Chapter 47

47%

Ethan was holding the fruit plate in Jeremy's room. When he smelled the rich fruit fragrance coming from the plate, his eves were filled with surprise. "These grapes smell so nice. Can I try them, Jeremy?"

Jeremy stared at the computer screen and waved his hand indifferently. "It's just grapes. Have as many as you want

Ethan and Darren each stuffed one into their mouths

When the sweet grape juice splashed out of their mouths, the two of them narrowed their eyes.

Almost at the same time, they said. "It's so sweet! It's amazing!"

Ethan handed the grapes to Jeremy and looked at him expectantly. "Try it, Jeremy. It's incredibly delicious!"

Darren echoed, "Yeah. I've never eaten such delicious grapes in my life."

Jeremy looked up at the two of them in confusion and disdain. "It's just ordinary grapes. Will you two stop acting so exaggerated now?"

"It's not ordinary at all!" Ethan and Darren were stunned by what he said.

They wondered. 'He calls such delicious grapes ordinary? The Adler family is indeed loaded."

They couldn't help but flatter Jeremy. "Jeremy, "You're so rich and generous, Jeremy."

But then again, they thought that since Jeremy didn't want the grapes, could they have them all?

With Jeremy's approval, the two of them held the grapes and flaunted them,

They even stopped playing the game since they were busy wolfing down the grapes.

Their teammates typed: [Where are the top and mid–laners? Why aren't they moving? Where are they?]

Jeremy looked up at the two boys eating grapes.

Then, he typed: [The top and mid–laners are busy wolfing down grapes.]

He was quite puzzled. "Hey, guys don't tell me that your families are starving you. What's so special about grapes?"

After swallowing the last one, Ethan said, "I don't eat any fruits at home, but Jeremy, your grapes are really amazing."

Ethan and Darren didn't even look at the fruits bought by the servants at home. However, they found that almost every kind of food in the Adler family's place was delicious.

Upon hearing what Ethan said, Jeremy looked at them pitifully.

Darren asked, "Jeremy, where did you buy these grapes? I'll get my nanny to buy them when I get back.

Jeremy thought about it casually. "Lillian likes to go to the big mall on Froyer Avenue. She probably bought the grapes there."

Sometimes, he would unintentionally see the shopping bags with the logo of the mall printed on them

Ethan and Darren jotted down the address.

They couldn't win this round. When they were away from the keyboard, their unlucky teammates condemned them crazily.

1/3

00:22 Wed, 26 Mar A A·

Chapter 17

Then, Exhaw and Darren were reported.

They had been thinking about the delicious grapes and did not stay long. They left after this round ended.

After the two left, Jeremy played the game by himself for a while.

Half an hour later, he went downstairs with a glass of water and accidentally saw the empty fruit plate.

Thinking of the exaggerated expressions of Ethan and Darren just now, Jeremy couldn't help but wonder, "Were those grapes that delicious

With this thought in mind, he looked around when he went downstairs,

There was also a fruit plate on the table in the living room. The grapes on it looked exactly the same as the grapes that had just been sent to his room.

Jeremy was really curious. After staring at the fruit plate for a few seconds, he reached out and plucked a grape before he put it in his mouth and chewed.

However, the more he chewed, the deeper his frown became.

He thought. There's nothing special about this. It's not as delicious as the two of them made it out to be

Jeremy was greatly disappointed and got a glass of water before going upstairs.

At that moment. Yvonne sneaked into the kitchen.

A nanny was handling the ingredients for lunch today. When she saw Yvonne, she was quite curious and asked. "Ms. Adler, this is the kitchen. Are you looking for Lillian?"

Yvonne hurriedly shook her head and waved her hand sneakily. "No. Im just here to take a look."

Yvonne walked over to the nanny and saw that she was dealing with the fish. She looked away with disinterest because the fish wouldn't do.

Then, she looked at the various vegetables placed at the side.

Vegetables were plants, so she was more familiar with them, which would do.

The little girl walked to the nanny's side and smiled warmly. She said considerately, "Let me help you wash the vegetables!"

The nanny quickly waved her hand. How could she let Yvonne do such work? "That won't do, Ms. Adler. Leave these vegetables to me."

Yvonne stood on her tiptoes and her small hand had already reached the cabbage.

The nanny's hands were sticky with the dirty things she got when she dealt with the fish. She quickly wiped them with a towel, but there was still a smell after she wiped them.

She hurriedly cleaned her hands with hand sanitizer, which took her four to five minutes.

Yvonne held the cabbage and did not move. After touching all the vegetables, she looked satisfied.

The nanny finished washing her hands and was about to stop Yvonne when the little girl let go.

She smiled shyly at the nanny. Two dimples appeared on her fair and soft cheeks, and her voice was soft and cute. "I won't keep troubling you then. I'll leave it to you now."

The nanny was stunned as if she had yet to react.

2/3

Chapter 47

The little girl waved at her obediently and ran out of the kitchen, leaving the confused nammy behind.

"Strange" she muttered to herself.

However, she didn't think too much about it and reached into the basin to deal with the dead fish.

Yvonne ran around the living room. She would go up and touch all the fruits she saw there.

At noon, all the ingredients were handled. Lillian cooked while another nanny helped her

Lillian couldn't help but laugh when the other nanny talked about Yvonne coming to the kitchen to play today.

As she checked the shredded meat in the pot, she poured the cut cabbage into it.

The moment she put it into the pot, the fragrance of the ingredients wafted into her nose.

Lillian glanced at the cabbage in the pot and sighed with a smile. "These vegetables are not bad"

She didn't think much of it when she bought them.

She always went to the same supermarket to buy vegetables. The ones she bought today looked exactly the same as before, but the taste was especially fragrant. The content is on En.novelxo.com! Read the latest chapter there!

Several names who were passing by outside were lured in by the fragrance.

They stood beside Lillian and looked covetously at the cabbage in the pot. One by one, they praised Lillian's culinary skills.

One of them said, "Lillian, your cooking is getting better and better."

Another one said. "Your culinary skills are amazing. I think you're even better than the chefs in those five–star hotels" The content is on En.novelxo.com! Read the latest chapter there!

Lillian was so happy that she grinned from ear to ear. When she covered the pot with the pot lid, she turned her head and said humbly. "You're flattering me. It's all thanks to the fresh vegetables that this smells so nice. The content is on En.novelxo.com! Read the latest chapter there!

She had been cooking for decades, so she knew her limits and thought that they were just flattering her.

Therefore, she wasn't being humble when she said that. She really felt that the credit went to the fresh vegetables.

3/3

AD

Comment

Send gift