Chapter 191 The Enemy Of My Enemy Is My Friend

Just when Merlin was hesitating whether to say hello or not, Bishop in a wheelchair smiled first as if he hadn't heard him talking on the phone at all, "Merlin, what a coincidence."

Merlin was not in the mood. He forced a smile perfunctorily and turned around to go back to the box.

Seeing that Merlin was about to open the box door, Bishop suddenly stopped him, "Merlin, why don't we have a drink together?"

Merlin paused and a subtle smile appeared on his face.

He said coldly, "I have nothing to say to a spineless man."

When something like that happened to the Adams family back then, if he were Bishop, he would have wanted to kill August immediately.

But Bishop acted as if nothing had happened...

Hearing the implied meaning of Merlin's words, Bishop suppressed the coldness in his eyes and said, "Don't you want to suppress the news? I can help you."

As soon as Bishop said that, it was more effective than the previous sentence.

Merlin stopped, turned around, and stared at him with deep eyes, "Will you help me?"

He was a little uneasy when he heard Wade's hesitant tone on the phone just now.

But now Bishop offered to help him, which surprised him.

"Just you?"

Bishop was just an illegitimate child of the Adams family.

Even if his mother married into the family, he was still an unwelcome illegitimate child with disabled legs.

How could he help him? Bishop nodded without hesitation and his face was as gentle as ever.

He said softly, "We are friends anyway. When something like this happens, I think I should help as much as I can."

There was a dim light in Merlin's eyes, but he turned around and walked towards him.

After he followed Bishop into a box, he sat down and went straight to the point, "If you can help me settle it, I will try my best to meet your request."

Bishop smiled and motioned to Bob beside him to pour a drink for Merlin, "No need. Friends should help each other."

When August heard this, his eyes darkened a bit. He turned and walked towards her.

After approaching, he stared at her and asked, "Why?"

Lucia took a deep breath and said word by word, "This is not a bonus. I don't want it"

Hearing her answer, August was a little surprised.

Unexpectedly, she had seen through his plan.

August raised his eyebrows slightly and said softly, "Take it as a loan. You can use it first, and I'll deduct it from the bonus."

He would naturally arrange for Mr. Mitchell's surgery.

These tens of thousands of dollars were just for her family.

He hadn't expected that she would not appreciate it.

Lucia gritted her teeth, looked up at August, and said word by word, "I don't need it now. I'll just wait for next month's salary. Thank you, Mr. Adams, for your kindness."

With that, she bowed respectfully to him.

It was not that she was not short of money, but she just didn't want the money he gave her, as if as soon as she accepted his money, their relationship would become illegitimate.

For her, the money was a psychological burden.

August looked at her and frowned slightly, finding her a little strange.

During the time she lived in his villa, he had never seen such a stubborn and determined side of her, as if it was only at this moment that he recognized the real Lucia.

Seeing that August didn't have any words or instructions, Lucia lowered her eyes and said, "If it's okay, I'll go first."

With that, she turned around and walked out of the office without looking back.

The moment the door closed, August came to his sense. She was stubborn.

Back at the office, Lucia was a little stunned.

Why did August give her money? Did he know that she was short of money? She had many questions.

But before she could think clearly, she got a call.

Lucia glanced at the phone screen and saw that it was Paula.

Two minutes later, his phone rang. Joshua clicked it and saw August's reply.

It was simple, [Not interested.] Joshua smiled.

He could almost guess August's cold and indifferent face on the other side of the phone. He calmly turned on the camera and aimed at the center of the stage.

In the center of the stage, the irregular Nordic light formed a circle of light and happened to hit Lucia, emitting a warm light.

When she sang the chorus, the atmosphere was just right, making people immersed in it.

Joshua thought, "This woman is very beautiful."

She was not stunningly beautiful, but her lively beauty was unforgettable.

After taking a short video of fifteen seconds, he sent it directly to August, and asked, [How about it? Are you interested now?]

At the same time, August was sitting in the car, leaning on the back of the car seat with his eyes closed, dozing off. His phone vibrated. He frowned slightly, turned on the screen, and glanced at the message.

It was a video.

