Chapter 52

Chapter 52

The Pallas's cats had a clear target. With a serious expression on their faces, they ran toward the door

Ethan and Darren were still in a daze. Then, they hurriedly took out their phones and prepared to take a video of this scene that would definitely go viral Currently, there were many netizens who were speculating about where Robin had brought the Pallas's cats to. However, they could not find any trace of them after a day.

Not only could the roo and the police not find the Pallas's cats, but no one in Blorencence City could provide any clues.

With his previous experience. Jeremy's hair stood on end the moment he saw them. He went into alert mode

He quickly stood up from the table and picked up Yvonne, who was sitting beside him as he held her butt firmly with one hand

Then, he quickly looked around the dining table and found his favorite chicken wings. He immediately picked it up and ran.

Darren and Ethan, who had not witnessed what trouble the Pallas's cats could cause, were still watching the commotion.

Jeremy was still loyal. Before he left, he shouted at the two people at the dining table who were dumbfounded. "Stop looking. Grab a dish and run now!"

Ethan was recording a video. When he heard this, he turned to look at Jeremy in confusion. "Pallas's cats don't eat human food. Why are you so nervous, Jeremy! They're not coming at us. What's the point of running with food?"

Darren said. "That's right!"

Jeremy paused and looked at the two of them with a complicated and sympathetic expression.

If it weren't for the fact that his strength didn't allow it, he wouldn't have just run with the chicken wings. He would have carried the table and run.

However, when he heard what Ethan said, he knew that the two of them had not read his Instagram post yesterday.

He still tried to persuade them. These Pallas's cats are here for this table of food. Stop recording and take two plates of dishes away now. Otherwise, you won't eat your fill."

The Pallas's cats had already run into the living room and were rushing toward the dining table.

Jeremy simply did not care. He still had a plate of food in his hand. If he did not leave now, there would be nothing left.

Therefore, he carried Yvonne into the kitchen and closed the door behind him, thinking that Darren and Ethan were on their own now.

Outside, the two of them had yet to realize the seriousness of the matter.

Ethan even added his commentary as he recorded the video. "I'm at the scene where the Pallas's cats are trashing the house We can see that the Pallas's cat army led by Robin is running toward me. Their target...

Before he could finish speaking, Robin was the first to jump onto the dining table. It kicked Ethan's phone away with its left leg and grabbed a drumstick. The splattered soup splashed all over his face.

Ethan did not have the time to bother with his cell phone because the twenty or so Pallas's cats behind Robin had all rushed "Holy shit, run!" Darren yelled.

Chapter 32

A little Pallas's cat kicked Darren's phone to the floor.

Darren came back to his senses and pulled the stunned Ethan to an empty room.

The place where the two of them were sitting was occupied. The wild Pallas's cats looked like they had never eaten before as they wolled down the dishes on the table.

The empty dishes and plates on the dining table fell to the floor in a mess.

It was a spectacular scene.

The door to the room opened a liule, and Darren and Ethan poked their heads out.

The two of them were in a sorry state. Their faces and hair were covered in soup as they looked at the Pallas's cats outside in fear.

They even didn't dare to make a sound.

At that moment. Jeremy walked out of the kitchen with Yvonne in his arms.

The two of them were full. When they came out and passed by the room, they saw Ethan and Darren in a sorry state and looked down at their own clean clothes.

Jeremy suddenly clicked his tongue, attracting the attention of the two boys. Then, he asked slowly, "Why aren't you filming anymore? Aren't you going to make this go viral?"

The two of them looked bitter and said nothing

Yvonne, who was laying in Jeremy's arms, covered her mouth as she laughed.

Jeremy carried her and walked over quietly while brushing against the wall. Then, he ran upstairs to call the zoo staff.

He had asked for the WhatsApp number of one of the leaders. Jeremy walked over to record a few seconds of the trouble the Pallas's cats were causing before sending the video to the leader.

Jeremy: [Don't forget to bring money with you. Otherwise, I'm afraid that you won't be able to afford the compensation when we calculate the losses]

The leader felt helpless, feeling that Jeremy was just so cruel.

