

Chapter 1353 Accepting The Mission

"Special Mission: Exterminate the Titan Bugs. The Titan Bugs, an invasive alien species, have fortified themselves within the cosmic wormhole at the boundary of the Rosefinch Galaxy in recent years, posing a threat to the Human Clan. Mission participants are required to journey to the Titan Bugs' stronghold via the mission teleportation array."

"Mission Objective: eliminate every Titan Bug and eradicate its entire clan."

"Mission Rewards: performance and the number of Titan Bugs eliminated will be evaluated, and rewards will be allocated accordingly."

"Caution: participants should be aware of the risks involved in this mission."

After reading the final caution in the mission briefing, Liam was unsurprised.

He recognized that missions from the fourth level onward inherently involved certain dangers.

For example, the Titan Bugs' stronghold for this special mission was fraught with danger.

Less experienced participants might not only fail the mission but could also potentially lose their lives.

But Liam was confident in his ability to protect himself during the mission.

Decisively, Liam accepted the mission.

He then traveled to the mission site through the special mission's teleportation array.

The Titan Bugs's stronghold was located in the cosmic wormhole on the edge of the Rosefinch Galaxy, far from the main city where Liam resided. The teleportation journey took nearly an hour.

After a disorienting transition, Liam arrived at the Titan Bugs 'stronghold.

Stepping onto solid ground, he scanned the area.

The site was crowded with practitioners whose strengths varied significantly, from first-stage Primogem Experts to formidable Primogem Kings, presenting a complex dynamic.

Liam observed the lower-stage Primogem Experts and felt a sense of disapproval coming from him. He had been looked down upon before because of his weak strength. Now, he had become the one looking down on weak people.

He recognized the considerable risks these less experienced practitioners faced by participating in such a mission.

At that moment, the crowd was gathered, strategizing on how to deal with the Titan Bugs.

Liam approached and listened quietly to the discussion.

He was not very familiar with the Titan Bugs and was eager to learn about their traits before engaging with them.

"I've heard that the Titan Bugs excel in manipulating elemental powers to attack their enemies."

"The Titan Bugs are particularly skilled with the special power of the wind element and the earth element. Combined with their formidable defensive capabilities, they are tough opponents!"

"This special mission didn't specify the exact strength of the Titan Bugs, which complicates things a bit!"

"Why not form a team? Since none of us feel confident about completing this mission alone, teaming up could maximize our chances."

"Indeed! Forming a team seems like the best strategy to take down the Titan Bugs' stronghold."

"Alright! Count me in!"

The crowd was energized, discussing strategies and forming teams.

Liam, however, didn't plan to join a team. He was accustomed to handling challenges solo.

Now equipped with a better understanding of the Titan Bugs' characteristics, Liam didn't waste any more time. He moved forward, intent on penetrating deeper into the stronghold.

After just taking a few steps, Liam caught sight of two familiar figures.

The two people also recognized Liam. One of them smiled and quickly approached Liam, saying, "Liam, it's been a long time since we last met!"