When he saw the figure on the cover of the video, he frowned and sat up straight slightly, and clicked on the video. Her melodious voice came from inside, not out of tune at all.

On the contrary, she sang quite well.

August's eyes paused slightly and fell on her left hand, which was still wrapped in gauze.

His face suddenly became gloomy.

Did she go to the bar as a regular singer? She ignored his words! He has said that he would help her and told her not to be busy making money, but what was going on now? Did she go to a bar? He suddenly felt unhappy and frowned tightly.

He sent Joshua a message directly, [Address.]

Soon, Joshua sent August his location.

August immediately told Burton to turn around and head to K Bar.

Lucia was more stubborn and brave than he had imagined.

After the Weske incident last time, he had thought she would never set foot in a place like a bar again, but she was more courageous now! Burton looked at his gloomy face and didn't dare to ask any more questions.

Because of her nervousness, her voice trembled involuntarily. She met his dark and deep eyes, but she immediately looked away within two seconds.

For the next half of the song, she sang tremblingly, not as calm and relaxed as at the beginning.

After biting the bullet and finishing the rest of the song, Lucia stood up, bowed slightly to the audience, and was about to leave the stage when August suddenly said, with a bit of strength in his voice, "Can I order a song?"

Lucia paused, looked up, and met his eyes. She saw the coldness and ridicule in his eyes, and her heart tightened immediately.

Did he take her as a singer here? Seeing that she didn't answer for a long time, August sat up straight slightly and stared straight at her, "How much does it cost to order a song?"

For Lucia, it was like a hard slap in her face, which made her face flush. He deliberately said this in front of so many people.

It was clear that he wanted to humiliate her! Lucia took a deep breath, gritted her teeth, and a bit of anger appeared in her eyes. She stared at him and said word by word, "Sorry, I can't sing."

With that, she clenched her fists, got off the stage, and walked to the side without turning her head.

When August saw this, his brows tightened. He got up immediately and quickly chased after her.

Lucia looked up at the bar and found that Andy and Paula were no longer there.

She heard hurried footsteps behind her. She gritted her teeth and walked quickly to the other side.

"Lucia!"

He sounded a little angry.

Lucia clenched her fists and quickened her pace.

When she walked to the entrance of the corridor on the side, she suddenly felt her arm tighten and someone grabbed her.

Before she could react, she was dragged and turned around.

His tall body blocked her vision.

She raised her head in anger, looked at him, and said coldly, "What the hell are you trying to do?!"

Before she could figure it out, Burton came out of the bar, walked directly to the car, and started the engine.

August got into the car with a cold face.

Although she didn't know what Joshua meant just now, she knew that even if she caught up to apologize at this time, August probably wouldn't forgive her.

Forget it.

She'd better go back to the bar to find Paula.

Lucia turned around and walked towards the bar, feeling upset.

When the car started, August couldn't help looking out the window.

When he saw the lonely back of Lucia, his eyebrows tightened.

At this moment, Joshua who was sitting next to him suddenly turned his head and looked at him with a meaningful smile.

August retracted his gaze, glanced at him coldly, and snorted, "You didn't drive? You want a free ride?"

"I drank."

Joshua smiled, with a little probing in his eyes, "I can't drive."

August ignored him and looked away.

His left cheek felt slightly numb.

He changed his posture, leaned against the back casually, closed his eyes, and took a rest.

When Joshua saw this, he crossed his legs, and said casually, "Aren't you curious about what we said just now?"

When he turned around after talking to Lucia just now, he saw August's eyes swept towards them intentionally.

August didn't seem to hear what he said and didn't say a word.

It was rare to encounter a scene where August suffered a loss, and Joshua naturally refused to give up so easily.

He sighed, and then said, "Speaking of which, this should be the first time you have suffered a loss in front of a woman, right?"

Hearing his words, August suddenly opened his eyes and looked at him with a sullen look.

Joshua continued to ask boldly with a smile, "Are you not interested in her?"

A bit of anger appeared in August's eyes, and he turned to Burton, "Stop the car and kick him out."

Paula took the hint, smiled, and took Lucia's arm, "The procedures are all done. Shall we go?"

Lucia nodded, raised her eyes, and happened to meet Paul's eyes.

Both of them were startled and then looked away in unison.

