

Chapter 548 Visit Leilany

"Of course. You're the bravest and most intelligent girl I've seen." Melissa's eyes went to the gauze on Mona's body, and she added, "However, you shouldn't be thinking about anything these days. The most important thing is that you take care of yourself."

"Okay." Mona nodded and then added hesitantly, "Can you please not let my parents know I'm at the hospital? They don't agree with me being a bodyguard. If they find out I got injured, their objections would definitely increase."

Melissa nodded. "Okay, I won't let them know. However, you have to promise me that you would drop this job after you recover."

Mona's eyes widened in surprise and she stared at her in disbelief. "Why? Do you think me too incapable to be a bodyguard?"

"Not at all. You are the best I've ever seen. You are in no way inferior to all those tall, hefty men. You have more bravery than them and are well suited for this job."

Mona breathed a sigh of relief when she heard this.

"Still, you're a girl. You have to be extra careful outside. If something really bad had happened to you, take this instance for example, haven't you considered how sad your family would be?"

Since Melissa had returned home to her two children, she came to the realization that being alive was a wonderful gift. It was only that way she could be with her family. Losing her life would mean losing the ones most important to her.

Mona bent her head. Of course, she cared about her family, but she was also passionate about this job. She struggled to balance family and career. Her parents didn't even know she was working as a bodyguard now.

"I transferred a sum of money to you already. You can open a boxing club if you still like it. That way, you'd be able to do what you love and not be in danger," Melissa said.

Mona's eyes nearly fell out of their sockets when she heard this. It had always been her dream to open a boxing club. She just never had enough money. Her lips trembled as she said, "The remuneration for what I did doesn't make up enough for me to open a boxing club. You..."

"You saved my life and protected such an important item. You deserve the money. Don't refuse me," Melissa insisted.

Mona's eyes pooled with tears. "Thank you. I promise to repay you when I have enough."

"You don't have to. Just run your boxing club properly for a year, and then you can give me some dividends. How about that?"

Mona wiped her eyes and nodded. "Okay, I will give you half of everything I make."

Melissa smiled. "You're bad at doing business. If you give me half, how would you be able to make enough? I'm not in need of money."

Mona bent her head, smiling shyly. Melissa smiled as well.

After exiting Mona's ward, Melissa headed to the department of cerebral surgery. She had been told Leilany had woken up, so she wanted to go see her.

She got to the door of Leilany's ward and was stopped by a nurse.

"You want to visit the patient inside?"

"Yes, I'm friends with her. How is she now?"
