

Chapter 1315 The Sea Of Laws

After gaining level four clearance, Liam discovered an intriguing new feature in his permissions: the Sea of Laws!

Driven by curiosity, Liam clicked on the "Sea of Laws" for more information.

"The Sea of Laws is a distinct training place infused with law power, crafted by the Network of Human Sovereign. Each law power within this place is genuine and diverse, ripe with possibilities. Access to the Sea of Laws demands points; either task points or special points may be used. The cost is 100 points per day."

At first, Liam was taken aback, but soon, his expression transformed into one of sheer delight.

The Sea of Laws turned out to be full of law power!

Training in this place promised to deepen his understanding of law power significantly. Moreover, advancement beyond the Primogem Expert level relied heavily on grasping law power. In essence, mastering law power meant boosting his own power.

Liam was filled with joy and excitement. Because he knew what he needed the most now was to bolster his own power swiftly. His short-term goal was to achieve level five clearance and attain the prowess of a Primogem King.

With determination, Liam spent 1,000 special points for ten days of intensive training within the Sea of Laws.

Upon confirming his training duration, a "10" appearing next to the Sea of Laws option, Liam blinked in eager anticipation.

He then located a secluded training chamber, calmed his body and mind, and entered the Sea of Laws.

Stepping into the Sea of Laws felt like navigating through a cosmic black hole—an utterly surreal experience.

Soon, Liam's spiritual power appeared in the Sea of Laws.

Surrounding him were different kinds of law power.

These different kinds of law power were all compressed into orbs by a special force. And Liam stood directly before these orbs.

Despite their small size, comparable to fingertips, Liam sensed immense and terrifying energy radiating from the orbs of law power.

Just as Liam was preparing to delve into comprehending the law power, a message from the Network of Human Sovereign echoed in his mind.

"Trainer, your level four clearance only affords you level four privileges. You may select an option that decelerates time to one-tenth its usual pace in the outside world. With this setting, ten days within the Sea of Laws will equate to merely one day outside. This service incurs a charge of 100 points daily. It is the same total cost as the regular option, so there's no need to worry."

Liam quickly grasped the meaning of the message, recalling a similar training facility provided by Lancy before where time moved significantly slower than in the outside world.

Though the total cost remained the same, this option effectively multiplied his cultivation time by ten, enabling him to achieve far more during this time.

Thus, Liam was swayed.

He chose to use this option and then activated his level four privileges.

Chapter 1316 Astron Family's Action

In the Sea of Laws, Liam sat cross-legged with his eyes closed for a long time.

Throughout this time, a continuous flow of law power washed over him, strengthening his body incrementally.

This time, Liam focused on enhancing his mastery of his law power of the light element and the five elements.

He did not consider enhancing his law power of the earth element in the Sea of Laws as he was already adept in it and could achieve 4% command at any moment.

Liam's strategy was straightforward: he aimed to convert all his special powers into law power, significantly boosting his strength. This transformation would ensure he was no longer at a disadvantage when confronting formidable opponents.

Bathed in the sea of potent law power, Liam felt the elemental special powers within his body gradually transform.

He could feel his special powers strengthen incrementally; influenced by the Sea of Laws, they coalesced into a new, potent mass of law power.

As this new law power formed, Liam sensed a steady increase in his strength.

This progress reaffirmed his belief that striving to reach level four clearance was the correct decision.

Achieving level four swiftly would also expedite his progress in training.

In the Astron family, within the No. 75 planetary system.

Tom Astron, the family patriarch, was seething with rage.

He had received the secret message from his youngest son, Jason.

Upon learning that Jason had been killed in the No. 76 planetary system, he was overwhelmed with fury, nearly losing his mind.

Though Jason was known for his arrogance and domineering personality, he was Tom's youngest and favorite son. Tom would do anything for him!

Now, with his beloved son gone, Tom struggled to come to terms with the reality.

Tom promptly convened an internal family meeting.

Once all the senior members of the Astron family had gathered, Tom unveiled a portrait of Liam and declared in a grave tone, "Jason has been killed!"

This revelation sparked an immediate discussion among the senior members of the family.

Aware of Tom's love for his youngest son, they anticipated a swift investigation into Jason's killer.

As expected, Tom soon pointed to the portrait of Liam and declared, "This is the man responsible for Jason's death! Find him at all costs, even if it means turning the No.75 planetary system upside down!"

The Astron family, a third-tier clan, held limited influence in the Rosefinch Galaxy, commanding respect solely within the No. 75 planetary system.

Therefore, the Astron family was unaware that Liam had defeated Chad multiple times in battle. Tom and the other senior members of the family were also unaware that Liam was the genius currently sparking widespread discussion throughout the Rosefinch Galaxy.

Following Tom's directive, the family's senior leaders eagerly responded, each trying to appease Tom.

"This bastard had the audacity to kill Jason. He has sealed his fate. We will not rest until he is torn into pieces!"

"Don't worry. We will find this man by any means necessary!"

Chapter 1317 One Last Try

Within the Sea of Laws, Liam remained oblivious to the fact that Tom Astron, the head of the Astron family, had placed a bounty on him.

