how they uncovered the evidence against the Gibsons.
176. No one knew who posted the video that went viral on the internet as well. Even the Special Operations Team was investigating who did it.
177. In the manor, the leader of the Special Operations Team walked toward Theo. "The incident happened suddenly. I hope that you can forgive our intrusion."
178. He smiled. "It doesn't matter since you're here to eliminate harm. You're doing a great job."
179. The leader shook his head helplessly. "I didn't expect that such a crime would happen in Southdale. They're disregarding human life!"
180. Theo glanced at all the aristocratic families in the hall. "It's indeed scary."
181. The leader spoke respectfully, "You're well-informed and have numerous achievements. Is there anything that scares you?"
182. "An unkind doctor is a nightmare for patients and their families." Theo's momentum was
183. unabated.
184. The leader seemed to be thinking of Dalton and paused briefly before whispering cryptically, "Mr. Yarwood Senior, you'd better hold this seminar another day. Southdale's
185. troubles aren't over yet.
186. Theo understood in an instant and remained calm.
187. The Special Operations Team left just as quickly as they came. Only after the plain-clothed police officers had left did the people in the hall dare to speak out.
188. "The Gibsons are so cruel!"
189. There are old people, women, and children | They deceived everyone! Those are human
190. lives!"
191. The anger slowly tumbled out and grew as it did.
192. The online revelations about the Gibsons hadn't stopped.
193. Someone in the hall asked, "Dr. Shepherd, don't the Shepherds have the best relationship with the Gibsons? Do you know about this?"
194. Charlie turned into a coward with no grace. "How could I possibly know? The president of the Traditional Medicine Hospital is the Lopezes!"

195. Abel felt unpleasant. "Yes, my grandpa is indeed the president, but the board of directors is the Shepherds!"
196. He added heroically. "The Lopezes will never do such a heartless matter, let alone provide cover! We can withstand investigation. How about you?"
197. "Enough," Nelson spoke as an elder and intended to smooth the matter over. "Since the Gibsons did something wrong, the police will investigate it. Stop arguing."
198. With such a commotion, there was no way for the medical consultation to continue, and everyone went back. After all, the Gibsons' incident had brought too much turmoil to them.
199. The aristocratic families looked at each other, and the doctors without a high family background also thought deeply.
200. At this time, Wynter, who stood in the shadows, walked out. She stood next to Abel and looked sassy and beautiful.
201. No one would associate this earth-shattering event with the Yates' fake daughter.
202. Theo seemed to be in deep thoughts. Then, he finally said with a smile, "You have all seen the situation. Since it's unsuitable to do a medical consultation today, we'll continue the seminar another day."
203. Indeed, no one was in the mood to treat
204. anyone a
205. The Shepherds were deeply troubled and left in a worry. Let alone the others, who also
206. dispersed in a hurry.
207. They were all studying medicine, so they were more or less involved with the Gibsons.
208. Some were the Gibsons' outstanding apprentices, while others were the same as Yvette-
209. Chapter 70 Good and Evil Deeds Are Rewarded
210. had just become the Gibsons' apprentices.
211. They all felt a chill to see that the Gibsons were doomed and wondered who it was that dealt with the Gibsons. That person must have no fear of the Kingbourne's forces.