

Chapter 1364 Liam's Progress

After eradicating the army of Titan Bugs, Liam paused to scan the cave.

The cave was now enveloped in a dense cloud of negative energy, a residual aura of resentment from the Titan Bugs he had cursed and slain.

While this would be daunting to most, Liam found it pleasantly surprising.

These negative emotions were rare and precious to him.

They served as vital nourishment for his sword of darkness.

Shiloh and his sister avoided this negative energy.

Liam raised his sword of darkness, allowing it to soak up all the negative energy in the cave.

The sword of darkness grew stronger and sharper as it absorbed the energy.

With an abundance of negative energy present, Liam placed the sword down to let it continue absorbing the energy.

He then checked his own condition to assess how much his primogem energy and spiritual power had been drained from using the "Fatal Hex" ability.

To his satisfaction, he discovered that the physical toll was negligible, with his primogem energy level still at its peak.

Although his spiritual power had slightly decreased, it was not enough to fatigue him.

This realization excited him. He muttered to himself, "It appears that using the Death Power's 'Fatal Hex' primarily drains my spiritual power. And this drain is comfortably within my limits. Based on my current level of spiritual power, I could use 'Fatal Hex' three times consecutively without any problems!"

He knew the more enemies he used the Fatal Hex on, the greater the drain on his spiritual power would be.

Nevertheless, he was content with this formidable ability.

In the back of the cave, Shiloh and Trudy were visibly shaken, staring at the mound of corpses.

Trudy, looking particularly pale, trembled in a corner as if fearful that Liam might seek retribution for past grievances.

Noticing Trudy's discomfort, Liam offered a reassuring smile and said, "Don't worry; I've never held onto past grievances. Let's forget those unpleasant events."

Trudy visibly relaxed upon hearing this.

Shiloh, however, was filled with admiration and exclaimed, "Liam, how do you usually train? You've achieved great progress with ease! Your rate of advancement is unparalleled, likely among the top ten in human history! You could even rival that genius from our Rosefinch Galaxy!"

Suddenly, a realization dawned on Shiloh, and his eyes widened. "Liam, could it be that you're related to that genius?"

Initially, Liam had thought Shiloh had discovered his true identity, but he soon realized Shiloh only assumed a familial connection.

Amused, Liam laughed. Opting not to keep his identity a secret any longer, he chuckled and said, "Why don't you consider that I am the very genius you're talking about?"
