

Chapter 636 Have A Wedding

Everett's sudden actions left Melissa startled as she watched him disappear into the river.

Fear gripped her. What if something happened to him?

From the riverbank, Melissa scanned the water anxiously, trying to spot Everett. How could he have been so impulsive, plunging into the river like that?

Just as she was berating herself for not stopping him earlier, she caught sight of Everett emerging on the opposite side of the river.

At this point, Everett had made it to a landing area on the opposite side.

"What are you doing?" Melissa called out.

In response, Everett wordlessly picked up a branch and hung his clothes from the tree.

Understanding dawned on Melissa. He was creating a signal to aid their discovery.

"Well, are you sure this will work?"

Everett shook his head. "I can't be certain. But it should increase our chances of being found."

They had run out of alternatives.

"But what if you catch a cold without your clothes?"

Night was fast approaching, bringing with it the chill of the wind and the surrounding water. Surely he would catch a cold.

"It's fine. I can handle it."

Everett smiled reassuringly at Melissa.

At that moment, she felt a pang of sympathy for him.

He had rushed to her aid when he heard of her accident.

Now, in an effort to expedite their rescue, he was enduring both hunger and cold.

Melissa felt a mixture of gratitude and concern for his wellbeing.

"Please stay there. Don't jump into the water again. It's too risky."

Worried that Everett might vanish into the water again, Melissa warned him.

Seeing Melissa's concern, Everett grinned and asked teasingly, "Are you worried about me?"

"Of course, you're risking everything to save me."

"Then can you promise me one thing?"

Taken aback, Melissa found it odd. Everett usually commanded her without seeking her opinion.

However, considering that he had risked his life to save her, even nearly dying in the river, she figured it would be fair to fulfill a request of his.

"Just say it. As long as it's reasonable, I will do it."

"Once we get back, let's have a wedding. I want everyone to know that you're my wife."

Melissa was surprised by Everett's proposal.

"But don't you dislike having your personal life made public?"

"It depends. If it's about you, I'd be happy to share it with everyone."

Everett's words warmed Melissa's heart.

Moreover, she realized how much she cared for the man in front of her.

When Everett had fallen into the river earlier, her thoughts were consumed by concern for him and their two children.

In truth, Everett had long secured a special place in her heart.

But she had never admitted it.

"Okay, we'll hold the wedding when we get back," Melissa agreed.

"Still no word?"

Leo paced anxiously.

He hadn't expected Everett to fall into the water during the search for Melissa.
