

Chapter 1541 Chad Admits Defeat

Under the watchful eyes of the crowd, the sword of law power in Liam's hand shattered all the protective barriers on Chad's body and plunged deeply into his chest.

Shock and bitterness filled Chad's eyes.

He realized he failed to withstand Liam's strike.

The harsh reality confronted Chad as the sword protruded from his chest, marking him as gravely wounded and underscoring Liam's superior strength.

Clutching the bleeding wound, Chad managed a bitter smile and said, "Stop. I admit defeat."

Hearing this, Liam sheathed his sword.

The crowd, previously skeptical, erupted into astonished murmurs. Few had anticipated Liam's victory over Chad.

Yet, Liam had proved his strength.

With his status as a first-level Primogem Expert, Liam had grievously injured Chad, a ninth-level Primogem Expert, in a single, decisive blow.

This remarkable victory would surely be remembered in the history of the Human Clan.

With Chad's surrender, Liam claimed victory in the ninth-level match.

Simultaneously, a notification popped up from the Network of Human Sovereign.

"Congratulations to the contestant for winning the ninth match. Points rewards have been issued; please check your account. Would you like to participate in the tenth-level match?"

Liam had learned that even after winning the ninth-level match, his strength would remain suppressed at the first-level Primogem Expert realm, while his opponents would continue to be ninth-level Primogem Experts. However, these opponents would be further enhanced, either by gaining an additional law power or by boosting their attack and defense capabilities.

Despite this, Liam's interest in advancing to the tenth-level challenge had waned.

His experiences battling Everett and Chad had deepened his understanding of the Law Power of Five Elements.

He had mastered this versatile force, which required no preparation time and could be instantly deployed in both offensive and defensive maneuvers.

Still, the Law Power of Five Elements had its limitations; unlike the Death Power, the Law Power of Five Elements was ineffective for large-scale attacks and only worked against single targets.

After understanding this, Liam said, "I will not continue to participate in the contest."

The Network of Human Sovereign removed the suppression on his strength, elevating him back to the ninth-level Primogem Expert realm.

When Chad noticed the shift in Liam's power, he realized that Liam had chosen not to continue.

"Why give up the challenge?" he asked.

Given Liam's formidable abilities, progressing to the tenth level or even beyond seemed well within his reach.

Chad knew Liam wasn't short on special points. But continuing his winning streak could have made Liam a celebrated figure across the Rosefinch Galaxy again, potentially drawing the attention of influential people in the City of Divinity.

It was a golden opportunity, yet Liam had chosen to let it go, leaving Chad confused.

Liam offered a slight smile. "There's no need for it. I entered the Human Sovereign Arena solely to test the Law Power of Five Elements. Now that I've achieved that, continuing would only be a waste of time for me."

Liam knew that catching the eye of influential people wasn't merely about showcasing talent.

It also required presenting oneself as valuable.

When Chad heard Liam's words, his expression stiffened.

After thinking carefully, Chad realized that Liam had only used the Law Power of Five Elements in matches with Everett and himself.

After a moment, Chad managed a bitter smile.

It dawned on him that Liam had never truly unleashed his full strength during the matches.

He had already found it embarrassing enough to be defeated by a single strike from Liam, but this new realization stung even more.

Yet, above all, Chad felt a profound admiration for Liam's formidable strength.

Liam's extraordinary talent and strength, far beyond what anyone would expect at his age, solidified his place as one of the most remarkable figures in the history of the Human Clan.

As the contest concluded, Liam turned to Chad with a friendly grin. "Now that the contest is over, how about we finally have a proper gathering?"

Despite their shared history, Liam had never had the chance to spend some relaxing time with Chad and Everett before. The three had formed a close bond while working together on a mission against the Titan Bugs.

Chad, however, hesitated. After a pause, he replied, "Liam, how about next time? Everett and I have tasks we need to handle and really can't get away right now."

Regret was evident in Chad's eyes. He clearly wanted to accept the invitation but was bound by duty.

Liam, understanding the situation, gave a reassuring smile. "Alright, next time it is."

Relieved that Liam wasn't upset, Chad smiled. "Don't worry, Liam. Once Everett and I have some free time, we'll invite you for a meal. I hope you'll accept the invitation when we do."

"Of course," Liam replied with a slight nod.

With both Chad and Everett occupied, Liam decided not to linger at the Human Sovereign Arena. He soon left the arena.

Meanwhile, the spectators, realizing the matches were over and no further excitement awaited, began leaving, too.
