Chapter 45

Chapter 45

When Yvonne got home, Lillian took out a beautiful fish tank and helped to settle the two fish.

It was placed in Yvonne's room. As soon as they entered, the little fish became especially active and swam excitedly in the

Under the table, a little puppy was jumping around happily.

After lunch, Yvonne returned to her room and closed the door.

The two pots of orchids had already been taken away in the morning under Victor's instructions. Thus, the balcony looked quite empty now.

Yvonne had promised Ian that she would give him a pot of beautiful flowers, so she was especially concerned about his flowers.

The afternoon sun was rather strong, and the flowers and plants outside were wilting. Only the flowers in her room looked as energetic as ever.

Closing the balcony door. Yvonne suddenly remembered that the large black dog had eaten her flowers when she went to the Lawson family's place this morning.

She wondered. That dog ate my flowers, so will the little fish eat them too?"

Yvonne plucked a rose petal and climbed onto the chair.

She held the rose petal and stood beside the fish tank. Then, she held the fish tank with one hand and silently transferred magical power to the petal with the other.

At that moment, the two fish in the fish tank began to flop excitedly.

They knocked into the fish tank wall like crazy, startling Yvonne.

The little girl hurriedly put the rose petal in her hand into the fish tank.

The pink petal floated on the surface of the water but did not sink. The two fish came over and pecked it before swimming away with disinterest.

"Wait." Yvonne lay on the edge of the fish tank in confusion and asked, "You're not eating it?"

She wondered, "Weren't they very excited just now? Why aren't they eating it?"

Yvonne picked up the petal from the water and placed it on the table. After that, she stared at the fish with her big, clear eyes.

After thinking for a while, she suddenly stuck a finger into the fish tank.

Thinking of the feeling of injecting magical power into the petal just now, Yvonne moved her finger.

Through the glass fish tank, she saw a small green dot of light detach from her finger and finally fall into the tank.

The two fish pecked crazily and opened their mouths to swallow the green light spots.

Some that were not swallowed in time melted into the water within three seconds and fused with the water in the fish tank.

The little girl retracted her hand in surprise.

The fish swam in her direction, their tails wagging as they looked at Yvonne with intelligence

Their scales shone brightly. There was no sunlight, but they gave off a dazzling feeling under the sun.

Yvonne fch that the fish seemed to be a little more beautiful than before.

She only found out today that the thing inside her could be put into water

Yvonne jumped down from the chair and ran to the bathroom to wash her hands.

She thought. The linle fish have become more beautiful after loving the water. Will the same thing apply to humans!

After washing his hands. Yvonne held a glass of water on her table and stuck her index finger into it a bit, repeating what she did nost now.

After the green dot fell into the water, it dissolved in three seconds.

The water in the glass was clean, and nothing strange could be seen.

Yvonne held the glass and took a sip. Then, she narrowed her eyes sweetly, lamenting at its awesome taste.

There was a hint of sweetness that could linger a long time in her mouth.

She couldn't describe its taste exactly, but she felt much more refreshed after having the water.

Yvonne hurriedly carried the glass out of the room when she bumped into Lillian.

"Liliant" The line girl ran toward her happily. She raised her soft and fair face and handed the glass in her hand to Lillian. offering, "Have some water, Lilian."

Lillian looked down at Yvonne's big eyes and her heart softened.

She was overjoyed because she didn't expect Yvonne to bring her water.

At the thought of this, the smile on her face became even more benevolent. She said gently. "Thank you, Ms. Adler. I'm not thirsty. You should have it."

Yvonne shook her head and said in a soft voice, "Just have it."

She stood on her tiptoes and tried her best to hold the water higher, saying as if she was wheedling. "Please."

Her actions were so strenuous that her face turned red.

Lillian immediately took the water and rubbed Yvonne's hair with a smile. "Thank you, Ms. Adler"

Under the little girl's bright and expectant gaze, Lillian put the glass to her mouth.

She was really not thirsty, but in order to appease Yvonne, she huished the water in one gulp

After tasting the water. Lillian was stunned.

This taste was sweet and mellow. Even now, the sweetness and slight coolness in her mouth had yet to dissipate. It was as intoxicating as a clear spring in the mountains, but the texture was comparable to the finest wine in the world.

Most importantly, after she drank it, she felt a clear stream flow through her limbs and bones, instantly dispelling her worries

As the taste faded, this clear stream seemed to gradually enter her heart, making her feel relaxed

"Ms. Adler, w where did you get the water?" Lilian was so show ked that she stuttered

Lillian thought that the effect of the fragrance of flowers was already magical enough, but she did not experts there to be something even more magical.

Yvonne put her hands behind her back and chuckled without saying anything

Lilian gripped the glass tightly, excited as she kept talking about how she felt. "This is so delicious! I've never had such delicious water in my life!"

She was an adult, so her description was much more detailed than Yvonne's

The linle girl was quite happy and said in a childish voice, "A madam gave me the water in the morning"

Upon hearing this, Lillian put down the stuff in his hand and took the glass of water to the recreation room to look for the servant who had got Yvonne the water. The content is on En.novelxo.com! Read the latest chapter there!

She had to know where this delicious water came from.

After Lillian left. Yvonne went downstairs alone.

She looked around and walked to the coffee table sne confirming that no one was around.

There was a mug on the coffee table. The little girl sneaked over and lifted the lid.

She often saw Jeremy drinking from that mug, so she wanted to put some of her magical power into the water in the mag

At the thought of this, the little girl put her finger in expectantly.

The tip of her index finger gently tapped the surface of the water, and many small green dots scattered into the water

Suddenly, Yvonne heard footsteps behind her and turned to look who it was.

Jeremy was standing a few inches away from her with a beautiful glass in his hand, watching the scene in shock.

Yvonne was stunned, and so was Jeremy.

The little girl quickly retracted her hand and looked down. There were still some green dots in the teapot that had not dissipated. The content is on En.novelxo.com! Read the latest chapter there!

At that moment, Yvonne was experiencing many feelings, most of which were panic and fear.

She could not help but take a step back, wondering, Jeremy saw it? Will he think I'm a monster and send me back to the orphanage?

As Jeremy approached, Yvonne's heart beat even faster.

She looked up in fear and quickly lowered her head when she saw his straight face.

She was thinking, 'Oh no, Jeremy doesn't look happy at all.

Jeremy took a deep breath and placed the glass in his hand on the coffee table.

With a sigh, he bent down and picked Yvonne up before he slapped her hand,

He didn't exert much force, but his voice sounded like he was gritting his teeth. "This is drinking water. Don't play with it ever again. The content is on En.novelxo.com! Read the latest chapter there!

It was different from what Yvonne had expected.