Putting down his phone, Jeremy suddenly heard a quarrel below. He went downstairs to take a look.

It turned out that after the Pallas's cats ate their fill, they began to snatch the fruits that Ethan and Darren had packed half an hour ago.

They had their meal there, and now they were getting takeout food.

The bags were in a mess, and fruits rolled all over the floor.

The Pallas's cats surrounded the fruits and ate them. Since they couldn't finish them, they decided to take the remaining ones away. Each of them had a fruit in their mouths.

Darren and Ethan found it unacceptable. They could not care less about the danger and called out to the Pallas's cats, "Stop! Put down the fruits!"

The Pallas's cat army stopped. They looked at Robin in unison, waiting for it to speak.

Robin placed the banana in its mouth on the floor. It looked so domineering that it seemed to look down on everything.

Chapter 52

"Ignore these two humans. We have the fruits now, and they're ours!" With that, Robin picked up the banana and walked out, looking like it didn't take Darren and Ethan seriously at all.

That was quite humiliating

Ethan pointed at Robin in disbelief. "Hey Robin. I fed you at the zoo and watched you grow up. You can't be so shamelest

Darren chimed in. Yeah. If you don't put it down now. I'll squeeze mustard into the meat you eat when I go to see you at the zoo again

Robin sneered and left with the Pallas's cat army without looking back.

It was wondering. Stupid human, I'll know by smelling it.

They did not run around. Instead, they all squatted in front of the Adler family's place and waited for the zoo's car,

There was saliva around the place they squatted. A few Pallas's cats could not help but eat the fruit in their mouths.

A few minutes later, several cars from the zoo arrived with more than twenty cages.

Seeing this scene, the zoo staff were entirely dumbfounded.

The Pallass cats were very smart. Instead of letting the zoo staff catch them, they got Someone exclaimed. "Holy shit, they're so smart now...

into the cars themselves.

In the house. Ethan was furious. He picked up his phone and wiped it clean. Then, he edited the video he had just taken and uploaded it online.

That night, a video titled [The famous Robin is such a troublemaker] went viral on X's trending topics.

Ethan looked at the likes that kept popping up and sneered

He sneered inwardly. Robin is bound to be punished by the cruelest cyberbullying of the twenty-first century!"

Thinking about how Robin would have to face everyone's criticism in the future, Ethan no longer felt so depressed.

After the Pallas's cats returned to the zoo, the vet heard that they had eaten so much human food today and was so terrified that he immediately examined them.

The Pallas's cats were protected animals in the country. If anything happened to them, the zoo would not be able to bear the responsibility.

The deputy director rushed over and sat on a stool outside the examination room with a few leaders.

Just as they were getting worried, the door to the examination room opened.

The vet took off his mask and revealed an extremely complicated expression

The leaders rushed forward and surrounded him as they asked, "How are they? Are they sick from the food?"

The vet shook his head. "No. They're perfectly healthy."

Seeing the leaders' happy looks, the vet wanted to say something but hesitated.

What he didn't say was that compared to the data of the Pallas's cats last month, their various values have improved.

This was especially true for Robin. Its growth rate was so fast that it far surpassed the Pallas's cats of the same type by a large margin. It truly lived up to its fame..

Chapter 32

As the roo staff drove so many Pallas's cats back to their house, cries of various animals could be heard in the 200

Everywhere the Pallas's cats passed, there was a riot. This was a scene that had never happened in the zon before

The breeders were so frightened that they did not dare to move

This phenomenon lasted until the latter half of the night before it gradually subsided.

The 200 staff fixed the broken fence in the Pallas's cat house that day to make sure the Pallas's cats would never be able to slip out again

Fixing the fence was much more cost-effective than keeping compensating the Adler family.

After the Pallas's cats returned, the number of visitors to the zoo soared.

Robin became famous after the farce. Everyone came to see l

him

In order to repay its debt of the Adler family, the zoo staff began to show Robin in livestream and sell goods, and the livestream had many viewers.

Robin did not care about what the humans did. It only cared about when it could go to the Adler family again to eat.
