

Substitute B 351

Chapter 351: Serena Sterling Receives His Lawyer's Letter

Corvus and Silas were discussing things in vivid detail, almost reaching a conclusion, when Hayden Crawford suddenly halted up ahead.

Hayden turned around, his deep eyes resting on Corvus and Silas's faces.

Corvus, "Master, this terrible idea was Silas's. I absolutely do not agree with touching Miss Sterling!"

Silas, "... Useless!

Hayden put one hand in his pocket, his handsome face unreadable as ever, leaving people guessing what he was thinking. After a while, he spoke, "Get my private attorney. I want to issue a legal notice."

A legal notice?

Who does the Master plan on sending a legal notice to?

...

After a hearty meal, Serena Sterling was sent back to the Sterling family estate. When she returned to her room, an envelope was already quietly sitting on her coffee table.

"Mom, who delivered this envelope?" Serena asked suspiciously. Why would someone send her an envelope out of the blue?

Iris Blue's voice floated over from the living room, "Just a courier. They said it was for you, so I put it in your room."

"Oh."

Serena acknowledged and opened the envelope, taking out its contents. Inside was a legal notice.

A legal notice?

Serena quickly glanced at the legal notice. It was dispatched by Hayden Crawford's lawyer, accusing her of aggravated assault, charging her with seriously injuring him to the point of disability.

Serena was dumbfounded. She never expected Hayden to pull such a move, accusing her of disabling him. Is he really... disabled?

At that moment, a melodious phone ringtone sounded; a call was coming in, from the instigator himself, Hayden Crawford.

Serena swiftly answered the call, furrowing her brows and speaking sharply, "Mr. Crawford, what do you mean by this?"

Hayden's deep, magnetic voice slowly seeped into her eardrum, displeasure laced in his tone, "Serena Sterling, why are you being aggressive, who are you being aggressive to? Do you think you're right just because you're the villain here?"

"..." Serena kept reminding herself not to get angry; showing anger would mean losing, "Alright then, Mr. Crawford, I've already received your legal notice charging me with intentionally injuring you, making you disabled. Where's your hospital certificate? Without it, how do I know if you're really disabled?"

"Then come over now, and I'll let you check if I'm really disabled," Hayden shamelessly said.

Serena was at a loss for words and chose to remain silent.

"Cat got your tongue? Why aren't you speaking now? The fact that you disabled me is true; I've formally sued you. I don't want compensation, as you can't afford it, but you must be responsible for what you've destroyed, for making me better. Serena Sterling, you can't escape this." Hayden ominously stated, then hung up.

Listening to the busy tone on the other end, Serena was already losing it. Is he really using his supposed disability as leverage against her?

Does he... have any shame?

No shame at all!

...

Serena arrived at the academy and saw Anabelle Rathborne and Tiana Ford whispering to each other in the radio station, likely conspiring against her again.

Anabelle noticed Serena, quickly exposing a sinister smile, "Serena, you're here?"

Serena raised an elegant brow and greeted calmly and gracefully, "Morning."

Seeing Serena's youthful, vibrant, and smart demeanour, Anabelle and Tiana exchanged glances, letting her bask in her confidence unaware. She surely didn't know that they had already caught her scandal with Dr. Kerr and sent those photos to his wife the night before.

Mrs. Kerr had already contacted them and would soon arrive at the station.

Anabelle and Tiana envisioned an entertaining scene - the wife fighting the mistress, and they'd post the video online, utterly ruining Serena.

Just thinking about Mrs. Kerr pulling Serena's hair, slapping her, and stripping her clothes made Anabelle want to laugh out loud, hahaha.

In truth, Anabelle was in a foul mood, restless and anxious because last night's "urology scare" rattled her. Though deeply in love with Hayden, she couldn't accept an impotent partner.

She really didn't understand how Hayden's health could have issues; clearly, a wealthy tycoon like him should be robust!

Struggling to accept this, Anabelle, still in her prime, wasn't content living a celibate life.

But she also didn't want to give up on Hayden.

Last night, her head nearly exploded with frustration, and Tiana's message came, infusing some joy into her day.

Anabelle was thrilled and, with hidden intent, remarked, "Serena, today our A and D stations will do their first test broadcast. Old Man Knight will be here for this important occasion, and Tiana and I have prepared a special gift for you."

Serena's bright, clear eyes shimmered with a smile as she glanced at Tiana, then Anabelle, "Such a coincidence! I've also prepared a special gift for you two. Last time during the academy's selection contest, you gave me a big surprise, so it's only polite to reciprocate!"

With that, Serena turned and left.

Watching Serena's slender figure disappear, Tiana felt a slight unease, "Annette, I have a feeling something unexpected will happen today."

Anabelle's face turned cold, "Let's not scare ourselves. Soon Mrs. Kerr will be here and right during the station's test run, a real show between wife and mistress will unfold for everyone. How could that not be exciting?"

Hearing Anabelle say this, Tiana steadied herself. Today, Serena Sterling had to be utterly disgraced!

...

The two radio stations began their first test broadcast. Someone came in and quietly informed Anabelle, "Annette, Mrs. Kerr has arrived. She met Old Man Knight and the station director on the way, and they're coming up together."

Mrs. Kerr, Old Man Knight, and Yvonne Knight, three heavyweight figures, were heading to the station.

Anabelle and Tiana's hearts raced. Everything was proceeding as planned, the stage was set, and the main act was about to begin. It was truly exciting.

"Tiana, let's go have a look."

"Alright."

Anabelle and Tiana went outside and saw a group of people approaching, with Mrs. Kerr chatting with Old Man Knight and Yvonne, exchanging formalities.

Anabelle quickly went up, "Mrs. Kerr, welcome."

Mrs. Kerr stopped, looked at Anabelle, and then asked, "Where's Serena Sterling? I'm here to see Serena!"

Anabelle's ears echoed with anticipation, here it comes, the showdown between the wife and mistress was officially starting!