The atmosphere was somehow ambiguous.

Lucia came to her sense and immediately followed Paula out of the room.

It seemed that from the moment she fed Paul water, the distance between them had unknowingly narrowed a bit.

After coming out of the hospital, Andy drove them to take them back.

They arrived at Lucia's community.

The car was parked downstairs of her apartment.

She said goodbye to them, "Well, I'll go back first. Goodbye."

After saying goodbye, Lucia got off the car and walked into the apartment building.

In the car, Paul turned his head and looked out the window.

In the dim car, his gentle and bright eyes always followed Lucia.

When the car started, Paula finally couldn't stand it anymore, "Okay, bro! She's gone!"

Paul turned his head, and his face suddenly became serious.

A few minutes later, he suddenly said word by word in a firm tone, "I've decided. I'm going to confess my love to Lucia."

When Paula heard this, her eyes widened.

She and Andy, who was also shocked, looked at each other.

Lucia buried her head low and didn't dare to raise her head anymore. She picked up her pen and started writing and drawing on the paper to cover her panic.

After a while, Lucia breathed a sigh of relief when she heard August start to assign work. She was frightened during the meeting.

Halfway through the meeting, Lucia gradually relaxed a little bit. She glanced at the post-it note next to her. She felt a little bored, so she picked up her pen and sketched a kitten on it. She added, "Don't be angry."

This was an essay comic she had accidentally read on her phone yesterday.

She thought it was interesting, so she copied it from memory and drew several pictures in succession before she stopped.

Looking up again, she found the meeting coming to an end.

August told Burton, "Collect the work reports of each department."

When Burton heard this, he nodded in response.

Lucia looked up and saw Burton walking towards her. She hurriedly closed the report and handed it over.

It seemed that because the meeting was about to end, everyone relaxed a little.

They took advantage of the interval and chatted in a low voice.

At this moment, Carter leaned in, looked at Lucia, and whispered, "Good job."

When Lucia heard this, she smiled shyly and replied softly, "Thanks."

Sitting at the head of the conference table, August raised his eyes and saw Lucia's smile. He couldn't help frowning.

Yesterday she had beat him up.

Today she was smiling and chatting as if nothing had happened. He suppressed the unhappiness in his heart.

He took a stack of report papers sent by Burton, picked them up, and flipped through them. After listening to the reports from various departments just now, he already knew what he needed to know.

Now he was reading it again to ensure that there were no omissions and mistakes.

After flipping through several reports, he glanced down and saw that the organizer of the Administrative Department's report was "Lucia Mitchell".

His eyes darkened, and he picked up the document and read it.

As soon as he opened it, the first thing that caught his eye was a post-it note with a cartoon kitten outlined with a black ink pen, with a sentence attached beside it, "Don't be angry."

Chapter 198 She Went Out To Have A Walk With Grandma

The next morning, Lucia got up early. She put on a slim-fitting yellow shirt dress, and a pair of casual white shoes, and went out with a bag. She deliberately went out more than half an hour early.

She took a detour to buy traditional pastries that Grandmother liked and then took the subway directly to the Ecological Garden.

Not long after she arrived at the gate of the Ecological Garden, a black car drove up and stopped in front of her.

The car door was pushed open.

Grandma stuck her head out excitedly and waved to Lucia, "Lucia!"

Lucia smiled sweetly and hurried up to meet her, helping her out of the car.

"I've been so bored recently. But when I see you, I feel much better!"

Grandma got out of the car, held Lucia's hand, and kept talking.

The other side of the car door was opened, and a tall man dressed like a bodyguard came over and respectfully said to Mr. Adams, "Old Madame, do you need a wheelchair?"

When Grandma heard this, her face darkened and she waved at him, "I finally came out for a walk. Of course, I don't need the wheelchair. Lucia is here. Don't follow me."

The bodyguard frowned and said hesitantly, "Mr. Adams specially ordered me to ensure your safety."

Grandma waved her hand stubbornly, "I'll be fine with Lucia by my side. Don't follow me. I'm rarely in a good mood."

The bodyguard could not persuade her, so he had to obey and no longer follow.

