

Chapter 1476 The Law Power Of Nocturne

After Alexis introduced himself, the others also shared their names and expertise.

"My name is Hilliard Carpenter. I'm a top-tier, level-nine Primogem Expert, specializing in the law power of metal."

"I'm Gabriela Morales, also a level-nine Primogem Expert, specializing in the law power of wood."

"Cataleya Debenham here. I'm at the same level and specializing in the law power of lightning."

Liam's gaze swept over the group. All of them stood at the pinnacle of level nine as Primogem Experts.

What set them apart was their unique law powers. Liam noticed that among them, Alexis and Cataleya were probably the most powerful ones.

One mastered the devastating fire law power, and the other harnessed the adaptable law power of lightning.

While Liam didn't regard Hilliard's and Gabriela's abilities as surpassing those of Alexis and Cataleya, he still respected their prowess.

After all, the two were still formidable level-nine Primogem Expert with their own domains.

Now that the others had introduced themselves, it was Liam's turn.

Originally, he had thought about revealing his mastery over the law power of death. But then, he decided to keep a low profile instead.

Liam said, "I'm Liam Hoffman, a level-nine Primogem Expert, specializing in the law power of earth."

There was some truth to his words. His mastery over earth law power was at 9%, precisely equal to his mastery of the law power of death.

The group was taken aback to learn that Liam was also at the ninth level as a Primogem Expert.

However, they did not underestimate him. They were aware of the challenging mission ahead, having been briefed beforehand.

Liam's presence here already proved Caden's high regard for him. It also served as a testament to his exceptional capabilities.

Therefore, the four offered polite smiles to Liam.

Caden spoke up. "It's time to get straight to the point. You have all been chosen from various planetary systems for your outstanding abilities. Your presence here alone proves that your capabilities surpass those of an ordinary Primogem Expert."

He paused for a moment to let his words sink in and then continued, "I've summoned you all here because I have a task for you. You are all aware of the recent news regarding Nocturne, the Primogem Emperor, and his death after fighting the Dremer race, right?"

Liam nodded in acknowledgment.

At that time, the Rosefinch Galaxy had suspended the system tasks of the Network of Human Sovereign and called on cultivators to join the battlefield against the Dremer race.

Liam was puzzled, though. If this was indeed a mission, what did it have to do with Nocturne, who was already dead?

Could there be more to the death of Nocturne?

"Before Nocturne sacrificed his life, he had managed to condense his law power and leave it behind. I've recently learned that the law power he left might still contain a fragment of his soul," Caden explained. "This means that locating his law power might give us a chance to revive him. Furthermore, just before his death, he sent me a message. He told me he had found a way to defeat the Dremer race!"
