

Chapter 1372 The New Leader

After Julio and Jeremias had been kicked out of the team, the team's overall strength took a noticeable dip.

The Ellis brothers were top-tier fighters, standing at the peak of the ninth stage as Primogem Experts.

Despite this, Liam and his companions held no regrets over their decision.

They understood that true unity was the backbone of seamless teamwork.

Without the discord that had plagued them, their collective strength could become truly formidable.

This was the team Liam wanted.

Annabella broke the silence. "With Julio and Jeremias gone, our team's smaller. However, I still think we should choose a leader. What do you all think?"

Liam gave a slight nod in agreement, recognizing the necessity of leadership to prevent chaos.

Shiloh and Trudy expressed no objections. They simply listened to Liam.

Lindy, the most enthusiastic supporter of the idea, also quickly agreed.

With everyone on the same page, Annabella smiled and admitted, "I'm better at contributing physically rather than making strategic decisions. I don't see myself as a leader."

Lindy said, "Same here."

Exchanging glances, Shiloh and Trudy chuckled. "We don't have the power to be a leader."

All eyes landed on Liam.

Liam quickly picked up on their intention for him to be the leader.

He was not one to shy away from responsibility. And since everyone wanted him to be the leader, he agreed.

Liam knew that to triumph in this extraordinary mission, harnessing the collective strength was essential.

Within the Cosmic realm, the might of one could never surpass the combined efforts of many.

After stepping into the role of leader, Liam stayed composed. He said, "Since you've appointed me as your captain, I just want to say one thing. We are a team, and we must stand together and support each other in every circumstance."

Everyone else nodded in agreement.

Liam then posed a crucial question. "Lindy, Annabella, what do you know about the Titan Bugs' stronghold? Shiloh, Trudy, and I need to understand their strength."

Lindy said, "From what we've gathered, the King of the Titan Bugs has the power of a ninth-stage Primogem King. Moreover, the stronghold brims with numerous Titan Bugs of the Primogem King level. This mission is dangerous. The Titan Bugs represent a substantial threat!"

This information jolted Liam.

He had underestimated the Titan Bugs, not expecting them to wield such formidable power, particularly with a leader who was a ninth-stage Primogem King.

The revelation of their numbers further compounded his surprise.

A significant contingent of Titan Bugs of the Primogem King level likely fortified the stronghold.

Liam pondered his strategy, reflecting on the need for caution. He knew he must enhance his capabilities before engaging directly with the formidable foes.

Upon hearing about the strength of the King of the Titan Bugs, both Shiloh and Trudy were deeply concerned.

They understood the rules of the mission this time, which barred entry to anyone below the level of a Primogem Emperor, making the mission even more challenging.

Nonetheless, Liam did not dwell on these hurdles.

Suddenly, two individuals came to mind: Chad and Everett.

Both were seasoned seventh-stage Primogem Kings, likely also doing the mission here.
