

Chapter 1472 Meeting Caden Again

Liam nodded slightly and then said goodbye to Cecil and Herman before boarding the battleship.

As soon as Liam boarded, a series of sonic booms resounded. When the observers opened their eyes again, the battleship that had been hovering in the sky vanished without a trace, as if it had never existed.

Inside, Liam found himself marveling at the interior of the battleship, its walls adorned with peculiar magical circles and sophisticated laser devices.

A shiver of fear ran through him as he contemplated the destructive power of these offensive mechanisms.

He knew well that a direct hit from these things would reduce him to ashes in an instant.

He then noticed a peculiar feature: there was no control room or manual operation for these weapons.

It appeared that the lasers, powered by the magical circles, operated autonomously.

This realization led Liam to surmise that the battleship possessed its own intelligence, eliminating the need for human control.

Continuing his exploration, Liam used a flying device to delve deeper into the battleship's core.

However, he had not traveled far when a bright light flashed in front of him.

Soon, Caden's hologram materialized.

Caden said to Liam with a warm smile, "Liam, stay where you are. The battleship is vast; you finding me would take at least a day. I will go and find you."

Acknowledging the advice, Liam replied respectfully, "Thank you for your consideration."

He then deactivated the flying device and sat down, awaiting Caden's arrival.

Within a minute, Caden appeared before him.

Seeing Caden's swift arrival, Liam was taken aback by his speed.

He promptly stood up and greeted Caden respectfully.

Caden responded with a faint smile and a dismissive wave of his hand. "No need for formalities. Have a seat."

At his gesture, a chair materialized behind Liam.

Taking Caden's cue, Liam didn't hesitate and took a seat, expressing his gratitude, "Thank you so much for your assistance with the exploration mission of the No. 396 planetary system."

Caden paused, caught off guard by Liam's accurate guess that he had been secretly aiding him.

This made him appreciate Liam even more; with such a keen intellect, Liam was indeed worthy of being trained by experts.

"You're welcome," Caden responded. "You should know that without a more influential figure orchestrating behind the scenes, I wouldn't have dared act so boldly."

When Liam heard this, his interest was piqued.

However, just as he was about to say something, Caden discerned his thoughts and adeptly changed the topic.

"Liam, aren't you curious why the Dremer army suddenly appeared within the Human Clan's planetary system?" he asked.

Realizing that Caden was reluctant to divulge more about the influential figure, Liam decided not to press further and responded, "I suspect this must have been done by you, right? After all, without your intervention, the Dremer race couldn't possibly establish a presence in the No. 945 planetary system without the border guards noticing."

