

Chapter 513 The Intention To Tell The Truth

Melissa felt uneasy as she looked at Mercer's teary eyes. She considered just telling him the truth now. But she wasn't sure why her mother left the Carter family all those years ago, and she had no idea who had hurt her.

Melissa pushed back the intention to tell him who she truly was, and fixed her voice into a calm tone. "Where is your sister, Mr. Carter? I'd love to meet the person who I apparently resemble so strongly."

"You don't know her? Who's your mother?" Mercer asked.

Melissa smiled politely. "My parents are abroad, which you can see in my file."

Mercer stood, rigid, his hands trembling as they hung listlessly by his sides. It seemed that he was not satisfied with Melissa's answer, so he reworded his question. "Abroad? Were you adopted?"

Melissa looked at him, flashing a kind smile. "Mr. Carter, it sounds like you're trying to say that my parents are not my biological ones."

He was suddenly aware of how abrupt his question was, realizing that he was too rash. "Of course not. Don't get me wrong. I just think you look so much like my sister."

"I see. Where is your sister now?"

Mercer sighed, sitting down and looking off somewhere distant, pain in his tone. "My sister left our family many years ago. I don't know where she is now, but I feel like she's hiding from us. As if she's unhappy about what has happened in the past."

Mercer lowered his head as he spoke. He seemed to really care about his long-lost sister.

Melissa was moved, but she knew she couldn't reveal her true identity to him. She had just entered the Carter family's residence, and she couldn't blow her cover now. Even if Mercer had made a good impression, she couldn't afford to be less vigilant for his kindness.

"I forgot to introduce myself. My name is Melly Sherman. I'm the new doctor Mrs. Carter hired."

Mercer seemed to have known that Joyce had hired a new doctor, and he looked at Melissa with appreciation in his eyes. "You don't know how picky the old lady is. She interviewed so many doctors, but she refused to pick one. You're the only one qualified in her eyes. So, you must work very hard in the future."

"Of course. I won't let her down."

At this moment, a sharp voice echoed from upstairs. "Mercer, what do you think of this dress? Will my mother laugh at me if I wear this to her house?"

Melissa and Mercer looked up at the same time at the gorgeously dressed young woman that headed elegantly down the stairs.

An impatient look appeared on Mercer's face as he saw her. "It's fine. You know that you look fantastic no matter what you wear."

"You didn't even get a proper look just now." The woman touched the headwear on her head, her eyes suddenly landing on Melissa. Her tone was unfriendly as she squinted at the woman in front of her. "Who are you?"

Melissa was already annoyed by this rude woman, but she wasn't at home and couldn't afford to make an enemy now, so she put on a polite demeanor. "Hello, ma'am. I'm the new doctor Mrs. Carter hired."

"New doctor?" The woman looked to Melissa with wonder, as if she just discovered a new planet.