Right now, Liam was deeply immersed in understanding the intricacies of law power.

He was on his tenth day within the Sea of Laws.

Liam was beginning to grasp the law power of the five elements, which involved the complex integration of the five elements. Mastering this power was as daunting as reaching for the stars.

Liam had not even gotten to the basic level of comprehending the law power of the five elements.

The law power of the light element presented even greater challenges due to its inherent obscurity and complexity. Transforming the special power of the light element into usable law power was proving to be a strenuous effort.

So far, Liam had only managed to establish a precarious foundation for the law power of the light element.

His advancement in the law power of the light element lagged even further behind his progress with the law power of the five elements.

Despite these setbacks, Liam remained determined. Giving up now would mean never mastering these law powers.

However, even though he persisted, he still couldn't fully comprehend either of these law powers.

As his time in the Sea of Laws drew to a close, Liam had to leave.

He sat in his training chamber, reflecting on his experiences and the lessons learned during his time in the Sea of Laws.

His dissatisfaction with his training this time was palpable.

Having spent ten days and 1,000 special points in the Sea of Laws, he had hoped for significant advancements. Yet, he had not reached even the initial stages of mastering the law powers of the five elements and the light element.

This failure was difficult for Liam to accept.

Nevertheless, he soon came to terms with the reality.

He understood the inherent complexity of the law power of the five elements. It was a synergy of five distinct elemental special powers, which naturally made it a formidable challenge.

Besides, the special power of the light element had been the most difficult to master from the start, which made turning it into law power more difficult. Hence, it was understandable that he couldn't succeed now.

Liam was aware that the greater the challenge in understanding these law powers, the more profound his advancements would be once he achieved even minor mastery.

Reflecting on this, Liam wondered whether he should return to the Sea of Laws to further his understanding of the law power. Even a 1% comprehension could significantly boost his strength.

After checking his remaining points and finding he still had plenty, his determination solidified.

Liam decided to invest another 1,000 special points for ten additional days of training in the Sea of Laws.

He murmured to himself, "I'll give it one last try. If I still can't grasp these law powers, I'll take a break from this for a while."

Liam recognized that if he couldn't grasp the basics of these law powers after two attempts, it indicated his understanding of the law powers was still inadequate.

In that case, even extending his seclusion for several more days would likely not yield the mastery he sought.

Chapter 1318 Seeing Everett Again

Time passed swiftly, and once again, Liam's training session in the Sea of Laws concluded.

Emerging from seclusion, Liam's expression was grave.

His progress was less than he had hoped.

He had not advanced in comprehending the law power of the light element.

Fortunately, he had started to understand the basics of the law power of the five elements. While his mastery was not close to 1%, it was a promising beginning.

With this foundational knowledge, Liam knew he could continue to develop his understanding of the law power of the five elements on his own, without the need for the Sea of Law's assistance.

After leaving the Sea of Laws, Liam felt his spiritual power returning to his body.

He sighed, muttering, "The law power is more complex than I anticipated. Mastering the law powers of the five elements and the light element will be a lengthy and challenging journey."

Setting aside his frustration, Liam shifted his focus to upcoming opportunities.

"The monthly arena task has reset. It's time I participated."

Liam believed that accruing enough task points to achieve level five clearance was essential now.

Having made his decision, Liam stepped out of the training chamber.

As he was about to make his way to the Human Sovereign Arena to register, a vaguely familiar voice called out behind him.

"Liam? I finally found you!"

Turning in surprise, Liam recognized the person approaching him.

It was Everett, who had been ousted in the first round of the arena task Liam had participated in.

The sight of Everett brought Chad to Liam's mind.

Recalling the past, Liam remembered Everett had been more boastful than Chad, declaring he would eliminate Liam at the outset.

However, despite his earlier defeat, Everett wasn't bitter. He admired Liam and had expressed a desire to befriend him.

Liam thought that Everett sought a rematch.

He said, "Mr. Burke, if you want to spar, we can have a match at the Human Sovereign Arena."

Everett's expression stiffened momentarily before he responded, "What's the point of that? Facing a powerhouse like you in a spar? It's hardly fair for me. You would just defeat me."

Liam was somewhat taken aback.

Everett had previously displayed considerable arrogance. Liam hadn't expected him to be like this now.

Everett then clapped an arm around Liam's shoulder and chuckled. "Ever since you gave me that beating... I've wanted to be your friend. I heard that Chad has already become your friend, so I can't fall behind. From now on, just call me by my first name. No need for formalities; we're friends now."

Curious, Liam asked, "Alright, Everett, how old are you?"

Everett responded with a hint of pride, "I'm 136 years old and currently at the seventh stage of the Primogem King level. Not many could reach this stage in the Rosefinch Galaxy. What about you, Liam?"

Liam hesitated to answer, not wanting to undermine Everett's pride, but Everett pressed for an answer.

Eventually, Liam replied, "I'm 28 this year."

Shock instantly registered on Everett's face.

He reached out to grasp Liam's wrist, gauging his power level, and found that Liam was already a third-stage Primogem Expert.

Everett's astonishment grew, his face betraying a mix of regret and envy as he murmured, "I shouldn't have asked."

He was clearly feeling defeated.