Chapter 449

Chapter 449 Olivia Come Back.

Cloud Pavilion was a high-end store that Olivia liked very much for customizing Chinese-style clothes. August.

had accompanied his grandma to it several times before, but then he was too busy with work and hadn't accompanied her there for over a year.

After talking with Olivia for a few more minutes, he hung up the phone.

He put down the phone, with some depression in his heart,

In fact, he knew that his grandma said on the surface that she came back because she missed him, but in fact, it was because the Lion Group needed an elder from the Adams family to control the situation, with all sorts of rumors going around nowadays.

Eliot couldn't be contacted now. Olivia might not be able to put down the chaos immediately, but as the elder from the Adams family, she had some deterrent effect in Austos City after all.

Even if people didn't show respect to him, they still had to show respect to Olivia.

She came back for him, for the Lion Group, after all.

Bishop was trying to stir up trouble to make the Lion Group as chaotic as possible, while Olivia was trying to maintain the situation and support August in this emergency.

August raised his hand and pressed his brow, with mixed feelings in his heart.

This time, he couldn't let Bishop win anyway!

The next morning, Lucia had just packed up the two little ones' things and came out of the bedroom when she saw Timothy and Janet sitting sullenly on the couch watching TV.

The TV was showing obscure economic news, and Lucia's head hurt from listening to the technical terms. She went up to sit between the two little ones and couldn't help but ask, "Do you understand?"

Timothy leaned his head against Lucia and said sullenly, "Mom, there's no astronomy program on TV today that I like."

Janet next to him also nodded in agreement, "Yes, I want to watch the astronomy program too." Looking at them like this, Lucia couldn't help but laugh.

Timothy and Janet had been interested in astronomy since they were young, so they kept following this astronomy program. Only because the TV station had temporarily rescheduled that program today, they were upset.

After taking a look at the time, Lucia looked down at the two little ones and smiled lightly, "Why don't I take you to the Book City to pick out some astronomy books?"

As soon as she finished speaking, the two little ones looked at each other, nodded in unison, and said, "Yes!" Since Lucia's birthday, they had been locked up in the house for a few days, not going out at all, and even the daily walks were canceled. The two little ones were like little wild horses that couldn't hold back any longer. "Okay, then let's go and change!"

Lucia also had a good mood. She dragged them back to the room to change their clothes and pack their things, and as soon as they went out, she saw Paul's man, Lucas standing at the door.

"Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Thomas instructed me to follow you out and keep you safe."

Lucia nodded slightly and drove the two little ones directly to the Book City in the mall.

Book City was on the third floor of Starlight Plaza, with a rich collection of books and a small planetarium next to it, so it was perfect to take Timothy and Janet there.

After browsing around the Book City and picking out a few books they wanted to buy, the three of them went to the planetarium for a stroll.

The two little ones were full of power, while Lucia was so tired that her heels were weak and she couldn't even walk.

Seeing a cold drink store selling drinks next door, Lucia finally had a chance to sit down and take a break, but the two little ones, still full of energy and vigor, insisted on going to play with the simulated astronomical telescope in front of the planetarium one more time.

"Mom, we want to go play with it one more time."

"Mom, play with us one more time!"

Li

The two little ones, one on Lucia's left and the other on her right, shook her arm and pouted at her. Lucia was so tired, and it just so happened that the waiter served drinks, so she didn't want to leave even more. Finally, she smiled helplessly, glanced in the direction of the planetarium next to them, and spoke, "I'm really too tired. Why don't you two go over to play while I watch you here?"

The cold drink store here was very close to the planetarium, and from her position, she was able to see the planetarium entrance.

Atter glancing at each other, Timothy and Janet immediately held hands and nodded their heads.

"Don't worry, mom. I will protect Janet!"

Timothy said and patted his chest in a rather manly manner.

Amused by his actions, Lucia couldn't help but nod her head with a smile, and after repeatedly instructing them, she let them go.

Timothy and Janet bounced to the entrance of the planetarium and lined up next to the astronomical detector machine while Lucia watched them motionlessly.

Watching Timothy and Janet laughing and joking with the kids next to them, Lucia relaxed a bit, then she took a few sips of juice, and looked down at her phone.

She received several messages from Paul on her phone, all about her going out with the kids.

Since her last accident, Paul had been very sensitive about their going out. Not only did he send someone to protect them, but he also personally inquired about the situation in his spare time at work.

Lucia smiled. Looking up at the two little ones over there, she raised her hand and sent a message back to Paul, "I just took them out to have some fun, and Lucas, the bodyguard, is also here. Don't worry."

Lucas had been following them since they left the house, and at this time, he was standing in the middle of the planetarium and the cold drink store. He looked at Timothy and Janet one moment, and then at Lucia the next, with his eyes busy.

Suddenly, the phone vibrated, with a message popping up on the screen, "I need to confirm with my own eyes."

Immediately after that, the video call popped up, which was from Paul.

Seeing this, Lucia curled her lips in amusement and took the call.

The man's face appeared on the screen, and the background over there showed Paul's office.

Lucia asked with curled lips, "Are you busy?"

Paul laughed lightly and half-joked, "Even if I'm busy, I have to make sure you're safe,"

At that, Lucia smiled even more happily, completely unaware of a familiar figure coming out of the adjacent high-end custom clothing store.

Olivia, wearing an aristocratic and gorgeous embroidered outfit, walked in the middle, followed by bodyguards, and maids on either side, making her imposing.

She frowned slightly and asked the maid at her side, "Didn't August say he'd be here soon? Why is he not here yet?"

The maid spoke up, "Old Madame, don't worry, and Mr. Adams should be on his way. Why don't we go back to the store to wait for him?"

Olivia frowned and shook her head, "It's too stuffy inside and I'd better come out for a walk."

When she was inside, the clerks were complimenting her, making her very uncomfortable, so she'd better come out for a walk to get some fresh air.

Just then, hearing a loud noise of small children, she frowned and looked up.

When people got older, they naturally liked to be quiet. Just then, she saw a planetarium over there and a group of small children lined up around the entrance.

She frowned and was going to ask the maid to help her leave, but when she glanced over there, a light of surprise suddenly burst out of her eyes.

Among the chattering children, a child with a vivid and lively expression looked exactly like August when he was a child!