After walking a few steps away, Grandma couldn't help snorting coldly, "This is the bodyguard that August hired for me. He is tall and big, but he is very boring!"

Seeing Grandma complaining like a child, Lucia couldn't help smiling and persuaded, "They are doing it for your good. I'll be with you today. Let's have a good time."

When Grandma heard this, she held Lucia's hand tightly, patted the back of her hand lightly, and said with a chuckle, "You're so sweet. You know me!"

Behind the rockery, Lisa watched Lucia walk away, and asked uncertainly, "Irene, do you want to do this?"

Irene raised her chin, and her eyes were a bit gloomy, "Why not? She was lucky at the last Boehm event. I was thinking about how to get revenge on her! I didn't expect her to show up herself!"

As for the Boehm incident, she had deliberately sent someone to make trouble, but it failed. She had been holding back her anger. She hadn't expected to meet Lucia when she came out for a walk to relax.

It was really bad luck! Lisa said hypocritically, "But we still don't know the identity of that old lady..."

"She's with Lucia. She must be Lucia's grandma. Anyway, she's an elder in Lucia's family. If she gets lost, wouldn't Lucia be anxious?"

Irene glanced around, and said in a deep voice, "Anyway, there is no surveillance here. What are you afraid of? Besides, we'll just find a reason to take that old lady away just to make Lucia worry. We aren't doing anything outrageous!"

Hearing what she said, Lisa breathed a sigh of relief, nodded quickly, and said in agreement, "Okay, I'll watch it for you later."

Irene nodded, glanced around, and commanded in a low voice, "Look in the direction of Lucia. I'll go and lead the old lady away."

The two looked at each other, reached an agreement, and dispersed.

Irene deliberately went around in a circle, walking from one side to the other, before she walked towards Grandma.

After approaching and meeting Grandma's eyes, Irene asked with a sweet smile, "Grandma, are you waiting for Lucia?"

Grandma was startled.

She paused, and asked hesitantly, "Who are..."

Irene lied, "I'm a good friend of Lucia, and we met just now. But she accidentally fell. Another friend of mine took her to the medical room in the garden to bandage the wound. She asked me to come over and tell you, and take you to find her."

When Grandma heard that Lucia was injured, she looked startled, and asked worriedly, "How is Lucia? Why was she injured?"

Irene frowned at the right time, and explained, "She accidentally stepped on a stone, fell, and bled a little. It's quite serious."

When Grandma heard what she said, she became a little nervous and got up quickly, "Where is she now? Take me there..."

Chapter 200 I Will Try My Best To Make It Up

A second later, he came to his sense and asked in a deep voice, "What's the matter with you?"

Lucia sounded worried, "Grandma...she disappeared! I lost her."

August's face darkened. He couldn't care about anything else, so he quickly asked, "What did you say?!"

How could it involve Grandma? How could she be with Grandma? Lucia regretted a lot and said quickly, "Grandma and I went to the Ecological Garden for a walk. I went away to buy water, and she — disappeared when I went back. I searched for a long time, but I couldn't find her, August, what should I do?"

When August heard this, his mind went blank and he couldn't help tightening his grip on the phone.

This stupid woman lost his grandma! August suppressed his anger and said word by word, "Find Kanye, the bodyguard, and keep looking. I'll take someone there!"

With that, he hung up the phone and turned around.

Jeanne stepped forward hesitantly.

Seeing August's expression, she was stunned and asked, "August, what's wrong with you? What happened?"

August's face was slightly cold, and he said without hesitation, "Jeanne, when you're done buying it, put it on my account. I have something to do right now, so I need to go first."

When Jeanne heard this, her eyes changed slightly.

She quickly reached out and took his hand, and asked in a panic, "What makes you so anxious? August, can't you stay with me?"

Without saying a word, August immediately took his hand out of hers with a serious look, "Jeanne, be good, I have something urgent to do."

He strode out.

Watching him leave resolutely, Jeanne could not help trembling with anger.

She gritted her teeth, and her face turned colder.

What did Lucia tell him on the phone? August left in such a hurry and he didn't even care about her! The more Jeanne thought about it, the angrier she became.

Seeing him disappear, she stomped her foot angrily.

This girl Lucia wasn't going to become her threat.
